Anderson Names 738 In U. S. Pay As Traders

High Ranking Army Officers, State Officials Listed As Grain Buyers

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson revealed yesterday that 738 Government employes, including many high-ranking State and War Department officials have speculated in grain in 1946 and 1947.

Included in the list are:

Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.), who already had stated that he had been in the cotton market.

Mrs. Edith Thomas, Senator Thomas' wife.

Beth Gage, Senator Thomas' secretary.

Harry C. Westphal, secretary to Senator Harlan J. Bushfield (R., S. Dak.). Bushfield announced last week he would not be a candidate for reelection this year. Yesterday he stated he knew nothing about Westphal's transactions.

Envoy Bruce Explains

James Bruce, Baltimore financier, now Ambassador to Argentina. Bruce, appointed to his ambassadorial post last July, stated at Buenos Aires that he had discontinued trading on commodity and stock exchanges when he entered Government service. He described his operations as "having to do with the farming business, in which I engaged, which was making use of commodity exchanges along the lines and for the purposes for which they were founded."

Walter S. Salant, an economist for President Truman's Council of Economic Advisers. Salant said he had explained his transactions to his chief, Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, the President's top economic adviser, and had promised "it never would happen again."

Salant's brother, William A. Salant, assistant chief of Economic Affairs for the State Department.

Winthrop G. Brown, chief of the commercial policy division of the State Department, and a former Lend-Lease official on the staff of Commerce Secretary Averell Harriman, when the latter was Lend-Lease representative in London.

Others on List

Frank Pace, jr., a former executive assistant to Postmaster General Hannegan. Pace, recently was appointed assistant Director of the Budget.

Stuart Barnes, listed as executive director of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Dr. Ernest L. Klein, a member of the United States Reparations Commission. Klein, a Chicagoan, is a brother of Dr. Julius Klein of Washington, an adviser of former President Herbert Hoover.

The list included names of Government employes, or their near relatives, who engaged in market speculations since January 1, 1946. In publishing the list, the Agriculture Department pointed out that many of the names are of persons no longer connected with

Landowners Vote Water Bond Issue

The Falls Church water bond issue carried, 301 to 45, yesterday in the town's "freeholders' election."

Held under terms of the town charter which requires that resident landowners first vote on all public improvement bond issues, yesterday's election will be followed by a general vote on the issue, probably in February.

The town proposes to issue one million dollars in bonds to enlarge and link its water system with that of the District of Columbia.

New Police Riot Squad Takes a Lesson

Grain Controls For Distillers End Saturday

House Committee Refuses to Approve Further Restrictions

A Republican-dominated House Banking Committee voted yesterday to lift all controls over the use of grains by American distillers after Saturday.

By a vote of 12 to 9, the committee refused to report out a measure, already passed by the Senate, continuing for next month the present restrictions on the use of grain for liquor manufacture.

The committee's action means that beginning Sunday distillers can use unlimited amounts of grain for making alcoholic beverages.

Court Upholds Restrictions

The unexpected action by the committee came shortly after a three-judge court turned down an application by Schenley Distillers Corporation, asking that the present restrictions on the use of grain for whiskey making be declared unconstitutional.

The three justices not only agreed that the grain allocations section of the Taft anti-inflation bill is constitutional, but sent Schenley's plea for an injunction back to Federal Court for a ruling on the retroactive clause of the restriction order by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson made under the law.

Anderson had restricted the distilleries to 2,450,000 bushels of grain for January—against a record of consumption last January of almost 8,500,000 bushels. However, he deducted from each distiller's quota, the amount of grain used since October 25, when the Nation's distillers agreed to a 60-day shutdown at the request of President Truman's Citizens Food Committee.

Production Plans Reported

Late yesterday one distillery, —that Charles Luckman, chairman of the Citizen's Committee had reported as refusing to join in the voluntary shutdown, joined with Schenley in attacking the retroactive features of Anderson's order. That was the Hedgeside Corporation of Nampa, California. Earlier Park and Tilford of New York had joined in the same plea.

Last night it was reported that several members of the House Banking Committee had asked that hearings again be opened on the bill turned down yesterday. At the same time it was reported that many distilleries already were planning to begin full-scale production Sunday.

School Board Hits Plan for Paid Members

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

Washington's Board of Education yesterday vigorously objected to the Auchincloss home rule plan to elect the school board.

The board also objected to paying for the services of board members. The present board serves on a volunteer basis and is appointed by the judges of the District Court.

The school board did not like the section of the plan that would give its successor control over the library system.

An elected school board was frowned upon as being in politics. Pay for board members would attract candidates who wanted to serve just for the cash, the board indicated. The library is not wanted because the board feels it already has enough to do.

Hearings Start Monday

Hearings on the home rule plan start Monday.

The board's position was defined in a report by Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning and adopted with minor changes by the board's committee on legislation. The committee acted for the full board. Its report will be sent to the Capitol today.

"No attempt has been made to set forth the many very desirable features in the general plan nor have the advantages of home rule for the District been explored," the statement said.

The board's report said the proposals "would result in considerable confusion, in a Board of Education with less authority than it has at the present time, in added expense, in less security and in the establishment of a school system far from the model system which should exist in the Nation's Capital."

Six Other Objections

The board had six other objections:

1. Transfer of board authority over personnel to the superintendent "vests too much power in one office and could result in arbitrary actions."

2. Transfer of all non-teaching personnel to Civil Service would take away the board's power of appointing or promoting employes.

3. Repeal of the Teachers' Retirement Act and the placing of teachers under the Civil Service retirement plan would interfere with the board's right to retire teachers.

4. A superintendent serving "at the pleasure of the board" and

Billion Slash In Initial Aid Hinted by GOP

Friends of Marshall Plan Cite Dual-Fund Pruning Pressure

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Republican congressional supporters of the Marshall Plan hinted yesterday at a possible slash of more than a billion dollars in the proposed 6.8-billion-dollar initial authorization for European recovery.

Friends of the legislation, high in GOP councils, implied that a distinction drawn in the Administration proposal to Congress between immediate and deferred outlays was an almost irresistible invitation for congressional pruning.

The European aid program, like all bills for purchase of supplies, differentiates between the amount to be spent in the next fiscal year, and the commitments made during that period for purchases to be paid for immediately thereafter. The first figure is 4.5 billion dollars, the second 2.3 billion.

The cut in the total, if it comes, will not be in the $4,500,000,000 sum to be spent before June 30, 1949, it was indicated. But the second sum—authorization to make contracts for spending after the end of the fiscal year—may be slashed down to one billion dollars, it was said.

Supporters of the European Recovery Program conceded that the $2,300,000,000 element in the total

6.3-Billion Tax Slash Is Approved

GOP-Controlled House Committee Rejects Truman's $40 Cut Proposal

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

In a virtual invitation to a White House veto, the Republican controlled House Ways and Means Committee yesterday approved a 6.3 billion dollar general slash in income tax.

By a 15-to-9 party-line vote the already twice vetoed Knutson bill came out of the committee in new dress, with benefits for every class of taxpayer.

Pigeonholded by a nearly 4-to-1 vote was the President's alternative plan to cut lower-bracket taxes and assess the 3.2 billion dollar cost against excess corporation profits.

Debate Opens Tomorrow

Half a dozen Democratic modifications of the Knutson bill and variations oon the President's plan likewise were knocked down by an unbroken Republican majority.

A closed rule, barring any amendments on the House floor, but permitting one Democratic motion to send the bill back to committee, will be rushed through the House Rules Committee today.

House debate will open tomorrow, with passage slated Monday.

Senate Republicans thereafter are expected to whittle down the amount of the cut to insure against a deficit and improve present slim chances of overriding a veto.

Both Parties Call Meetings

Warning that the bill in its present form will never become law, Democratic leaders called a conference of all House Democrats today in an effort to show a solid front against the Knutson bill.

GOP leaders replied by calling a mass meeting of all House Republican members, immediately following the Democratic rally.

As jammed through the committee, the Knutson bill provides less relief in the very low brackets than the President's proposal but gives much more liberal treatment of low-income groups than the last two vetoed bills.

What Bill Proposes

Here is what it does:

1. Increases personal and dependency exemptions from $500 to $600.

2. Ranges cuts in individual taxes from 30 per cent in the lowest brackets to 10 per cent in the highest.

3. Permits husbands and wives to split their incomes for tax purposes. Taxpayers in 13 community property States already use this device.

4. Allows persons over 65 an extra $600 exemption.

5. Allows blind persons an extra $600 exemption. In addition, blind persons over 65 may exempt $600 more under an amendment adopted yesterday.

The grand total of $1800 in exemptions for the aged blind was

De Gaullists and Leftists Join To Knock Out Gold Trade Bill

Stand of British Checks Selling of Government Issues

Financial Program's Third Point Must Be Reshaped for Passage

London, Jan. 27 (U.P.)—Britain's firm stand against devaluation of the pound sterling checked "jittery" selling of government securities on the London Exchange today, although the financial district was still buzzing with rumors that the pound would soon fall.

Government issues rose on the exchange as gold-mining stocks fell, reversing the rush to sell sterling short touched off yesterday by devaluation of the French franc.

News of the French Assembly's opposition to Premier Robert Schuman's financial program, received too late to affect today's trading, create some cautious hope that the situation might improve.

The eventuallity that Schuman might force the program through as a confidence issue, however, limited Britain's hopes that France would abandon altogether the proposed free money market which is the source of most British worry.

The principal menace to Britain's financial position created by the French currency reform is the possibility that pounds bought cheaply on the French free market can be smuggled into the sterling trading area to compete with currency bought at the official rate.

French leaders have promised to prevent the purchase of pounds on the open market. British officials, however, skeptical of French ability to do this, believe that stiffer precautions against money-smuggling are the only solution.

Paris, Jan. 27 (AP).—Premier Robert Schuman's money program ran into parliamentary opposition today.

The bill to establish a free gold market in Paris appeared doomed in its present form, at least. Socialists joined Communists and De Gaullists in fighting the program, and the National Assembly's finance committee rejected the gold trade bill, 17 to 15.

Schuman's program had three parts:

1. Devaluation of the franc. This was put into effect by government decree on Sunday and cannot be changed by Parliament.

2. Creation of a free money market in France, which also was established by decree and therefore untouched by parliamentary opposition.

3. The free gold bill which must be approved by Parliament.

The gold measure was relied upon by the government to bring out of hiding quantities of gold which France needs in her foreign trade and economy. By law the Frenchman with gold, foreign currency and foreign stocks was required to turn these in long ago. Thousands of Frenchmen refused to do so, however, because they were worth more than the government was offering in francs.

In declaring they would vote against the gold bill in its present form the Socialists did not say how they would act if Schuman staked the government's life on the measure and attached a vote of confidence to it.

Oil Crisis Now Perils Gas Heat in District; Ice Slows Fuel Barges

Tomorrow Fair—He Says

Weatherman Changes Signal; Snow May Get Here Today

Weather predictions of snow yesterday afternoon and last night were changed last night in snows' absence to considerable cloudiness.

The forecast 1-to-3-inch fall, said the weatherman, may materialize this afternoon, but lightly, with a 1-inch maximum foreseen. Today's temperature high, he said, will be in the mid-20's.

Thursday, said the weatherman, will be fair and cold.

Any fresh snow on the city's snow-packed and icy streets can be expected to add considerably to hazards of Washington's sustained freezing spell which began at 6 p. m. last Thursday.

Sub-zero weather extended all the way from Montana to Michigan, and temperatures in the Atlantic Coast States were expected to drop further as the fifth cold wave in two weeks fanned out over the East and South.

Industrial shutdowns and curtailments due to home-heating demands on natural gas supply were reported in West Virginia, Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio and Indiana.

Locally, occupational and recreational hazards of winter added to its continuing casualty list of traffic accidents, falls, and sledding mishaps.

In Maryland, a new mantle of snow and continuation of subfreezing temperatures came in on a gale, sweeping up from the South and striking Eastern Shore counties first. Three inches of snow were forecast for that area before the storm lets up.

Virginia, too, came in for its share of snow, with the storm expected to hit northern counties during the night. The Bristol area reported 7 inches had fallen on top of 10 inches already on the ground. Three inches had been added to Roanoke's streets.

Oklahoma City, Jan. 27 (AP).—Airport Weatherman G. P. Crawford forecast 24 degrees for early today, than switched to 20.

The temperature dropped to 9. The water pipes at Crawford's home froze.

Snow removal work continued in the District last night in the face of the new storm. William A. Xanten, superintendent in charge, estimated only 20 per cent of scheduled snow removal work remained to be done from last Saturday's 5.1-inch snowfall.

Gas Manufacture To Boost Natural Supply Threatened; Conservation Asked

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Washington's pyramiding fuel oil problems last night reached out to threaten gas heat consumers also.

Because of limited natural gas supplies, the Washington Gas Light Co. has been forced to manufacture gas from oil to augment its facilities, and that oil source now also is endangered.

A key to both threats, which stem in part from the same cause, is the ice-filled Potomac, where a Coast Guard ice-breaker yesterday plowed a path to bring through a barge load of 700,000 gallons of fuel oil.

Critical Situation Possible

The gas company announced last night that "a critical situation could develop at any time under present weather conditions."

In an effort to conserve gas supplies consumers were asked to maintain temperatures of not more than 68 degrees during the day and 60 degrees during sleeping hours. Unused rooms should not be heated, the company said, and use of gas appliances should be curtailed.

The conservation efforts are similar to those announced by the District Fuel Oil Coordinating Committee to cut use of that fuel by 15 per cent.

H. B. Noyes, general superintendent of the gas company, said under normal conditions no gas is manufactured from oil, but the natural gas demand has been unusually great because of continued cold weather.

Since last week, he said, oil-gas has been used, at times reaching 20 per cent of the day's supply. An estimated 50,000 homes in this area use gas heat, said Noyes.

Most pointed statement in the increasing fuel oil shortage came yesterday from the Petrol Corporation, which said it supplies an estimated 20 per cent of this city's home fuel oil.

By February 1, the firm announced from its Philadelphia headquarters, it will be "completely out of homeheating oil."

Serves 60,000 Families

Petrol, an independent, said it serves 60,000 families in the Washington-Baltimore-Philadelphia area. The firm's statement came in an appeal to the Senate Small Business Committee for aid in obtaining emergency supplies between Feburary 1 and February 17, when it expects regular deliveries.

No mention of gasoline supplies was made by Petrol, which holds a contract to furnish all of the District government's gasoline needs. Earlier this month, Petrol had to appeal for aid when it could not meet its gasoline commitments.

The 700,000-gallon barge load of home-heating oil, which arrived here yesterday afternoon with the aid of the Coast Guard ice-breaker Madrona, was consigned to the Petrol Corp. from Baltimore as part of a "normal shipment," said John S. Schuman, Pertol general manager here.

J. Thomas Kennedy, chairman of the local Fuel Oil Coordinating Committee, said that another oil loaded barge was reported jammed in the Potomac's ice near Morgantown, Md., yesterday afternoon.

"Losing Battle" Reported

L. Linwood L. Hudgins, captain of the Madrona, which was ordered here from Norfolk, said the ice-breaker will probably continue on duty in this area. In the Baltimore area, Coast Guard officials there said ice-breakers were fighting "a losing battle" in efforts to keep barge lanes open.

Kennedy said his committee now has about 100,000 gallons of home fuel stockpiled for emergency use, while the committee warned that the current week "will probably be the most critical week during the heating season."

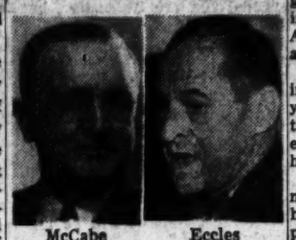
There were two bright spots for consumers on the fuel front—there is no coal shortage at present, according to industry officials, and electric power is ample.

Truman Picks Republican

'New Dealer' Eccles Deposed As Federal Reserve Chief

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

To the astonishment of political and banking circles, President Truman announced yesterday that he intends to name a Republican in place of a New Dealer as chairman of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System.



McCabe

Eccles

Those involved in the proposed shake-up are:

Marriner Eccles, who left the Republican Party to join the New Deal and was made chairman of the Federal Reserve Board by President Roosevelt in 1936. Once an apostle of bold Government spending, he has lately been advocating measures to curb inflationary bank credit. He has agreed now to step down as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board but to continue as vice chairman.

Thomas B. McCabe, a "sound and conservative" Republican of Philadelphia, president of the Scott Paper Co., and chairman of the board of the Federal Reserve Bank in Philadelphia. Mr. Truman nominated him for a place on the Federal Reserve Board on Monday, and yesterday disclosed that when the Senate confirms him, he will be designated as chairman to succeed Eccles.

Why Mr. Truman decided to demote Eccles was officially a secret.

One man who ought to know said that Mr. Truman and Eccles had disagreed on "general policy." Personalities, he said, did not enter into the matter, and Eccles took the position that the President was entitled to have his own man as chairman of the board.

President Truman himself, in a letter, told Eccles that the change reflected "no lack of complete confidence" in him, and "no disagreement" with him on monetary or debt-management policies, or with official actions taken by the board under his chairmanship.

The announcement from the White House caused many to jump to a conclusion and then ask a question.

The conclusion was that Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder had swung the ax on Eccles.

The question, especially among Democratic liberals and political

State Department Will Assume U.S. Rule in Germany

The State Department will take over the American government in Germany from the Army on or about July 1, the Army announced yesterday.

Military duties of occupation still will be performed by the Army.

Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall said the decision was the result of conferences he held with Secretary of State George C. Marshall and Gen. Lucius D. Clay, Army commander in Europe.

The announcement said "the official representative of this government in Germany" will be designated in time to assume office on July 1.

The Army's statement added:

"The Department of State desires to use the existing military government organization and to retain the staff intact. This personnel is now in large part civilian, and will be almost entirely civilian by July 1. The military duties of occupation will, of course, still be performed by the Army."

'Peculiar Psychology'

Stimson Blames Navy Strategy For Much of Loss to U-Boats

Former Secreary of War Henry L. Stimson writes in his wartime memoirs, "on active service," that there were "frequent differences" between the Army and Navy. He lays at the Navy's door much of the heavy losses in Allied shipping to submarines in the Caribbean and the North Atlantic.

Stimson describes the Navy's attitude in this manner:

"Some of the Army-Navy troubles grew mainly from the peculiar psychology of the Navy Department, which frequently seemed to retire from the realm of logic into a dim religious world in which Neptune was God, Mahan his prophet, and the United States Navy the only true church."

He says "the high priests of this church group" were a group of men to whom he referred as "the admirals . . . both anonymous and continuous . . . uncontrolled either by their Secretary or the President."

He calls the Navy's refusal to share the Pentagon Building with the Army "irresponsible" and ascribes it to the admirals. This "naval obstinacy," he says, came at a time "when a public demonstration of service solidarity was badly needed."

He lists other Army differences with the Navy.

"The question of the Negro struck against Navy prejudice," he

$40-a-Week Father of 6 Tells Senators About Living Costs

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Congress heard plain speaking from a plain citizen yesterday on just what it means to try to support a family on $40 a week, with prices of food as they are.

Cyrus J. Waud, 36, a soup factory worker, father of six children, settled into the witness chair before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, and said his children were undernourished and "you fellows have got to help me out."

With him were his blonde wife, Pauline, and his two eldest daughters, Lois, 11, and Ruth, 9, who turned grave young eyes toward the Senators as their father unfolded his story.

Waud, who works in the Campbell Soup factory at Camden, N. J., was sent here by his union, the Food, Tobacco, Agricultural and Allied Workers of America, (CIO) which paid expenses of the trip.

The short, thin, prematurely bald young factory hand stumbled a bit as he tried to tell the Senators about what it means to have no orange juice, insufficient milk, and six meatless and poultryless days a week.

Committee Chairman Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) helped him out.

"Our job here is to have an understanding heart of human needs," he said.

And a little later, after Waud

Big Three Parley Seen Churchill Aim

The Marshal's Plan

Soviet Pact Gives Poland Huge Credit

Moscow, Jan. 27 (AP).—The new Russian-Polish trade treaty policy allowing the Poles to buy $450,000,000 worth of goods on credit in the next eight years was seen today as an indication of the lengths the Soviet Union is willing to go to assist countries in her sphere.

The $450,000,000 credit is the biggest ever extended to any country by the Soviet Union. The pact providing for the exchange of more than $1,000,000,000 worth of goods in five years was signed yesterday. It was hailed by the newspaper vening Moscow as a demonstration of the Soviet Union's alternative to the Marshall Plan in eastern Europe.

Russia will undertake to ship an additional 200,000 tons of grain to Poland. This will bring to 500,000 tons the grain promised Poland in recent months.

Russia is to send ores, oil, cotton, automobiles, tractors and other goods to Poland in exchange for coal, extiles, sugar, zinc and railway rolling stock.

Believed Motive Behind Demand for Soviet Showdown

London, Jan. 27 (U.P.).—Winston Churchill wants the Big Three to sit down at a conference table and hammer out a realistic agreement that will bring an "understanding" with Russia and guarantee peace to the world, a source close to the wartime Prime Minister said today.

This highly authoritative source said Churchill's demand in his Commons speech last Friday for a showdown with Russia was, in effect, a call for another meeting of the Big Three—Premier Stalin, Prime Minister Attlee and President Truman.

It was disclosed that Churchill told a group of Conservative Party leaders after the speech that what he really wanted was a round-table bargaining session with Stalin.

He also wanted, the source said:

1. A definite "yes" or "no" from Stalin on whether Soviet satellites intend to cut off their aid to Greek guerillas and quit fomenting unrest along Greece's borders.

2. A positive assurance that the Cominform—the Communist International Information Bureau—will not extend beyond its "legitimate" sphere in Red-dominated eastern Europe.

3. A clear-cut "understanding" with Stalin—a flat statement of intentions by East and West that will permit construction of a stable world peace.

Board Refuses To Rezone 63-Acre Tract

Alexandria's City Council last night refused permission for construction of what was called a 15-million-dollar apartment project by declining to rezone a 63-acre tract in northwest Alexandria.

The council did rezone about half the area, which fronts on Mount Vernon and Commonwealth aves. However, Gardner L. Boothe, representing the developer, said his client would not build unless the entire tract is rezoned.

He said the developer would reenter the rezoning application after the required six-month waiting period.

Boothe said the development, as proposed, would contain about 1500 family units, approximately the size of Parkfairfax. He pointed out it would mean an additional $100,000 in tax revenue to the city.

Opponents to the rezoning held that the area is one of the few sectors left in the city suitable for development as single-family dwellings.

Yen to Drive Bus Costs Leatherneck $1500

Salem, Oreg. (U.P.).—A Marine private satisfied a childhood desire by driving a bus, but he is on parole from a six-month jain sentence and paying out more than half his monthly pay for doing it.

Pvt. Leo Denver Yates, Silverton, Oreg., told Judge E. M. Page in Circuit Court, "I had a yen to drive a bus."

The leatherneck's yen led him to taking a Greyhound bus from a parking lot when he was home on leave. He wasn't very good at bus driving, however, and smashed the big vehicle into the home of his parents a few blocks away.

The judge paroled him on condition he reimburse the bus company at the rate of $50 a month for the $1500 damage to the bus.

Study of Psychology Pays Off in Court

Memphis, Tenn. (U.P.).—Mrs. S. W. McDowell's college study of psychology was worth $5 in traffic court here.

Armed with psychology books, a Bible, toy automobiles, a yard-square street intersection diagram, and her learnings in psychology, she talked herself out of a fine for running past a stop sign.

The student used the books, with the Bible on top, to represent the local Salvation Army Building in front of which the alleged violation occurred. The toy automobiles depicted the traffic situation on the diagram.

The psychology was used like this: "Your Honor, you will have to use a little imagination—just as we must in all human problems . . ."

Gutt Hopes For Correction Of Franc Move

Camille Gutt, chairman of the International Monetary Fund, yesterday expressed the hope at a press conference that the unilateral action of the French in devaluating the franc was not just another chapter in an "old, old book."

"I would like to make a final remark just to draw a moral," said Mr. Gutt. "I read an article this morning which was very interesting, very well done, but I saw in this article that 'This is a new chapter in an old, old book. In crises, international rules and standards go overboard.'" [From J. A. Livingston's column in The Washington Post.]

"This is precisely, gentlemen, what we are against, what the International Fund is trying to change. Whether we shall succeed in doing it, I don't know, but that has been the effort of the last year. That has been the effort of Bretton Woods.

"Old books are instructive, but it is better to write new books. I am not discouraged by what has happened. It is an annoying event, but I still hope that it can be corrected and that ultimately international rules and standards will not go overboard.

"If we did not believe so, it is very simple. We would not be here. As we are here, it means we have got to act in such a way that those standards will be ultimately upheld."

Rakes Guilty On All Counts; Wife Is Innocent

Richmond, Va., Jan. 27 (AP).—A Federal District Court jury tonight found Hugh N. Rakes guilty on all 13 counts of an indictment charging him with aiding and abetting William Reeves Gardner in the misapplication of nearly $500,000 from the Farmers and Merchants State Bank of Fredericksburg.

The same jury found Rakes' wife, Mrs. Lillian C. Rakes, innocent on all 13 counts of the indictment.

The verdicts were returned after the jury deliberated for more than six hours.

Through Potomac Ice Comes Oil for Furnaces of Washington

By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

Free Enterprise Threatened By Profiteers, Canadian Says

Quebec, Jan. 27 (AP).—Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell said today profiteers threaten free enterprise throughout the world.

The Canadian government "intends to deal with them as they should be dealt with," he told the annual convention of the Canadian Construction Association.

"Such persons are doing our country a great deal of harm," he said. ". . . this is just the sort of thing in which leaders of certain political ideologies take a keen delight, because it lends weight to their propaganda for a planned economy based on the principle of state direction of the individual."

A parliamentary committee will inquire soon into the price structure.

Mitchell said import restrictions on such things as structural steel, which soon go into effect, will be maintained until trade with the United States comes into balance.

He added Canada plans to bring in 22,000 displaced persons after "thorough screening."

"We are certainly not bringing in known Communists," he said.

He Guessed Right But He's Sorry Now

St. Louis (U.P.).—Joseph Gerken, 59, operator of a tavern, made a wisecrack he regrets.

Two city detectives and a Missouri liquor control officer walked into Gerken's place after closing hours and asked for service.

"I guess you fellows are police officers or State men, eh!" Gerken laughed when the cops paid for the drinks.

The officers solemnly said they were. That brought another laugh all around, until the cops showed their badges and carted Gerken off.

College Students Pay For Traffic Mistakes

Columbus, Ohio (U.P.).—A college education can prove increasingly expensive if College Joe drives an automobile.

The Ohio State University traffic department announced it had collected $5385 for student violations of parking regulations during the autumn quarter. The traffic department said 13,750 tickets were issued.

Fines for tickets lost or not presented within three days after receipt are doubled. Fines for parking operate on a sliding scale—$1 for the first offense and $25 each after the eighth offense.

Government of U.S. Western Europe, Britain Proposed

Chicago, Jan. 26 (U.P.).—Dr. Harold C. Urey, pioneer in atomic research, today proposed a Federal government of the United States, the British commonwealth and western Europe, because it is evident "we are not going to get" a world government.

Urey reported pessimistically on efforts to control atomic energy and blamed the Russians for blocking the goal of world government.

"The Russian government, for reasons unknown to us, will not accept any real and effective control," he said. "In view of this, we of the western world must review our stand and our approach to the problem."

Urey spoke before the sixteenth annual General Assembly of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds, which approved a resolution urging the Federal government to "lift the embargo on shipment of arms to the Jews of Palestine."

$165,861,514 Gross Sets N. & W. Record

Philadelphia, Jan. 27 (AP).—Norfolk & Western Railway Co.'s 1947 gross railway operating revenue of $165,861,514 topped all previous records for the road's 51-year history, the company reported today.

The gross represents a 28 per cent increase over $129,714,096 in 1946.

A previous report that the company's 1947 net earnings of $32,292,608 after sinking fund, reserve and miscellaneous appropriations broke figures of all prior years was incorrect.

The railroad declared a quarterly dividend of 75 cents on common stock today, payable March 10 to holders of record February 11. A similar dividend was paid December 10, plus an extra of $1 on common which was split four-for-one earlier last year.

Truman Signs Bill to Bolster 'Voice' of U. S.

President Truman yesterday signed the Smith-Mundt Bill authorizing the State Department's "Voice of America" broadcasts and other information activities abroad.

The signing ended a two-year struggle to win Congressional sanction for such activities as a permanent part of the conduct of American foreign relations. Until yesterday the United States was the only major power which had not put its foreign information work on a permanent basis.

As long ago as the spring of 1946, when James F. Byrnes was Secretary of State, efforts had been made to get an enabling act of Congress which would authorize continuance of the work carried on in wartime by the Office of War Information and the office of Inter-American Affairs.

Cut to Twelve Millions -M vbgq

Congress failed to pass an earlier version of the bill, and last year appropriations for the overseas information program were drastically cut to 12 million dollars.

The number of American information and cultural relations officers in foreign countries was slashed from 350 to below 150. Twenty reference libraries and information centers abroad had to be closed for lack of funds, and in some countries American information work was abandoned altogether.

Now that the bill has been passed and signed, the State Department is asking for full restoration of the cuts in the coming fiscal year. It hopes to rebuild its information staffs abroad, to reopen the closed libraries and install new ones, and to step up the broadcasts which are virtually the only means of explaining American policies to peoples behind the so-called "Iron Curtain."

The new legislation contemplates the use of press, radio and motion pictures, with private media of communications to be used wherever possible. It also authorizes the State Department to arrange for the exchange with other nations of students, teachers, technicians and "persons, knowledge and skills."

Separate committees of prominent citizens will advise the State Department on operation of the information and educational programs, but both activities will be directed by George V. Allen, newly-appointed as Assistant Secretary of State.

Molotov Heads World Liaison For Russians

Moscow, Jan. 27 (AP).—The Soviet Union today established the Foreign Affairs Ministry headed by V. M. Molotov as the supreme clearing house for all contacts with the outside world.

The decree applies to foreigners both inside and outside the Soviet Union. The only exceptions for foreigners inside Russia apply to those institutions taking care of everyday needs such as the post and telegarph, railways, restaurants, stores and housing.

Any communication to a Soviet official or institution from a foreign source must be referred to Molotov's ministry. Any written communication in reply will be issued by his ministry.

The new law, replacing a 1926 statute, subjects violators to punishment under the criminal code.

Assault Ships Sent To Mediterranean

On Athens Front

Griswold Seen Averse To 2d Task

Athens, Jan. 27 (U.P.)—Dwight Griswold, head of the American aid mission, and a number of his top officials will quit their jobs next summer and decline to stay here to administer the Greek part of the Marshall Plan reliable sources said today.

Griswold himself may be willing to remain for one or—at the most—two months after the present $300,000,000 aid program is fulfilled June 30, these sources said. Other key officials want to return to the United States right after June 30 for what they describe as "family or personal reasons," it was said.

To Confer In Washington

Griswold said today he will leave Athens within a few weeks for Washington for talks about Greece with high officials. He described himself as "greatly encouraged" at steps the government here has taken toward reconstruction.

The former Nebraska Governor city these developments:

1. Agreement between the government and the Americans to halt the use of bank credits for speculation.

2. The plan to open mail from foreign countries to detect money being sent by letter to avoid legal banking channels.

3. Plans for reorganization of the ministry of supply to make distribution easier in view of the increasing refugee problem—500,000 are said to have fled guerilla areas.

4. Regulation of the sale of gold.

Deprived of Citizenship

The government, meanwhile, decided to deprive 13 high Communists of their Greek citizenship. The 13 include members of Gen. Markos Vafiades "mountain government" and two Communist newspapermen.

Salonika dispatches claimed Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia and Markos have agreed to incorporate 13 Greek border villages in the "guerilla government."

Amphibious Vessels Equipped With Guns And Landing Craft

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Large amphibious vessels—equipped with tanks, field guns and the landing craft to put them on the beach—now form a regular part tof American haval forces in the Mediterranean, the Navy said yesterday.

Top officials said at a press conference that assault cargo ships and transports will be maintained in the troubled area with full fighting equipment for the squadron's oversized Leatherneck force.

Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, chief of naval operations, also announced that the 27,000-ton aircraft carrier Philippine Sea will replace the 45,000-ton carrier Midway in the Mediterranean the middle of March. Aboard will be an extra large complement of Marines from the crack Second Division at New River, N. C.

Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan said the number of Marines in the Mediterranean squadron will not be affected by the shift. Recently 1000 Leathernecks were added to some 250 others aboard the Midway and three cruisers of the unit.

Those who joined the carrier will return when the giant craft comes home for extensive alterations. Sullivan said the work to be done approximates work already done on her sister ship, the Franklin D. Roosevelt, and includes strengthening her flight deck to handle heavier new airplanes.

Denfeld said the heavy combat equipment sent to the Mediterranean with the 1000 Marines is being maintained aboard an assault transport and an assault cargo ship. The amphibious vessels with their tanks and artillery and landing craft will be rotated on Mediterreanean duty along with other ships, he said. The squadron is based at East Coast United States ports.

Sullivan said the Navy does not plan any landing exercises for the Marines and amphibious craft. Asked is there were plans for training Leathernecks in mountain warfare for possible use in Greece, the Navy chief answered in the negative.

Stimson Hits Navy Strategy

writes, "and so did the ending of voluntary enlistments."

He recalls "the Navy's astonishing bitterness against General MacArthur" and calls it "childish."

In the argument over antisubmarine tactics he says the Army favored a central, practically autonomous operation patterned after the British coastal command. The Army felt such a command would be able to concentrate planes and vessels quickly where the submarines had been sighted.

U-Boat Hunt First Duty

It thought that the primary duty of planes, in such an operation, should be to hunt the U-boat and sink it. Planes would be used on convoy duty only as a secondary chore.

The Navy insisted on the reverse, he writes. It insisted that planes used against subs should be assigned to individual sea frontier commands, in a manner which Stimson says prevented concentrations against the sea raiders. And it felt such planes should be used primarily with convoys.

Stimson and Gen. George C. Marshall, then Chief of Staff, had favored a unified antisubmarine force as soon as radar was perfected and radar-equipped planes had demonstrated their ability to catch submarines.

At last, Stimson writes, impressed with the futility of argument with the Navy, General Marshall turned over to the Navy entire responsibility for antisubmarine air activity.

But Stimson continues to feel that the Navy used bad judgment and offers the following opinions in support of his belief:

It was air power, rather than vessels, that finally closed the North Atlantic to submarines.

Aircraft, operating at sea, destroyed more submarines than did the surface vessels and "more than five-sixths of the submarines sunk from the air were killed by shore-based aircraft."

In late 1942, Stimson writes, when more than 30 merchant ships were sunk by U-boats in the Caribbean, the Navy flew only 9000 patrol hours in that area, but at the same time flew 45,000 patrol hours in the northern waters, where there were no submarine attacks.

This happened, Stimson says, when the Navy's own experts reported that there were 10 U-boats in the Carribbean and only one working in the Atlantic and the Gulf.

In March, 1943, he recalls, U-boats sank more than 750,000 tons of shipping off Greenland. Again Secretary Stimson and General Marshall urged upon the Navy a unified antisubmarine operation, unsuccessfully.

Ex-British Consul Found on Coast After 'Blow-Up'

Los Angeles, Jan. 27 (U.P.)—Former British Consul Alexander M. Galbraith of Pittsburgh was located tonight in a downtown hotel where he had been living since a week after he disappeared December 31.

Galbraith, 50, said he "blew up" when informed he was being released from his post as acting consul at Pittsburgh through a change in British policy.

"I don't remember much from that day until I suddenly came to here in this hotel," he declared.

He said he was penniless and did not have enough money to eat.

Papers Show German Efforts To Push Japanese Into War

Nuernberg, Germany, Jan. 27 (U.P.)—The German Foreign Office used every means at its disposal to push the Japanese into war with the United States, documents introduced today in the war crimes trial of foreign office officials revealed.

During 1941 right up to Pearl Harbor the foreign office prodded Japan to, first, take Singapore to weaken the British, then, involve the United States before the latter was ready to support a war on two fronts.

The documents introduced by Dr. Robert M. W. Kempner of Philadelphia also revealed that both Germans and Italians knew a few days before Pearl Harbor that Japan had decided to take on the United States.

The foreign office kept reminding the Japanese that the United States was not prepared, that to delay would be fatal because then she would have time to arm. They kept insisting that never again in history would the Japanese have such an opportunity.

At a conference in Berlin on April 4, 1941, Hitler assured Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka Japan could be sure of German support in event of war with the United States, the documents disclosed.

No Mivies and No Bus Fares for the Youngsters

Harris & Ewing

A CITIZEN SPEAKS PLAINLY—Cyrus J. Waud, 36-year-old soup factory worker from Camden, N. J., tells the Senate Banking and Currency Committee a few important things about trying to support a family on $40 a week. He is backed up by his wife, Pauline, and their daughters, Ruth, 9, and Lois, 11, who listen intently as Waud unfolds his story

$40-a-Week Father of 6 Tells Senators About Living Costs

had gone into all the details of his family budget, including no movies and no bus fare for the youngsters, Tobey called Lois, a thin little sprite in pigtails to his side, and slipped a $5 bill into her hand.

Tobey also arranged to have a car put at the family's disposal so the youngsters could see Washington.

But what Waud was asking for was some action by Congress to bring prices down, a question now before the committee.

Angered at the contrast between the soup worker's meager existence and the skyrocketing prices of food, Tobey announced that he is sending telegrams to representative firms in the food industry asking them to be ready to produce evidence next week to "justify" their present high prices.

With six children under 11, Waud told the Senators, the family should have 28 quarts of milk a week—an allowance most nutrition experts would say is too low. But on a $40-a-week salary, Waud can afford only 12 quarts. Two quarts cost 45 cents.

Last week the family's one meat day found two pounds of hamburger on the table. It cost 65 cents. Company dropped in, so they even had to skimp on the hamburger.

For meat substitutes they use four-dozen eggs a week.

Food is what crimps the budget most, Waud explained, but clothes are a problem—clothes for the kids, that is. The older Wauds haven't bought any clothes for four years. But school means shoes, and socks and clothes to be decent in.

The Wauds don't budget anything for recreation—there's nothing left by the time they get around to that. They don't smoke or drink, they said, and as for movies, "They are away out of our reach." The youngsters walk to school because they can't afford bus fare and there's no school bus.

How often does Mrs. Waud buy a dress? inquired Tobey gently.

"Never," said Mrs. Waud softly.

"Once in a while," Maud commented, "Mrs. Waud's sister gives her a dress."

"We have $20 in savings," Waud said, "but it isn't ours. We owe about $300 for medical bills, doctors, the hospital, so it really belongs to them."

Waud said if the committee would roll prices back to 1946 levels maybe he could get along. Then he was paying $10 or $12 a week for food which now costs $18 to $20.

Senator Homer E. Capehart (R., Ind.) wanted to know what Waud thought about rolling back wages as well as prices.

"Can't you see we're underfed?" replied Waud. "What good would that do us?"

British Order American Ship To Haifa for Arms Search

Jerusalem, Jan. 27 (U.P.)—An American ship, the Exporter, which anchored off all-Jewish Tel Aviv today was ordered by British authorities to sail to Haifa for a thorough search.

British officials said it was possible the ship carried contraband arms and ammunition for the Jewish Hagana army.

A reliable source said the inspection order was based on an agreement by Anglo-American authorities.

Arabs ambushed and killed a British corporal and a Jewish truck driver on the Tel Aviv-Haifa road. They were the only deaths reported in Palestine today.

Jewish dynamiters continued their campaign to isolate Arab communities, blowing up a railway line near Lydda, south of All-Arab Jaffa, and setting fire to a wooden railway bridge near that city.

Truman Asks Action On Juvenile Crime

President Truman yesterday described juvenile delinquency as "a reflection of the failure of our society" to afford young people full opportunities for protection, health, happiness and citizenship.

He signed a proclamation calling upon all to help prevent and control juvenile delinquency, to dramatize the call of the National Conference on Prevention and Control of Juvenile Delinquency for emphasis on the problem during April.

Iraq Cabinet Quits as People Protest Treaty With British: 70 Killed, 300 Wounded in Riots

Baghdad, Iraq, Jan. 27 (AP).—The cabinet of Premier Salih Bey Al Jabr resigned tonight after 24 hours of rioting in which 70 persons were reported killed and more than 300 wounded.

The resignation signified collapse of Salih Bey's fight for ratification of the British-Iraqi treaty of friendship and mutual military aid he signed in London 12 days ago.

Regent Abdul announced the resignations in a broadcast and appealed for restoration of order.

One report said a private plane machine gunned demonstrators crossing a bridge during the height of the rioting.

News that the treaty had been signed January 15 touched off riots in which 11 were killed. These finally were quieted by the Regent, who promised that no treaty would be ratified which did not guarantee Iraq's "natural aspirations."

The unrest erupted again last night after Salih Bey returned from England and announced he would remain in office and fight for treaty ratification.

The treaty would give Britain the right to send troops into Iraq in event of war or imminence of war. British rights to occupy two air fields in Iraq would be surrendered, but British planes could use the fields. The treaty called for continued training and equipping of the Iraq army by the British.

Demonstrators surged into the streets of the capital last night. Armed with sticks and stones and a few firearms, they battled with police.

The rioting spread to other cities in Iraq. A number of government buildings were set fire and one British building was wrecked.

Two cabinet ministers came under fire of the demonstrators but escaped injury. One was identified as Jamil Abdel Wahab, Minister of Social Affairs.

Police prevented the demonstrators from reaching the home of Salih Bey. They were foiled also from smashing their way into the Council of Ministers.

(At Beirut, Lebanon, 400 Iraqi students at American University went on strike today and demonstrated against the British treaty.)

Billion Slash In Aid Hinted

was not unreasonable, in view of the magnitude of the enterprise. But they confessed there was intense pressure to cut it down.

For example, Senator Taft (R., Ohio), GOP policy leader, has called for a two billion dollar reduction. Yesterday he predicted to the Associated Press the certainty of a slash and added that the only question was one of degree.

In the Senate, leaders expressed hope that the legislation could be completed and written into law by the first of April. One timetable contemplates conclusion of hearings on the plan before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee by the middle of next week.

The committee would report out a bill by February 20. Allowing two weeks of debate, the measure would clear the Senate by March 1. Another month would probably be required before it passes the House.

Start by RFC Contemplated

A provision in the legislation to permit the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to begin outlays, without waiting for a separate appropriation bill, is contemplated. This would let the actual aid start as soon as the President puts his signature on the law.

Meantime, hearings before the Senate committee and the House Foreign Affairs Committee continued yesterday in full blast.

Philip Reed, chairman of the board of the General Electric Co., told the House group that the probable consequence of failure to extend Marshall Plan aid would be an increase in our own military expenditures of 50 per cent. This would be a jump of five billion dollars a year.

Would Become Camp

Without American help, he said, western Europe would become "a political and economic concentration camp." Police states would be necessary to keep present governments in power, he declared.

With the collapse of free economies in Europe, our own free foreign trading would "disappear indefinitely," he said.

He warned that Russia "will do everything in her power to sabotage our program."

"This is war, gentlemen," Reed asserted, "economic and political war, and the cost of war is importantly affected by what moves the enemy makes and what we must do to counteract them."

Urges Full $6.8 Billion

For this and other reasons, he continued, it is impossible to know within five billion dollars the ultimate cost of the program. He urged the full $6.8 billion sum, however, because of the "extreme importance of the psychological effect of what Congress does at this time."

But a witness who succeeded Reed was in sharp disagreement. Henry Hazlitt, business columnist of Newsweek, declared that "very substantial" recovery could be achieved by the European nations without any aid from the American Government.

Much more important than help from us, he insisted, was "a complete change in the internal economic policies" of the European nations.

Without such changes—and end to "socialization, nationalization, unbalanced budgets, monetary debasement, general price-fixing, ex change control, and the whole collectivist network of governmental prohibitions"—Europe will be worse off after our aid is poured in than it was before, Hazlitt stated flatly.

Hazlitt denied that either the Paris Conference or the Administration's calculations on the amount of aid needed were arrived at scientifically. Instead, he said, they are "completely arbitrary."

He urged that no money be offered to any nation which did not meet "eligibility" requirements. Those he suggested amounted, in effect, to a repeal of national economic controls.

He insisted that it would be a "great mistake" to make any commitments, actual or moral, stated or implied, for continuing the program beyond the first 15 months.

Thomas Voices Warning

In the Senate, meanwhile, Norman Thomas, perennial leader of American Socialists, said that if the program were rejected or seriously cut, democracy "will be discredited." But, he warned, an attempt to use the plan to stop democratic socialism in Europe would be "monstrous folly."

Thomas, who also pleaded for action to stop the "frantic" armament race, took time out to throw harpoons at third-party presidential candidate Henry A. Wallace.

Other testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday:

In a letter to Chairman Vandenberg (R., Mich.), Robert Moses, New York City Park Commissioner, said he thought it "entirely practical" to cut the initial outlay below the $6,800,000,000 total. But the minimum aggregate for the whole plan, he said, would be "no less" than 12 billion dollars.

Called Inadequate

George C. Tenney of San Francisco, president of the McGraw-Hill Co. of California, said Marshall Plan data on shipment of electrical products to Europe was "hopelessly inadequate." He said the United States electrica equipment industry should not be tied to a long-term commitment in Europe.

Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, urged the Marshall Plan as a step in "human kindness." Bernard Weitzer, national legislative representative of the Jewish War Veterans, backed the program as a blow against "Communist totalitarianism."

In the final month of 1947, Minnesota farm product prices were three times above their prewar level.

German Critic Fired for Speech

Frankfurt, Germany, Jan. 27 (AP). Dr. Johannes Semmler, known to Germans as an outspoken critic of occupation food policies, was fired today. He was director of economics in the British-American zone.

Semmler

British-American military government officials dismissed him for a speech at Erlangen January 4.

He has become one of the most discussed figures in German political circles since making the blunt speech in which he described subsidies for coal and iron in the Ruhr as idiotic. He called upon German politicians to stop saying "Thank you" for food sent to Germany by the Allies.

"We pay for it in dollars gained by German work and German exports and we are expected to say 'Thank you' in addition," he said.

Members of the British-American Control Office said the fact was that not one dollar of Germany's exports had been applied on the food bill.

Chinese Reds Raid Yangtze

Shanghai, Jan. 27 (U.P.).—Chinese Communist bands raided Yangtze River shipping near Nanking and Shanghai today. Some government sources expressed fear the attacks might be a prelude to a large-scale operation in the Nanking area.

Pro-government dispatches said bitter fighting was in progress at Nantung, a Yangtze port 68 miles north of Shanghai.

The battle for Manchuria raged unabated amid reports Gen. Fu Tso-yi, Nationalist commander in north China, soon would be transferred to the northeast. General Fu, often described by the Chinese press as "ever-victorious," is considered among Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's top commanders.

The fight for Hsinlitun, western gateway to Mukden, went into its fifth day. The Communists have fought their way through the streets to the central railway station, but Nationalists still hold key buildings.

Communism Study Favored By Chafee

Lake Success, Jan. 27 (AP).—Zachariah Chafee today advocated complete freedom for people in the United States to study and discuss communism.

Chafee

Chafee, professor of jurisprudence at Harvard Law School, called communism "poison" but said that he had faith that the people would be able to separate the "wheat from the tares" if given a "fair chance."

His statement to the United Nations Subcommission on Freedom of Information and of the Press drew a brief retort from Y. M. Lomakin, Soviet consul-general in New York. Lomakin said that "we do not shrink from studying capitalism in the Soviet Union but here you shrink from studying communism."

Lomakin and Chafee are sitting as "experts" chosen by the U. N. and not as government representatives. The subcommission is trying to draft a simple statement on freedom of information.

Lomakin had declared that the sale of "poisoned ideas" should be prohibited just as laws forbid the sale of poisons.

On this score Chafee said: "What is poison in one country seems to be the chief and favorite dish in another country. The poison here is communism and I have to spend a great deal of time trying to persuade people that they ought to allow communism to be put in print and to be put in oral discussions and even to be discussed in educational institutions."

Chafee added:

"In the American press I am accused of being a Communist and all I want is to have everybody given a fair chance because I believe that we can trust the people to tell what is good and what is bad and only in that way can they tell what is good and what is bad."

Profiteering Probe Asked By AFL Heads

Miami, Fla., Jan. 27 (AP).—The AFL high command today recommended limited price controls and rationing and a congressional inquiry into profiteering as part of the war on inflation.

New wage demands will be made in the spring, however, AFL President William Green reiterated, because the chances are slim for rolling back prices sufficiently to head off union cries for higher pay.

"The enemies of democracy are confidently expecting the collapse of America's economy and the consequent frustration of our efforts to preserve world peace and freedom," the executive council of 15 top AFL leaders said in a formal statement.

"In this hope, they are counting upon inflation as their most powerful ally," the council said.

The council proposed:

1. A congressional investigation of "the vast and unjustified spread between the price the farmers receive for their product and the price consumers are forced to pay for food at the retail level."

2. Enactment of an excess profits tax "to discourage indiscriminate profiteering."

3. Authority to the President to impose rationing and selective price controls.

4. Extension of rent control providing "fair returns to owners of homes and buildings."

The AFL authorized "going to the mat" with Harry Bridges' CIO longshoremen and warehousemen in Hawaii and Puerto Rico in an organizing drive for sugar and pineapple workers, Green said.

Murder Is Charged In Fatal Beating

Elko, Nev., Jan. 27 (U.P.).—Mrs. Millred Minton, 50, wife of a gambling dealer, was charged with murder today.

District Attorney Alexander L. Pucinnelli accused Mrs. Minton of beating and kicking Elizabeth Cowling, 35, so brutally yesterday that she died a short time later.

Police said the two women apparently became involved in argument over Ramon Seijo, divorced husband of the dead woman, who was present during the dispute but was not arrested.

Congressional Drive to Ban Oil Exports Opposed as 'Dangerous' by Commerce Aide

By The Associated Press

A congressional drive to embargo oil exports during the shortage of fuel oil was opposed yesterday by William C. Foster, Undersecretary of Commerce.

It would be a "very dangerous thing at this time," he told the House Commerce Committee.

He added, however, that petroleum shipments abroad have been reduced.

U. S. Shortage Conceded

He conceded that there is an oil shortage in the United States, but said this country has "a moral responsibility" to countries depending on it for oil shipments. "To stop could mean complete collapse in these countries."

The committee chairman, Representative Wolverton (R., N. J.), remarked:

"I realize there may be obligations but we can't always be as charitable as we would like to be. Our first responsibility is to those at home."

The committee had already recommended that Congress pass a law to ban oil exports. Similar legislation was introduced in the Senate by Senator Bridges (R., N. H.) As an added help in meeting the requirements at home a Senate Commerce Subcommittee suggested that the States fix new low speed driving limits to save gasoline.

Richdale Opposes Embargo

J. C. Richdale, jr., chairman of an oil industry committee surveying voluntary conservation measures, told reporters it would be "very silly" to place an embargo on oil exports. He said only a "very insignificant quantity" is being sent abroad and for the most part it is not the same type as the domestically scarce products.

Richdale's group was set up by a Senate Banking Committee headed by Senator Tobey (R., N. H., vice president of the Colonial Beacon Oil Co., Boston, reported today that progress to date in voluntary conservation measures is "pleasing." However, he warned that a gasoline shortage may develop in the spring or summer.

Ginsberg Back, Snorting Challenges to All

Isadore Ginsberg, the short, fat fellow who told Congress it couldn't stop him from making profits, is back again.

Ginsberg will testify once more before the Joint Committee on Housing today, and he zoomed into Washington last night snorting fresh challenges to one and all.

"They think they're fixing up a load of double trouble for me," boomed Mr. Ginsberg, the gypsum dealer, "but it's nothing to the trouble I've been cooking."

And then the New York dealer added stoutly:

"They can go scratch themselves."

Had Mr. Ginsberg heard reports he was being investigated by the Post Office inspectors for fraudulent use of the mails?

"That mail fraud thing? There's nothing to it . . . not a thing. Just investigating and they aren't going to find anything either."

Assistant United States District Attorney Mario Pittoni in Brooklyn, yesterday emphasized that while an investigation was being made, the Government had made no finding as to Ginsberg.

Then Mr. Ginsberg confessed that he was in the throes of composition fixing up just what he was going to say to that committee.

"Just listen to this. When I was here before they accused me of selling gypsum lathe throughout the South and the West. Well, I'm going to tell them all about what I sold right here in Washington under their own noses.

"Yes-sir, I sold 225,680 square feet of gypsum lathe to the Baltimore Lumber Co. of Washington and I bet and I sure hope some of it has gone into ther own Government buildings. Ha, ha."

738 U. S. Employes Are Named By Anderson

the Government. The list included a large number of employes of wartime agencies, such as the War Production Board, the Office of Price Adminis' tion, the Office of Strategic Services, and others, out of existence months.

Anderson also explained that many of the addresses given for persons named on the list are now incorrect. They are the addresses given when the trading accounts were opened.

Named on the list were many Army officers. Last night Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall announced the list was being studied carefully to learn:

1. If all officers had answered fully a recent Army questionnaire regarding their market operations.

2. If any officers or Army officials engaged in Army food procurement were named.

Pace, who still has to take the oath as assistant Director of the Budget, last night told newsmen he had speculated in cotton and eggs, and had made $1500 to $1700. "But certainly not as the result of any inside information," he said.

Walter S. Salant said transactions carried on in his name, were made by another member of the family who had handled investments for him and his brother since they were minors. He said he "didn't know a thing about the markets" and "had lost money."

Brown said he had made about $3700 in grain trading from April, 1945, to May, 1946. He said he had nothing to do with determining when to buy or sell, leaving all details to an investment counselor in New York.

Among the high-ranking Army officers named in the list were:

Maj. Gen. S. M. Connell, Hotel Astor, New York City.
Maj. Gen. Harry K. Rutherford, Army-Navy Club, Washington.
Brig. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, personal physician to President Truman.
Brig. Gen. Adlai H. Gilkeson, Pentagon.
Brig. Gen. W. F. Heavey, U. S. Army, 71 Washington sq., New York City.
Brig. Gen. Aubrey Hornsby, 93 Norman B rd., Montgomery, Ala.

Among the employes and officials of the Department of Agriculture outside of Washington (who are named below) were:

Ralph J. Baker, soil conservation, Lincoln, Nebr.
Charles D. Chitty, Farm Security Administration, Albany, Ga.
Salvatore J. Ciolino, New Orleans, La.

Menu Idea FOR Today
With the Fine Flavor of Blue Plate Mayonnaise

HOT TUNA SANDWICHES
Hearty enough for a main dish—and so-o tempting, with fresh, FRESH Blue Plate Mayonnaise
½ cup Blue Plate Mayonnaise
1 7-oz. can tuna fish
1 teaspoon finely minced onion
½ cup pickles, sour or dill, chopped fine
Flake tuna fish, add other ingredients, and mix well. (Blue Plate Mayonnaise adds delicious flavor to your sandwiches. It's seasoned to be just sweet enough—just tart enough. And made with the finest salad oil, blended vinegars, selected eggs and spices.) Spread mixture on slices of bread, and run under broiler 5 min. or until edges of bread begin to brown. Makes 4 open sandwiches.

Eisenhower Backer Supports Stassen

Henry D. Spalding, who helped organize the original "Draft Eisenhower for President League," came out yesterday for Harold E. Stassen.

Spalding, a Washington businessman, said he would write all Eisenhower Clubs to "go over to Stassen in a body."

Stassen Makes Bid In New Hampshire

Concord, N. H., Jan. 27 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen bid openly today for supporters of New Hampshire's "draft Eisenhower" movement.

With the candidate at his side, New Hampshire's Governor Charles M. Dale told newsmen that Stassen and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York are out front for this region's Republican delegates.

Dale said Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) is weak in New Hampshire and would not be a factor in the fight for the State's eight delegate seats.

Dale, who is running unpledged for a delegate place, was pressed by newsmen to say whether Stassen or Dewey is stronger but refused.

Yesterday, Gov. Ernest W. Gibson (R., Vt.) told reporters that Stassen and Dewey had the most support in his state and listed Gov. Earl Warren of California third, ahead of Taft in strength.

Meanwhile, Stassen revealed a change of strategy that may avoid a direct head-on clash with Dewey in the New Hampshire March 9 presidential preference primary—the first in the nation.

Stassen said his supporters would enter a slate but they would be officially unpledged. This means his name may not appear on the ballot.

Organization Leaders Gird for Ohio Fight

Columbus, Ohio Jan. 27 (AP).—Ohio Republican organization leaders put their heads together today to plan ways of keeping all the State's 53 national convention delegates in the fold for Senator Robert A. Taft.

The Ohio favorite son's preconvention campaign manager, Representative Clarence J. Brown of Ohio, declared the entrance of Minnesota's former Gov. Harold E. Stassen into Ohio's presidental primary "an out-and-out anti-organization fight" and added:

"The effect of it has been to solidify the Republican organization in Ohio. He has challenged the Republican party in this State. I don't think he can get any of the delegates."

This sentiment was expressed also by State GOP Chairman Fred H. Johnson.

Vincent Burke Nomination Is Approved

Vincent C. Burke, Washington postmaster, yesterday received unanimous indorsement of the Senate Postoffice and Civil Service Committee for his nomination to be first assistant Postmaster General.

Committee approval sent the nomination to the Senate for final action probably this week. Burke's confirmation was virtually assured by the committee vote. He will take over the job vacated by Jesse M. Donaldson when the latter was made Postmaster General.

Burke's nomination was given strong backing by several organizations in a brief hearing. Burke took the witness stand to tell about his experience, but his testimony was cut short by the motion of Senator Edward J. Thye (R., Minn.) to approve the nomination.

Indorsements were presented by William C. Armbrust, president of the United National Association of Postoffice Clerks; Thomas G. Walters, operations director of the Government Employes Council, AFL; John P. Gaynor, president of the National Association of Postal Inspectors; John A. McMahon, president of the National Association of Postal Supervisors, and Ray Talbert, executive committee member of the National Association of Postal Supervisors.

Skidding Car Hurts Women On Crosswalk

A 78-year-old woman was injured severely and another woman was hurt yesterday when a skidding automobile struck them on a crosswalk at 19th and F sts. nw. The elderly victim, Miss Fannie O. Rupert of All States Hotel, 514 19th st. nw., was admitted to Emergency Hospital in serious condition with head cuts, broken left elbow and a hip injury.

Also injured was Mrs. Rebecca Taylor, 48, of 1830 9th st. nw., who was treated for leg bruises at Emergency Hospital. Police arrested the driver, King Jinks, 23, of 1150 Sumner rd. se., for failure to yield the right of way to pedestrians at a crosswalk, and for operating a vehicle in unsafe mechanical condition, namely, defective brakes.

Two Women Injured

Two other women were injured Monday night when a skidding automobile struck them on a streetcar loading platform at 14th and W sts. nw. Police identified the driver as James H. Robinson, 49, of 1021 New Jersey ave. nw.

Injured were Elma Bennett, 27, employed at Children's hospital, who was treated at Garfield Hospital for a back injury, and Margaret B. Cullen, 36, of Meridian Hill Apartments, admitted to Garfield Hospital with possible fracture of the ribs and injuries to a shoulder and foot.

Coasting Accidents

Two 15-year-old girls were injured, one seriously, when the sled on which they were riding crashed into a moving automobile Monday night, at Texas ave. and 28th st. se.

They were taken to Providence Hospital, where the more seriously hurt, Jeanne Moore of 1712 Fort Davis St. se., was admitted suffering face cuts and a possible squll fracture.

Her companion, Kathryn Gebhard, of 2142 Branch ave. se., was treated for bruises. Police said the automobile was operated by William M. Benton, 24, of 2246 Minnesota ave. se.

In another sledding mishap Monday night, Kathleen Watts, 23, of 1717 Lamont st. nw., suffered abdominal and chest injuries when her sled crashed into a parked automobile in the 2900 block of 30th st. se. Her condition was reported as good last night at Casualty Hospital.

Jay Hull, 15, of 1617 T st. se., suffered injury to a leg Monday night, when his sled struck a parked car in the 2300 block of Green st. se. He was treated by a private physician.

Army Refutes Drunk Charges

The army reported yesterday that it has far fewer alcoholics in its ranks than there are in civilian life.

Maj. Gen. F. L. Parks, army information chief, said the army's alcoholism rate dropped from 4.61 per 1000 men in 1936 to 1.66 in 1945, and that it is still decreasing. He said reliable statistics show that the civilian rate in 1945 was 6.57 per 1000.

He sent the figure to Mrs. Leigh Colvin, president of the Women's Christian Temperence Union, who had charged that "service in the armed forces is making alcoholics of American youths." She also opposed universal miltary training on grounds that it would encourage alcoholism.

Private School Hearing Set

Steps to tighten their control over private schools in Montgomery County were taken yesterday by the county commissioners at their regular meeting.

In voting to advertise a proposed ordinance "putting teeth" into regulations covering private educational institutions, the commissioners set February 24 as the date for a hearing on the new ordinance.

Among other things, the ordinance calls for a $25 license fee plus one dollar for every paying pupil, and compulsory inspections by the building inspector, fire and health officials.

The board also yesterday heard a request from officials of the Chevy Chase Jr. College that their institution be exempted from taxes on the ground it is a nonprofit institution.

Wilton T. Allen, supervisor of assessments, told the board the school is assessed at approximately $175,000. It was estimated the tax yield would be about $3500 annually.

The Commissioners approved a $75,000 road project calling for resurfacing Plyers Mill rd. between Georgia ave. and St. Paul rd. in Kensington.

Acting County Engineer Blanton Barnett said the work would start about April 1.

Senate Committee Approves Nomination of Coy for FCC

By the United Press

The Senate Commerce Committee yesterday unanimously approved th enomination of Wayne Coy to be chairman of the Federal Communications Commission after he denied he was the "candidate" of the National Broadcasting Co.

Acting Committee Chairman Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) wrote Coy asking him to reply to charges that NBC was "particularly interested" in his appointment.

Coy replied:

"I vigorously repudiate any allegation made directly or by implication that I am the candidate of any broadcasting interest, or any communications interest."

He said he "particularly repudiated any allegation that I am the candidate of the National Broadcasting Co., or its Washington vice president, Mr. Frank Russell."

Coy is FCC chairman by interim appointment to fill out the unexpired term of former Chairman Charles R. Denny. The term expires June 30, 1951. The appointment is subject to Senate confirmation.

The committee also approved the nomination of George E. Sterling of Maine to be a Federal Communications Commissioner filling out an unexpired term ending July 1, 1950.

Trolley Hits Man, Serves as Ambulance

Philadelphia, Jan. 27 (AP).—A trolley was converted into an emergency ambulance today after hitting 53-year-old Edward Sweeney.

Motorman John McGarrity made a 5-mile run to a hospital with controls wide open, passing up riders on the way.

Schools Announce Graduation Plans

New Students to Register This Week In District, Arlington and Alexandria

Graduation exercises and registration for public school students will be held in the District, Arlington and Alexandria schools this week.

Nearly three thousand District students will receive diplomas in exercises tomorrow and Friday at the 31 high and junior high schools in the city.

Registration for new students in Washington will be held during school hours every day this week at the elementary, junior high or senior high nearest the home of the student. The new term begins Monday.

Children entering school for the first time must be five years old on or before March 15 to enroll in the kindergarten and six on or before the same date to qualify for the first grade. Vaccination and birth certificates must be presented in all cases of new students and in addition previous report cards if the student is transferring from a school outside Washington.

169 To Get Diplomas

Graduation exercises will be held in Arlington on Friday. Fifty-seven students will receive diplomas at 8 p. m. at Washington and Lee High School and 103 students will be graduated at 10 a. m. from Washington and Lee Junior High School. Thomas Jefferson Junior High School will graduate nine students in exercises at 3:15 p. m.

Registration for high school in Arlington will be held Monday. A report card or other proof of graduation from a junior high school or equivalent grades in other schools must be presented. There is no mid-year registration in elementary schools.

One hundred and twenty-one students will be graduated from the George Washington High School in Alexandria at 8 p. m. Friday.

The new school semester also will open in Alexandria on Monday. Students entering the first grade must be six on or before February 1 and must present birth and vaccination certificates.

Full Year Terms in Counties

Schools in Montgomery, Prince Georges and Fairfax counties operate on full year terms and do not have mid-year graduations or enrollments.

Registration in District night schools will be held Monday from 6:30 to 9:30 p. m. at the Bell, Central, Chamberlain, McKinley, Roosevelt, and Webster schools.

Night school registration in Alexandria will be held from 7 to 8:30 p. m. Wednesday and Thursday in the shop building of George Washington High School and the principal's office of the Parker-Gray School.

Graduation exercises in the District, scheduled tomorrow and the number of students receiving diplomas at each school are as follows:

Anacostia High, 8 p. m., 99 students; Calvin Coolidge High, 8 p. m., 129 students; Central High, 8 p. m., 108 students; Eastern High, 8 p. m., 183 students; Roosevelt High, 8 p. m., 97 students; Woodrow Wilson High, 2 p. m., 80 students; Eliot Junior High, 2 p. m., 79 students; Gordon Junior High, 2 p. m., 70 students; Jefferson Junior High, 8 p. m., 50 students; Kramer Junior High, 2 p. m., 116 students; Langley Junior High, 2 p. m., 65 students; MacFarland Junior High, 2 p. m., 75 students; Taft Junior High, 8 p. m., 75 students; Dunbar High, 2 p. m., 53 students; Browne Junior High, 11 a. m., 123 students; Garnet-Patterson Junior High, 2 p. m., 105 students; Randall Junior High, 10:30 a. m., 143 students; Terrell Junior High, 1:30 p. m., 101 students.

Western High School, 1:30 p. m., 49 students; McKinley High School, 8 p. m., 138 students; Alice Deal Junior High, 2 p. m., 97 students; Hine Junior High, 2 p. m., 77 students; Paul Junior High, 2 p. m., 149 students; Powell Junior High, 2 p. m., 43 students; Stuart Junior High, 2 p. m., 79 students; Chamberlain Vocational High, 2 p. m., 24 students; Armstrong High, 8 p. m., 124 students; Cardozo High, 8 p. m., 125 students; Banneker Junior High, 10:30 a. m., 50 students; Francis Junior High, 10:30 a. m., 79 students; Shaw Junior High, 2 p. m., 81 students.

C. & O. Canal Survey Proposed by Beall

By The Associated Press

Representative J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.) introduced a bill today authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to conduct a survey of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal between Great Falls and Cumberland, Md., to report on the advisability of a parkway along that route.

Arlington Board Asked to Pay Negro Tuition in D. C. Schools

The Arlington County School Board last night was asked to pay tuition for county Negro pupils attending District schools.

Attorney Leon A. Ramsom, representting the Arlington branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, estimated that about 500 Arlington junior and senior Negro high students are crossing to the District for their education.

Terming this a "very serious problem, he asked that the board resume paying the tuition of these students as ti did during the winter of 1946-47.

The Negro attorney, who also is representing a county school girl, Constance Carter, in her suit to gain admission to the white Washington-Lee High School, declared that educational facilities in the Hoffman-Boston School for Negroes one not on a par with those offered white pupils.

At one point in his appeal to the board, Ramsom said: "If you do not continue last year's practice, I will have to go into court and ask that you be compelled to do so."

Baltimore, Jan. 27 (AP).—The Army Engineers announced today a hearing will be held February 9 at Annapolis on a petition to establish restricted areas in the Severn river and Carr creek in the vincinity of Annapolis.

March 1 Is Deadline On Production Program

Manassas, Va., Jan. 27.—Prince William County farmers wishing to participate in the program of the county's Production and Marketing Administration Committee must sign with the committee no later than March 1, Chairman A. P. Lewis has announced. The county's 1948 allocation for soil conservation practices has been drastically cut, with only $19,813 available in comparison to $39,900 for 1947.

Md. Fire Hazards Conference Topic

The necessity of obtaining support of the general public of Maryland in fire prevention, fighting of blazes in rural areas and other subjects relating to the hazard will be studied today at the Governor's fire prevention conference.

The meeting, to be held in the University of Maryland fire service extension building, College Park, Md., will include addresses by Governor Lane, State Insurance Commissioner Claude A. Hanley, Dr. Alfred Fleming of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, and President Charles R. Stallings of the Maryland State Firemen's Association.

Group meetings are planned in the afternoon, and a summary of proposals made at the conference will be given by Philip J. Ryan, executive director of the Maryland Fire Safety Committee.

"We had a few qualms about taking our baby on an air trip—but the wonderful Eastern Air Lines' service on the New-Type Constellation took care of that. The attendant removed the arm rests and we had a grand couch for baby and ourselves to enjoy the fully smooth quiet flight."

"My job of Flight Engineer is handling many intricate and technical details concerned with engine control. This relieves the Captain and the Pilot to devote their full attention to flying and navigating. It's an exclusive New-Type Constellation feature."
Flight Engineer B. V. Bentzlin

"This was an important trip for us—our honeymoon. Imagine going from winter to summer in just a few hours—and being treated like royalty all the way! The service was excellent... and the New-Type Constellation is so smooth and quiet it's hard to believe you're flying."

"That 10,000 horsepower—more power than any other airliner, certainly makes a difference in speed and dependability. The New-Type Constellation flies, takes off and lands with greater ease ...it's a pilot's dream of an airplane."
Captain Paul Foster

More than a year ago our engineers had some solid facts and figures that told us what we might expect from Eastern's New-Type Constellation in performance.

Now, after nine months of continuous scheduled service, Eastern's New-Type Constellations have flown over 300,000,000 passenger miles. This great fleet has proven to our passengers and the men who fly them to be the most dependable airliners in the world.

Our passengers tell us every day how much they appreciate the comfort, the luxury, the dependability of our New-Type Constellations. They confirm our judgment that these airliners are the finest in the world today.

Poor Weather Man

Far be it from us to add to the woes of that much maligned individual, the weather forecaster. More in sorrow than in anger, however, we are forced to note that with respect to Washington weather several forecasts of late have not been what may be described as precisely on the beam. One day last week, for example, we were adjured to be prepared for six inches of snow. No snow. Friday night we were told that Saturday would be sunny and cold. Instead we were subjected to a howling blizzard that brought the most snow of the season. Actually the Weather Bureau did change its mind and predict snow in a special forecast early Saturday, but this was too late for publication.

To be sure, the Weather Bureau can reply that it doesn't make the weather, but merely seeks to interpret it. Local forecasters can explain, with a note of envy in their voices, that such places as Phoenix and Los Angeles have fairly constant conditions, so that forecasts there can be pretty accurate, whereas the Eastern section of the country is peculiarly susceptible to storms. They add, parenthetically, that most of our traditional "northeasters" actually come from the southwest. Moreover, they can register a countercomplaint against those individuals, meaning the general public, who note only when forecasts are wrong, not when they're right. For example, over a several-year period, predictions as to general conditions have averaged 83 per cent accurate in Washington, and temperature predictions have come within 3½ degrees. The knowledge that the weather man may have been right in a number of particulars and wrong in only one, however, is not likely to mollify the man who, with implicit faith, puts on his automobile chains for a snow that evades us or, conversely, takes them off only to have a blizzard descend.

At that, however, the weather man may be pardoned for now and then mixing his isotherms with his barometric pressures. It must be a great temptation to overcompensate forecastically for previous errors that would invite an inferiority complex in less austere mortals. Indeed, in several areas the Weather Bureau has actually sought to humanize its predictions with such concessions to public sentiment as "Moonlight night—beautiful for canoeing." To the credit of the local prognosticators, they seem to have their skirts dry on one issue: at least they have not committed the egregious sin of forecasting fine weather for their annual picnic only to have the prediction soured by the inevitable rain.

In essence there are two conclusions to be made about the weather man's role: first, the Weather Bureau is no place for persons with sensitive skins, and it is really remarkable, when you come to think of it, that there are men who are willing to make forecasts at all; and second, when the weather prophets do make a blunder, at least locally, it is likely to be a lulu.

Inside Speculators

The Department of Agriculture has announced suspension of three employes and investigation of a half dozen more who speculated in commodities respecting which they "might" have had inside information. Is it not a patent fact that every employe of the Department of Agriculture "might" have had inside information advantageous to commodity speculation? He "might" have seen advance crop reports or forecasts. He "might" have been told something about crop prospects in confidence. He "might" through the nature of his work have access to seemingly irrelevant information which, coupled with knowledge generally available and made meaningful to him through his special understanding of the market, could give him a clue to the trend of commodity prices. Such possibilities make it clear, we think, that no member of the Department of Agriculture—no member of any Federal agency comparably situated—should be allowed to speculate whether his speculation be guided by inside information or not.

There are three arguments against speculation by Government employes so obvious that they ought to be comprehensible even to so stubborn a mind as Ed Pauley's: (1) a man engaged in speculation is not a man devoting his whole time and attention to his job; (2) a man engaged in speculation cannot have that disinterestedness which is indispensable to the proper formulation or discharge of Government policy; (3) a man engaged in speculation cannot enjoy the confidence of his colleagues since they can never be sure that he will not take advantage of some careless remark, some casual revelation about departmental affairs. A man may be completely honorable but he still does not belong in the Government if he speculates any more than an honorable judge belongs on the bench in a case concerning which he "might" be biased or have an interest.

Senators Morse and Taylor have announced that they will introduce a bill to require all top Government employes to file annual statements setting forth the amount and sources of all of their outside income and all dealings in securities and commodities. A year ago they asked the Senate to adopt an amendment to its rules requiring all Senators to make such disclosures; that proposal was not even accorded a committee hearing. Such standards of probity may seem old fashioned; but they would do much to enhance popular confidence in the Government. They would, of course, subject speculators, whether in the executive or legislative branch of the Government, to disclosure. That would suffice, we should think, to prevent speculation by Federal employes.

Documentary War

Release of the Russo-German papers may be the beginning of a documentary fight with the Soviet Union. You may be sure that the Muscovites have got plenty of material on hand to make an embarrassing riposte. All the archives in Prague, for instance, are at their disposal, and they could add many a footnote to the Munich sellout. What was done to Czechoslovakia is just as noxious as what was done to Poland. Maybe, if the story of the midnight visit in Prague is borne out, there will be some red faces in the Western countries. It is said that on September 30, 1938, the day after the Munich conference, the British and French ministers told Benes that if Czechoslovakia did not accept the partition, then Britain and France would line up with Germany. The part that Mr. Roosevelt played behind the scenes still remains to be told, though whether anything on this subject is available in Prague and Moscow is doubtful.

However, two wrongs don't make a right, and a tu quoque will not exculpate the Russians. All that the Russians could do is explain the provocation of Munich. Stalin thereafter began to fear a British-German combination, and the fear persisted even after Britain went to war with Germany after the latter's invasion of Poland. He shared with the late Senator Borah, in other words, the conviction that the war was a phony one. So he sought with might and main to make sure of a "safety belt" for himself, if not to assure that there would be no British-German combination. This is the reason he dickered with the British and then with the Germans. With the British he was unsuccessful, for Stalin's request was too outrageous for consideration; he asked permission to take over the entire Baltic, including Finland. When the British turned him down, he shifted the conversations to Germany. From Germany he got what the British had refused.

What is most interesting is that the Germans and the Russians made their pact with different motives. Von Ribbentrop signed up with Moscow for the purpose of frightening Britain into giving Germany a free hand against Poland. This is said to be borne out in the memoirs of von Ribbentrop, written while in jail, which are said to be under lock and key in the State Department. It is surprising that Hitler was persuaded. In Mein Kampf he wrote, "The present rulers of Russia do not at all think of entering an alliance or of keeping one." But he had absorbed the lesson of the first World War against a two-front campaign. His decision to try to fix the Russians was taken, according to von Ribbentrop, after a long, hard look at Stalin's face in a movie on Russia. "I can trust that man," he said. The gamble that the pact would immobilize the British proved to be terribly wrong. And Stalin knew that Hitler had miscalculated. Stalin signed the pact with Hitler on the supposition that the British would live up to their Polish pact and so go to war with Germany when Poland was invaded and that then he could collect his part of the bargain with Hitler.

This is not an argument against making the history of our times available. Of late we have pleaded for the opening of the archives to the present instead of a future generation, to outsiders as well as official insiders. But there is room for argument as to the advisability of officially making these particular documents tools of propaganda in all the disreputable circumstances.

Specialist Reserve

Never in its history has the country been in greater need of men of high talent in administrative positions. The European Recovery Program, aid to Greece and Turkey, the enlarged foreign information program—these are measures the success of which will depend in no small degree on the competence with which our policy is carried out at operating levels. Yet while the Government is scratching for qualified personnel, there are plenty of persons in private industry with the wartime experience and other attributes for which the Government is looking. The problem is how to induce them to accept public service during the emergency that still exists. This problem is of sufficient magnitude to demand congressional as well as Administration concern.

One proposal for resolving the dilemma has come from a group of nine private citizens with wartime service in the Government. They suggest the establishment of a State Department Specialist Reserve Corps to enlist the services of experts from private life both for the State Department and for other governmental agencies. This proposal would overcome the stumbling block of Government salary ceilings by permitting reservists to accept supplemental compensation from their private employers. The idea is to create a corps of approximately 10 times the number of men who would be needed in any one year, thus making it possible for an individual to decline service if it would cause hardship. Employers would be asked to encourage qualified employes to accept reserve commissions and to grant leaves of absence for temporary service. The hope is that membership in the corps would carry sufficient prestige to be in itself an inducement for joining.

In a sense the specialist corps would be merely an amplification of the reserve set up by the Foreign Service Act of 1946. This reserve is working well, within the limitations of salary ceilings, but it is primarily a vehicle for use of the State Department. The objective is to enlarge the scope of this reserve, possibly by amendment of the 1946 act, to provide a pool of talent for all governmental departments. This will be of particular importance if the agency for administering the Marshall Plan is outside the State Department proper. The first step in providing such a pool is to impress upon Congress and especially upon the business leaders whose cooperation would be essential the consequences of a continued personnel famine in the Government.

Stassen's Invasion

Harold E. Stassen, who has gained something of a reputation for attacking Republican sacred cows, has again resorted to the unorthodox by entering the May 5 Ohio presidential primary. It has been generally accepted that Ohio is the personal province of Senator Taft and that the Ohio delegation is pledged to support his candidacy for the Republican nomination. Not since 1920 has an Ohio favorite son been challenged on his home ground. Governor Stassen explains his unusual action by noting that the Ohio primary is the only place where there can be a clean-cut test of his differences with Mr. Taft on foreign and domestic policy, since Senator Taft's name has not been entered in other State contests—though, as a result of Stassen's invasion of Ohio, Taft forces have voiced their intention to counterattack in Nebraska. In this connection it is perhaps significant that Mr. Stassen has refrained from filing in New York, a fact which may be read either as indicating a possible rapprochement between Stassen and Thomas E. Dewey or a recognition by Stassen that the New York delegation is sewed up tight.

It is hard to believe that Mr. Stassen entertains any serious notion of capturing the Ohio delegation. If that is his purpose, then he seems to have deliberately chosen to butt his head into a stone wall—something, incidentally, that he has done elsewhere, in, for example, the Pauley expose, where his failure to give specific information invites the charge of political mudslinging. Of Ohio's 53 Republican delegates, at the most 8 are regarded as possible Stassen adherents. That is hardly enough to set any wild Stassen hopes in motion, though Mr. Stassen may view the Ohio primary as a sounding board by which to enhance his standing in other States. In any event, it is obvious that there can be no genuine test either of Stassen-Taft differences or of relative strength in Ohio. In other words, what is likely to ensue is a slugging match without any real meaning. That is regrettable, for Mr. Taft and Mr. Stassen represent the extremes in viewpoint among GOP presidential aspirants, and a broad determination of the issues within the party in advance of the convention is certainly something to be desired.

Speak For Democracy

The four high school girls to whom Attorney General Clark will today present awards as winners of the "Voice of Democracy" competition are honored visitors in the Capital. They topped some 20,000 contestants in all parts of the country, boys among them although one would never suspect it from the outcome, to win trips to Washington and $500 scholarships in a contest sponsored by the National Association of Broadcasters, the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Radio Manufacturers Association. The contest as whole afforded reassurance as to the soundness of democracy in this country at the grass roots. Each contestant made a 5-minute speech, "I Speak For Democracy." They spoke not alone with fervor but with a maturity of outlook and a sense of the significance of their subject that went entirely beyond the conventions of patriotism. We congratulate the winners, Laura Shatto, Janet Geister, Alice Wade Tyree and Rose Ellen Mudd, on their triumph—and even more on their understanding of the richness of their heritage.

WE SHALL BE STRONG

We shall be strong. What matter if the fight
At first seem to the enemy? We know
That we have weapons he may never show,
Torches that burn against the ugly night.
We need no whips, no steel, to lash and bite;
Our valor is not bred of fear. Our foe
Must use the goad of torture, but we go
Clad in the courage that is born of right.

This is our triumph over him, before
We bring him to his knees, the day is ours
Whose weapon is such priceless liberty.
Not lashed and threatened do we go to war,
But with high heads, knowing our greatest powers
Spring from our faith and deathless unity.

"Clay's Localitis"

In your editorial of January 22 you said: "General Clay is one of the ablest administrators and one of the most supple negotiators of America's disposition." Why then should he have "an acute attack of localitis"? Because he has been living among the experts, both American and German, and understands more about European interrelations and the interwoven fabric of European economy than do the "experts" of our State Department who are still more or less under the influence of the wishful thinking of Morgenthauism.

Your editorial acknowledged that western Europe can recover only with the aid of Europe's workshop. Prior to the war, this workshop was by no means just the Ruhr basin. It was the whole German industry. But German industry (purged from war industry and supervised for years to come) never will recover if the wishful thinking of those different nationalistic reactionary minorities, which happen to rule temporarily in France and Holland and Belgium, succeed in making a bargain out of a victory.

The French do not grumble over "overcentralization." They grumble because their Louis XIV policy of dismemberment of Germany as a nation will be blocked definitely if a modicum of German unification is restored. Unfortunately the French government, squeezed from the dictatorial De Gaulle wing and at the same time, from the powerful Communist wing, seems to be powerless to stop the policy of further destruction of German economy.

France, the leading cultural nation of Europe for centuries and slated to become the core of a United States of Europe, will be the first nation to suffer from her insane policy of complete dismemberment of Germany, for the Germans, hopeless and destitute as they are, will turn to the nation which promises them national unity, i. e., Russia.

It is true that part of the Ruhr basin trade went through the ports of Belgium and Holland. However, in those days the trade from eastern Germany and Czechoslovakia went through the port of Hamburg and Bremen was the cotton staple harbor for the whole of Europe. If now the Dutch nationalists have their way in suffocating the port of Emden and the Belgians lead the trade of the Ruhr basin to Antwerp (after the Russians already have cut off Hamburg from the whole eastern German trade), how can anyone hope to rebuild and reconstruct a German economy which enables the Germans to feed themselves and which enables the American taxpayer to stop paying for Germany? It so happens that Clay's plans seem to be the only way to achieve the working economy of Europe which is the object of the Marshall Plan.

Gallinger Investigation

As a former staff member at Gallinger Hospital, I am very much interested in the present controversy regarding the inadequate food being served the patients in the tuberculosis department of that hospital. From personal observation of the food and its preparation and service to patients in the TB building in 1944, I can substantiate statements made by the present chief of the tuberculosis department.

Although the best food may be purchased in the open market by the District government for Gallinger patients, due to its indifferent cooking and service to the patients in the TB wards, it is practically inedible by sick persons, many far advanced and bedridden.

To my knowledge about half of the food served to TB patients is returned uneaten due to the fact it is served cold and unpalatable for sick persons many of whom are running a daily temperature. Only in the most desperately ill cases are special diets or suitable food served upon request, and sometimes after threats of relatives who visit patients during meal hours.

As the present staff physicians are unable to effect improvement in the preparation and service of the food, which is just as much a part of their duties as clinical treatment of the disease, I suggest a thorough congressional investigation of the TB and mental departments of Gallinger Hospital to determine responsibility for the existing conditions in both departments, and to correct the distressing needs affecting so many helpless patients. Truman's Porch

So much fuss is being made about the porch the President wants by the Commission on Fine Arts that it is disgusting. Why shouldn't the President have it built if he feels it is for his comfort? A President's job, you know as well as I do, is man-killing. The Arts Commission must be thinking the whole building is being rebuilt. I would like to tell them to go home and relax or devote some of their talents to the Gallinger Hospital, where they are needed. So let's give the President the porch. And I'm a Republican, too.

Segregated Schools

The recent proposal of the Governors of the Southern States, having separate school systems for Negroes and whites, to set up regional professional schools is regrettable. It indicates that these executive heads of their respective States, supposedly responsive to the will of all the people, will grasp at any straw, however frail, in their effort to postpone the abolition of segregation.

Anyone aware of the existing law on the subject can readily perceive that such regional schools can hardly comply with the constitutional requirements enunciated in the Gaines case or the Sipuel case by the Supreme Court. If, as the court said, the State must furnish colored applicants professional training in a State institution, how can it be said that a school outside of the jurisdiction of the State and outside of its borders ever could be a State institution? Clearly it cannot.

The only logical solution to the problem, since the fiscal affairs of the States involved will not permit of two adequate, modern graduate and professional school systems, is to admit qualified Negroes to existing State schools.

It is submitted that the millennium would not occur as a result of such and that American prestige in international affairs would rise as a result.

Case For Home Rule

In reply to Mr. Eisenhart's letter of January 22, may I say that although a large number of civic-minded citizens have been campaigning for the vote in the District of Columbia for many years, the real impetus to the movement for home rule and reorganization was given by the Joint Committee on the Organization of Congress (the La Follette-Monroney Committee) two years ago when it reported that "more time is consumed (by Congress) in serving as a city council for the District of Columbia than is spent on matters of great importance to the Nation," and recommended that "'Congress divest itself of the duty of governing the District of Columbia and provide for a referendum on adoption of self-government by city charter."

A bill to set up a commission to prepare such a charter failed of passage last year, but meanwhile the Auchincloss Subcommittee made an intensive study of the situation and has produced for congressional action a self-government charter based on the council-manager plan, which is in successful operation in some 800 municipalities throughout the country, with modifications to adapt it to the peculiar situation in the District of Columbia, where no government exists on the level of State governments, and Congress has all the powers of a State Legislature.

This charter bill would restore democracy to the District by providing it with a local government elected by and responsible to the people. It would relieve Congress of the unnecessary work load of acting as a city council. Mr. Eisenhart's comment relative to the determination of the amount of the Federal payment is not pertinent, because the bill provides an automatic formula to measure this amount.

More important, however, is that it would give the citizens of the Nation's Capital the kind of a government our forefathers intended they should have, and which they did have up to 74 years ago, when they sold their birthright of self-government for a mess of pottage in the form of a 50 per cent contribution by the Federal Government toward the annual expenses of the District. The pottage has been gone long since, and only the mess remains, in the form of a "crazy-quilt" government in which municipal functions are splintered among some 48 Federal agencies and 20 quasi-independent boards and commissions, without centralized control or responsibility. By no stretch of the imagination can this setup be said to be either efficient or economical.

The real objection to this bill, behind the smokescreen of misrepresentation of facts and quibbling over details, is that it would give the citizens of Washington the right to vote, and this objection stems from the fear some persons have of the operation of the democratic process here. It is a sad commentary on the intelligence and patriotism of some American citizens residing at the seat of the Government of the United States that they prefer to be deprived of their basic and fundamental American right of local self-government rather than be exposed to the necessity of assuming the burdens of citizenship.

As the subcommittee well said in its report: "The paternal guidance of a benevolent Congress, however beneficial to the District, is not a satisfactory alternative to self-rule by the people." This home-rule bill is a challenge to the citizens of Washington. If they refuse to accept this challenge they will deserve to be classed with the insane, the incompetent and the criminals, who are denied the franchise because of their own shortcomings.

Yankee Culture Bugbear

Exported Glamour

IN THE DAYS when commercial glamour was in its cruder stages, men were wont to complain that all women fresh from beauty shops looked exactly alike. Now as American lipsticks, permanent waves and nylons spread to remote parts of the globe, the complaint is rising that women everywhere are being regimented outwardly into the American mold.

This is part of a more general fear in many foreign countries, that "Yankee culture," as expressed by movies, picture magazines, chewing gum, juke boxes, cosmetics, gadgets, go-getting salesmen, will smother the universe.

One of the tensest moments in the recent UNESCO (United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization) conferences at Mexico City arose over such a charge. And when William Benton, head of the United States delegation, declared in an interview that this country was not trying to impose its culture on anyone, Mexico City papers gave the statement big play.

Right now beauty "culture" is the issue as a big export program for cosmetics gets under way. With American women curtailing cosmetic buying as grocery bills mount, manufacturers of lipsticks, lotions, dental creams, are pushing their sales abroad.

SIMULTANEOUSLY women in many newly opened areas of the world are reaching out eagerly for American packaged glamour. The craze in China for permanent waves led to these being taxed in Peiping. In one Communist city girls wearing lipstick were rounded up and their lips smeared with ink. The Nationalist government is reported planning an anti-glamour campaign to hold down luxury spending.

Some hard-shelled leaders in Eastern and Near Eastern countries fear their women, through cosmetic aids, will turn into caricatures of American women. In some backward countries men are alarmed that nylons and permanents will impel women toward political self-assertion. Significantly, as cosmetic exporters are looking to a big business in Indian and Pakistan, Indian feminists say they are assured their new constitution will give women equal rights with men and abolish plural marriages.

Just as women throughout much of the world have been making historic strides politically, so cosmetic exports have been expanding. But these trends may not be related, since the cosmetic business has been booming everywhere. In the United States sales rose 100 million dollars in the four years, 1943 to 1947. That, according to manufacturers, was in sharp contrast to sales between 1927 and 1943. And cosmetic exports were only 7 million dollars in 1939, but 24 million in 1946.

However, much of this buying was from wartime prosperity in the United States and in Latin-American and other countries not ravaged by war. It also had a psychological basis—the frantic emphasis on feminine allure that war inspires.

IN THIS COUNTRY the glamour craze is subsiding somewhat, owing to the high cost of living. But lipstick and permanent - wave glamour has fresh appeal to millions of women to whom it is a novelty. Cosmetic exporters look to trade in such places as Siam, Thailand, Indo-China, Lebanon, Guam, Iran and Tangiers.

Returned travelers report women in many remote places are pathetically eager for the lives of freedom and luxury they think all American women have. To them the permanent wave and nylon hose are symbols of such a way of life.

But American "culture" of this nature is feared in those countries not only by the tribal fathers but also by some intellectuals. The latter think this superficial imitation of American life will lead to disillusionment and will prove an entering wedge for a wider "Americanization" that will efface native cultures.

Those who have these fears should be reminded that American culture is known abroad largely for its superficial products. But there seems no urgent danger that these will efface whatever is genuinely good in native cultures anywhere.

Unbalanced Demand

The full-page advertisement of Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane in your January 22 issue was very impressive. Their lucid explanation of the workings of commodity exchanges is a valuable contribution to public understanding of this complicated matter.

It is clear from this account that the commodity exchange is an admirable mechanism for insuring that the farmer receives for his wheat exactly what the market will bear. Unfortunately, we are faced by the unpleasant fact that, in the words of Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane, "Never in history have supply and demand been so badly out of gear."

I wonder whether our farmers, who are already effectively protected by the Government's price support program, really need so perfect a mechanism for taking advantage of the present unbalanced demand situation. I'm afraid I rather envy those Canadians and Britishers who, through the "colossal blundering" of the Canadian Wheat Board, could purchase wheat at $1.55 per bushel.

Perhaps our inflationary threat would be a little less serious if we could pull a few price boners like the Canadians and give a little less protection to farmers and a little more protection to consumers. MYRTLE BRICKMAN.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

The Cloud Like A Hand

THE FIRST EVIDENCE that the Soviet Union may be faltering in the course that has plunged the world into political and economic war is now in the hands of the American Government. It suggests that the so-called hard policy, for which Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov is generally given credit, may be reconsidered by the Politburo if and when the European Recovery Program passes the Congress.

The apparent reason for this possibility is the fact that the resources of the Soviet state are already strained to the utmost, making it unwise for the Soviets to continue the present contest when American resources have been fully mobilized on the other side. In other words, when the strength of the United States is brought to the task of rebuilding western Europe, the strength of the Soviets will be insufficient to carry through their imperialist plans. Being realistic men, the members of the Politburo will then abandon the attempt to do what is beyond their strength and seek to make a settlement on the best terms they can get.

In short, we are in the position of Elijah, during his celebrated praying match with the prophets of Baal, when the little cloud like a man's hand at last appeared on the horizon. If at the moment Elijah had suddenly lost faith and joined the Baal worshipers, one suspects that the Lord might peevishly have withheld the rain. But he went right on praying, and after the ensuing downpour Elijah agreeably indulged himself in a general massacre of the pro-Baal faction. The Soviets are anxiously waiting to see whether we are as persistent as Elijah. If the cloud, which is the European Recovery Program, turns out to be the real thing, they will ask for terms rather than risk the misfortune of Baal's prophets. Consequently, far more now hangs upon the action of the Senators and Representatives than the Congress even vaguely conceives.

THEY HAVE held out interesting indications of the often-rumored Politburo division on Soviet foreign policy. There have even been hints that the test of the validity of the Molotov view will be congressional action on ERP. Anyone who has had the experience of talking to Soviet officials or Communist leaders abroad knows one of their cardinal arguments is that "You Americans are so changeable. You will never carry through the job you have started." Apparently, ERP is to be the test of the sticking power of the United States.

Finally, the suggestive evidence of the episodes above mentioned is further supported by other signs and portents. One such portent is the recent behavior of the Soviet Embassy in Washington. Where his predecessor was almost cloistered, Ambassador Panyushkin is behaving much more like a normal diplomat, giving interviews, paying calls upon American officials, and in general making himself much more accessible.

His most notable and surprising call was at the office of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, who has long been one of the leading devils of the capitalist hell, as daily pictured in the Soviet press. In a system like the Soviet system, this sort of thing has real meaning.

In all this, of course, there is nothing to run up on the roof and cheer about. In the first place, the Congress seems entirely likely to mangle ERP beyond recognition, in which case present Soviet policy will be pursued unchanged and with much greater assurance. In the second place, even if the Soviets eventually change their policy and seek a settlement, many further proofs of American sticking power will have to be offered before any acceptable settlement can be made.

Nevertheless, what has happened should give greatly increased confidence that we are on the right line if we only stick to it.

Constructive Wing In The GOP

TALKING before the Republican majority of the Senate the other day, Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio expressed the kind of bland optimism that some of his colleagues find almost as hard to take as the scoldings which their leader occasionally gives them. Taft said he understood that prices were beginning to level off.

Childs

"Yeah — the price of mink coats and diamond wrist watches," one of the anti-Taft Republicans in the back row muttered.

The split in the Senate majority over the issue of inflation and what to do about it has sharpened the differences between the two factions as never before.

On the one hand are the stalwarts who follow Taft and Senator Kenneth Wherry of Nebraska. They believe in sitting tight, confident that they can unload the blame for higher and higher prices on the Truman Administration.

On the other side are such Senators as Ralph Flanders of Vermont, Raymond Baldwin of Connecticut and Irving Ives of New York. They believe that their party, as the majority party in Congress, must take responsibility.

Flanders has introduced a bill providing that all the machinery for meat rationing be set up ready to go into operation if it should prove necessary in the spring. Senators Ives and Baldwin have put in a rent-control bill that would extend controls until June 30, 1949. It would give both tenants and landlords the right of appeal locally and nationally where hardship is claimed.

THESE REPUBLICANS have been increasingly aware of the way inflation is pinching the average American. They know how the cost of food in the average family budget has climbed and climbed until it absorbs nearly half of the income of the low-wage groups. The fact that prices of luxuries may be leveling off, which is doubtful in any event, while prices for necessities continue to rise sounds like very sad news, since it could be the herald of depression.

The difference between the two Republican wings is not confined to details of legislation. It gets down to the basic approach to politics in this election year.

The Flanders - Ives - Baldwin faction believes in a constructive approach. They think that the American people respond to the constructive rather than to the destructive attack. In this connection the remark attributed to the late Wendell Willkie on the subject of Herbert Hoover is recalled:

"Unfortunately Mr. Hoover allows his thinking to be dominated by Mr. Roosevelt."

This same charge is made today against the Taft-Wherry leadership. Critics in the Senate say that they wait to see what the Administration decides and then they oppose it. In other words, they have not outgrown the kind of negative opposition which typified the Republican stand all through the New Deal era.

IVES and Baldwin have particularly strong feelings on this score. Each in his own State demonstrated what can be done with a constructive approach.

As Republican leader in the Legislature in Albany, Ives shaped a constructive program that won elections for his party. He sponsored and pushed to adoption measures such as New York's fair employment practices law.

In Connecticut, Baldwin followed the same tack. In his first campaign for the governorship in 1938, he refrained from exploiting the scandals of the Democratic administration. He talked instead about what his party could do to make Connecticut a better State, and he won the election.

Naturally it is not just politics and the chances for '48 that concern these conscientious Senators. They are fearful of what a bad deflationary bust could do to the country and the world.

The cost of living is still moving sharply upward. In a preliminary report on the change from November to December of last year, the Bureau of Labor Statistics showed that the cost of living index had moved up more than 1 per cent in a month —which is a drastic change. The experts who compile the index see nothing to alter the upward trend. They talk of explosive possibilities in certain foods, particularly meat, with the explosion related to crop conditions here and in Europe.

Constructive action by Congress might put a period to the spiral. It is such constructive action that the Flanders-Baldwin-Ives wing is urging. They insist it is not enough merely to pile the blame on the other side in an effort to come to power by default.

The Story of a Friendship

Molotov Wary When Hitler Offered to Divide World

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

(This is the third in a series of articles based on the captured German documents, published by the State Department, on Nazi-Soviet relations from 1939 to 1941.)

Now the Nazis were ready for a supreme effort to lure Russia into their alliance with Italy and Japan. The date was November 12, 1940.

Molotov, sitting opposite Ribbentrop in the Berlin Foreign Office, was wary. He could hardly have suspected what German generals have since disclosed—that on July 29, after the fall of France, Hitler announced an immediate attack on Russia, but was dissuaded by Goering and the general staff.

At all events Molotov said little, while Ribbentrop pictured Germany as invincible, Britain already beaten, America powerless to help.

The time had come, the Nazi said, to establish spheres of influence for the period after the war.

View of the Future

Japan had already turned south, and would need centuries to consolidate her territorial gains. Germany would also expand in central Africa, toward the former German colonies. Italy's expansion was toward north and east Africa. Ribbentrop then wondered whether Russia in the long run would not also turn to the south for the natural outlet to the sea that was so important to Russia."

Which sea? Molotov asked.

The Persian Gulf and the Arabian Sea, Ribbentrop replied. And he wondered whether "certain other aspirations of Russia in this part of Asia—in which Germany was completely disinterested—could not also be realized."

Molotov knew the conversation was just a curtain-raiser for a talk with Hitler later in the day. He was careful not to commit himself or his master in the Kremlin. He said the Ribbentrop statement had been of "great interest" to him, but he wanted to know more, especially about the meaning of Japan's "Greater East Asian Sphere." He said "particular vigilance" was needed in delimiting spheres of influence. He dropped one hint that the establishment of German and Soviet spheres of influence in eastern Europe the year before had been "only a partial solution, which had been rendered obsolete and meaningless by recent circumstances and events, with the exception of the Finnish question, which he would discuss later."

Hitler and Molotov

When the talk was resumed, with Hitler confronting Molotov for the first time, the Fuehrer tried a new tack. Russia and Germany, he said, "need not by nature have any conflict of interests, if each nation understood that the other required certain vital necessities without the guarantee of which its existence was impossible." Besides, both countries had systems of government "which did not wage war for the sake of war, but which needed peace more than war in order to carry on their domestic tasks." With due regard for vital needs, especially in the economic field, it should really be possible to achieve a settlement between them.

Molotov entirely agreed.

Germany was at war, while Russia was not, Hitler went on; many of Germany's actions had been influenced by the fact that she was fighting. By and large, both countries had gained great advantages from their pact, and their collaboration during the past year had been of considerable value to both countries.

Molotov said this was quite correct.

Probably neither of the two peoples had realized its wishes 100 per cent, Hitler went on, but even a 20 to 25 per cent realization of demands was worth a good deal. In any case "the two greatest peoples of Europe" could gain more by working together than against each other. If they worked against each other, third countries would be the sole gainers.

Molotov thought this argument was quite correct and would be confirmed by history, and was especially applicable to the present situation.

Poised for Final Blow

Hitler next pictured the military position, with Germany "poised for the great and final blow against England" as soon as weather permitted.

Germany had acquired such large territories already that she would need a hundred years to develop them, but she also needed some colonial expansion in Africa, a certain supply of raw materials, and assurance against hostile air and naval bases "in certain areas." Russian interests would not be affected; the Russian empire could develop without in the least prejudicing German interests.

Molotov said this last statement was quite correct.

It was perfectly obvious, Hitler went on, that Germany and Russia could never become one world. Both would always exist separate from each other as two powerful elements of the world. Each could shape its future as it likes, if in so doing it considered the interests of the other.

In Asia Germany had no specific interests; in Europe Germany wanted to get out of the North Sea, Italy to remove the barrier of Gibraltar, Russia to reach "the ocean." Possible conflict over these aims should be settled now. As for the Balkans, Germany was there only for military reasons. Britain and France, having continued the war, would have to pay the cost, because war was an expensive way of attaining goals, even for the victor.

Molotov remarked that in any case it was vastly more expensive to attain a goal by military measures than by peaceful means.

Attack on United States

Hitler next launched into an attack on the United States, which was "pursuing an imperialistic policy" and "trying to get the British Empire into its grasp." The Europeans had to act jointly to keep the Anglo-Saxons off the continent of Europe. For example, Germany would at once oppose any British attempt to get a foothold at Salonika, in Greece.

In what way was Salonika a danger? Molotov asked.

Because the Romanian oil fields were nearby, Hitler answered, and Germany wanted to "protect" them under all circumstances. How did Russia plan to safeguard her interests in the Black Sea and the Straits? he asked.

Molotov answered cautiously that Hitler's statements had been of a general nature, and he could agree in general with their reasoning. He also thought it would be in the interest of the two countries to collaborate and not to fight each other.

With a reminder that everything he was saying was identical with Stalin's own views, Molotov repeated that both partners had gained substantial advantages from the pact of 1939. The agreement could be regarded as fulfilled except for Finland, and on this he asked whether the agreement, putting Finland in the Soviet sphere, was still in force.

"New Order" In Europe

Moreover, what was the meaning of the New Order in Europe, and what was Russia's role in it to be? Russia would be "interested" in the "tempo and form" of this New Order, and in the proposed boundaries of the Greater East Asian Sphere, but first there were issues to be clarified regarding Russia's Balkan and Black Sea interests in Bulgaria, Romania and Turkey.

Hitler tried to assure his visitor that no settlement would be made, in Europe or Asia, without Soviet cooperation. The object was one of "opposing any attempt on the part of America to 'make money on Europe.'" The United States, he said, had no business in Europe, in Africa, or in Asia.

Molotov agreed with this statement. Joining the German-Japanese-Italian pact seemed to him entirely acceptable in principle, provided that Russia came in as a partner and not merely an object. But the aim and significance of the pact stil had to be defined more clearly.

At this point further talk was postponed until the next day "in view of a possible air raid alarm." Hitler promised to discuss Molotov's points in detail when they met again.

So far the two partners had only been sparring. The quarrel between them was about to begin.

(Tomorrow: Molotov wrangles with Hitler over dividing the 1939 spoils.)

Security Act Exemption Of News Vendor Voted

The House Ways and Means Committee yesterday approved a bill to exempt newspaper vendors from provisions of the Social Security Act on grounds that they are independent contractors.

Sponsored by Representative Bertrand W. Gearhart (R., Calif.), it is identical with one enacted by Congress last year and pocket vetoed by President Truman. The President contended that the Social Security Act should be broadened, not further limited.

The Gallup Poll

Majority of Voters Favor Return to Controls, Rationing

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 27 — With political implications of high living costs much in the minds of all Senators and Congressmen, the weight of voter opinion today favors a return to rationing and price control.

Throughout the country representative voters were interviewed by Institute reporters who asked:

"Do you think the government should or should not put rationing and price controls on some products?"

The national averages:

Approval	48%	51%
Qualified	3
Approval
Disapproval	41
No opinion	8

On Friday the Institute will report what products the public thinks should be placed under price controls.

Qualifications reported by field reporters are significant, and, in general, represent the major blocks to congressional action on prices. The biggest "if" in the minds of voters who qualify their approval is: "if we can have price control without rationing."

Other qualifications are: "if the black market can be eliminated; if the law can be impartially and honestly administered; and if controls are placed on all items, not just some."

This being a presidential election year when Washington's ears are attuned to votes, the opinion of farmers has an important bearing on the fate of price control legislation. And farmers, in contrast to the rest of the population, oppose both rationing and controls by a vote of almost two to one.

On the other hand, manual workers on whom candidates also must keep a wary eye, favor new control legislation almost as strongly as farmers oppose it.

Votes by occupational groups are shown in the following tables:

Occupation	Approve Rationing and Controls	Qualified Approval	Disapprove	No Opinion
Prof. & bus.	47%	2%	47%	4%
White collar	49	3	41	7
Farmers	31	1	56	12
Manual workers	53	3	34	10

The same divergence of viewpoint exists between people in the smaller communities in the country and the larger cities:

Size of Town	Approve	Qualified Approval	Disapprove	No Opinion
Farmers	31%	1%	56%	12%
Under 10,000	45	3	43	9
10,000 to 100,000	52	3	37	8
100,000 & over	55	3	35	7

As in past surveys of voter opinion on price controls, the present poll reveals strong disagreement between Democrats and Republicans, as follows:

	Approval	Qual. Approval	Disapproval	No op.
Democrats	57%	2%	32%	9%
Republicans	37	3	54	6

Historically, the people of this country have been ready to submit to price controls long before their representatives voted the necessary legislation. Two months before Canada adopted a price-wage control program in 1941, and more than a year before the United States took similar steps, the majority of American voters were ready to see similar curbs put into effect in this country.

Hearings Open Monday on Pension Abuse By 'Disabled' Officers of Armed Services

By the United Press

A House Armed Services Subcommittee yesterday scheduled public hearings next Monday on alleged irregularities in the tax-free, lifetime disability pensions granted to retired Army, Navy and Air Force officers.

Chairman Charles H. Elston (R., Ohio) said an analysis of replies to questionnaires sent to several thousand retired officers "leaves no quesiton that there have been some abuses."

He said the data would be published Monday and declined to discuss it in more detail. But other sources said that many of the officers polled reported they were employed privately at "substantial salaries" and that one former Navy officer with a $6600 annual pension earns $125,000 a year as a private engineer.

Among other things, the subcommittee wants to know why officers get a "better break" than enlisted men, disabled officers draw 75 per cent of their base pay, tax free, for life. Enlisted men are pensioned according to their degree of disability and are subject to re-examination periodically.

The group also is investigating reports that some officers received "fluff" promotions just before retirement, thus increasing their disability allowance.

Elston said that top-ranking Army and Navy personnel officers will be the first witnesses. The group then plans to call some of the retired officers on the disabled list.

Navy Blimp Joins Hunt for Missing Plane and 4 Men

Search continued yesterday along the coastline from New York to Norfolk for a Coast Guard plane with four men aboard which has been missing since Saturday morning.

A Nevy blimp and an Army Engineers survey vessel with special sounding gear were enlisted in the search.

The hunt was concentrated in the Baltimore area and four Coast Guard patrol boats continued to drag the Baltimore Harbor in the region of Wagner's Point and Hawkins Point where an oil company official reported seeing a plane plunge into the water.

Trial Starts Today

Veteran Sits On Williams Housing Jury

One veteran was on the jury selected yesterday in District Court to try George H. Williams, bankrupt realty operator, on mail fraud and bad check charges.

Williams

The charges stem from his dealings with veterans who paid him about $200,000 in deposits on housing they never obtained. More then 150 veterans in the Greater Washington area are reported to have lost deposits ranging from $500 to $1000.

Williams was declared bankrupt in December, 1946, after he had commenced large-scale housing projects for veterans in Gwynn Park, Oakton and Riggs Mill Manor, all in Prince Georges County, Md.

Last July, a grand jury indicted Williams on 10 counts, charging him with misrepresenting by word of mouth and letters and with depositing forged checks in his bank account to convince the veterans their deposits were secure.

Williams' trial will get under way today. Williams, who lives in Kensington, Md., will be defended by Robert W. McCullough and William T. Pace. The Government's case will be presented by Assistant United States Attorneys Cecil Heflin and Oliver Dibble.

Protestant Body Replies To Catholics

Dr. J. M. Dawson yesterday accused the Catholic Church of fostering "religious disputation" in its reply to a Protestant manifesto urging separation of church and state.

As acting secretary of Protestants and Other Americans United for the Separation of Church and State, Dr. Dawson replied to a statement issued Sunday by the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Archbishop John T. MacNicholas of Cincinnati, spokesman for the conference, and the American Catholic hierarchy, had said the Protestant manifesto was anti-Catholic and un-American, and would arouse "intolerance, suspicion, hatred and conflict between religious groups."

Dawson said his group's "positive aims" prevented it from entering "the sort of controversy which Archbishop MacNicholas launches."

"We have proclaimed to the world that it is no part of our purpose to criticize or oppose the teachings and internal practices of the Roman Catholic Church or any other. Our controversy is not with any church, but with lawmakers and administrators who permit the Catholic Church or any other to infringe on the first amendment of the Constitution, which embodies the principle of separation of church and State."

2 More Truck X-Ray Units To Join Drive

Two truck-trailer X-ray units will arrive here tomorrow to augment facilities of Washington's mass chest X-ray survey.

The units, fresh from X-raying service in mining and mill towns of West Virginia, will be completely overhauled and repainted before joining the 14 portable and mobile units already operating in the District.

The X-ray survey, which aims to examine the chests of an estimated 600,000 Washington residents and workers by June 15, is the most ambitious undertaking attempted of national plans to uncover and wipe out tuberculosis. It is sponsored here jointly by the USPHS, the D. C. Tuberculosis Association and the District Helath Department.

Taking of larger X-rays of "suspects" uncovered in initial screening X-rays began yesterday at Weightman School, 23rd and M sts. nw., where 131 persons appeared for the secondary phase of the campaign. A total of 160 had been called but many of these requested later appointments.

Survey sponsors have emphasized that recall for the larger X-rays means only that "a need for further study" has been found. About one-third of the "suspects" will be found to have tuberculosis, it was estimated. These will be advised to report to the Health Department clinic, 649 C st. nw., or, if veterans, to Veterans Administration, 1825 H st. nw.

Those persons who do not X-ray properly through mechanical failure of the X-ray screening units are not receiving notices for the larger X-rays but are being advised to revisit the screening installations, it was emphasized yesterday. Such instances are rare, campaign officials said.

Chest X-Ray Hours And Stations Listed

Any person over 15 years of age may drop in for free, confidential chest X-ray between the designated hours at the following locations:

Central Survey Unit, 1350 Pennsylvania ave. nw., daily, 10 a. m. to 6 p. m.

a week goes a long way in Canada

get packing for a glorious winter holiday.

The minute you see those tons of white new snow and sniff that stimulating air you'll know how smart you were to save a week for winter . . . and Canada.

Here's picture-country to delight the eye of an artist, terrain to challenge a tempo-turn expert. Here's a double-quick cure for mid-winter boredom—"time out" that will brace you up until spring lets you out of doors again. A few days go a long way in this winter vacationland, just overnight from Eastern centres.

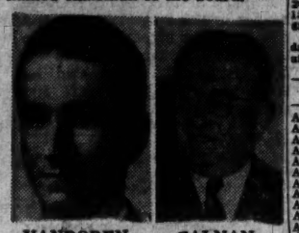
Liberty Elects Vandoren As New President

By S. Oliver Goodman

William T. Vandoren, 42, was elected president of Liberty National Bank at the directors meeting yesterday afternoon. He succeeds Michael F. Calnan, who was named chairman of the board.



VANDOREN

CALNAN

Vandoren, believed to be the youngest bank president in Washington, formerly was vice president and cashier of Liberty National. He entered the banking field in 1923 as a runner and advanced to clerk and teller. In 1926 he was appointed an assistant national bank examiner and became a senior grade national examiner in 1932. In 1936 he resigned to become associated with Liberty National. A graduate of Central High School and the American Institute of Banking, he served on the faculty here of the AIB from 1937 to 1940 and taught banking fundamentals. Married, he is the father of seven children and lives in Chevy Chase, Md. He was born in Hyattsville.

Calnan, the new board chairman, was president of Liberty National since February, 1936. He became associated with the bank in 1919 after serving in the first World War.

In another change at the stockholders' meeting, James Scott Appleby, 26, was elected a director of Liberty National. He is a vice president of Ayre & Taylor Co., Washington jewelers, and secretary-treasurer of The Highlands Corp., real estate firm. He is a son of Scott B. Appleby, prominent Washington businessman, and graduated from the Landon School here and the University of Arizona.

APPLEBY

Promotions included: Wales H. Jack from assistant cashier to cashier; Lewis E. Thomas from assistant cashier to comptroller, and Mrs. Martha Ashford to assistant cashier. Reelected officers are J. B. Skinner, vice president; W. V. Simmons, trust officer; R. P. Woodburn and Robert W. Crandall, assistant cashiers.

Reelected directors are Thomas P. Brown, M. F. Calnan, J. T. Cull, jr., Dr. L. F. Davis, Howard P. Foley, Norman B. Frost, Tracy L. Jeffords, Paul E. Johnson, Frederick G. Macarow, E. K. Morris, Joseph A. Rafferty, F. N. Towers and W. T. Vandoren.

Liberty National, located at 15th and I sts., nw., had deposits of $32,154,856 as of December 31, 1947.

STOCK OFFERING: Morgan Stanley & Co. and associates yesterday offered 399,990 shares of Bendix Aviation Corp. common stock at $28 a share. The stock represents holdings of General Motors Corp. The shares, representing 18.9 per cent of the shares of Bendix outstanding, are the remainder of 500,000 shares acquired by General Motors when Bendix Aviation was organized. Sale of the stock by General Motors was said to reflect the conclusion by that company that complete acquisition of Bendix Aviation, considered from time to time since 1929, does not seem feasible.

Reserve Board Head Demoted

independents, was: "Why a Republican?"

From a good source, it was learned that Mr. Truman had made up his mind to appoint McCabe before consulting Snyder.

Friends of Eccles agreed that this was probably so. They said that Snyder and Eccles had been getting closer and closer in their views on inflation and other problems, and that the area of disagreement between them was very narrow.

The fact that Mr. Truman had chosen a Republican in place of a pioneer New Dealer caused a good deal of anger among those who want to see the Democratic Party take a liberal course. They recalled other instances where New Dealers had been let out—Wilson Wyatt as Federal Housing Administrator and James K. Landis as chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

"The President talks liberal but he appoints conservatives," they complained.

Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), chairman of the Democratic National Committee, was bombarded with inquiries.

"There were no politics in the appointment," McGrath told The Washington Post. "The Democratic National Committee was not consulted about Mr. McCabe prior to his selection, and I don't think it should have been consulted."

After President Truman made up his mind to replace Eccles as chairman, it was learned, he decided that the new chairman should be a man already familiar with the Federal Reserve System.

Mr. Truman and McCabe were not strangers. They had met several years ago when Mr. Truman was a U. S. Senator from Missouri and McCabe was here helping the Nation gird itself for war.

The Philadelphian served variously as an executive assistant to Edward R. Stettinius, jr., on the Council of National Defense; as deputy director of priorities in the Office of Production Management, and as Deputy Lend-Lease Administrator. He went back to Philadelphia in 1942, but then in 1945 agreed to serve as Army-Navy Liquidation Commissioner, a job in which he sold all surplus properties of the armed forces outside of the United States and its possessions.

The suspicion that Secretary Snyder "got" Eccles was based on reports of differences between the two. Last November both men were testifying on Capitol Hill, but before different committees. Eccles demanded that the Federal Reserve Board be given authority to demand of all commercial banks a temporary "special reserve" which would serve to limit credit expansion. Snyder said he doubted whether Eccles' proposal would have the desired effect of limiting inflationary credit extension by banks.

Friends of both men said yesterday that this difference had been exaggerated and that it was unfair to say they were engaged in a "feud."

The reaction on Capitol Hill to the White House announcement was largely one of bafflement, and there was little comment.

Senator J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.) said:

"I don't like it. I don't know McCabe, but I've known Eccles for a long time. I think he's the best informed man on the banking system we have. I hate to see a change in the face of present conditions, with prices continuing to spiral in inflation."

Sailor's Courtesy To Autoist Costs $7

A sailor, who paused to give street directions to a man in a parked automobile last night, was robbed of his billfold containing $7 for his courtesy.

Seaman First Class Charles E. Baker, Quarters K, Navy Annex, Arlington, said that the man called to him while he was walking in the 4500 block of South Capital st. As he stepped up to the car, the occupant poked a revolver in his face and demanded his money, he said.

Garfield Loses $226,761 on Charity Cases

Garfield Memorial Hospital went in the "red" $226,761.18 last year on the 3510 patients it received from the Community Chest and the city, Hospital Board President William R. Castle reported yesterday.

Castle said the hospital also lost money on the 3721 patients it received from Group Hospitalization, Group Health and other health insurance plans.

He warned the hospital must get itself in "a better financial position if we are to continue to serve the sick in the District and its surroundings."

He disclosed that directors of Warwick Clinic at the hospital are "exploring" the possibility of attaching the clinic to the George Washington University Hospital.

The move, he said, is being considered because "it seems probable" more money will be forthcoming to the clinic for cancer study from the American Cancer Society and possibly the Government if the clinic is connected with a teaching hospital.

Tax Slash Is Approved

the only Democratic amendment to survive the GOP gantlet. Offered by Representative Walter A. Lynch (D., N. Y.), it was adopted 16 to 8.

Mr. Truman's proposal for a $40 tax cut for every member of a household, offset by a modified 75 per cent corporate excess profits tax, was presented by Representative John D. Dingell (D., Mich.).

It was rejected 19 to 5. Only these Democrats voted for it: Dingell, Cooper (Tenn.), Forand (R. I.), Eberharter (Pa.) and Lynch.

Representative Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.), who balked at the President's plan, tried his four-billion-dollar version of the Knutson bill. This lost by a 15-to-9 party-line vote.

Other Sidetracked Amendments

Among other sidetracked amendments:

By Jere Cooper (D., Tenn.), limiting the cut to a $100 increase in personal exemptions and split income privileges for married couples at a loss of only 2.7 billion to the Treasury. Rejected, 16 to 8.

By Representative Wilbur D. Mills (D., Ark.), combining the two items in Cooper's amendment and estate tax exemption for soldier war casualties with the President's plan, at a 2.7 billion revenue loss. Rejected, 17 to 7.

By Mills, reducing the Knutson bill's cost by 3.2 billion by adding the excess profits tax to the GOP bill. Rejected, 16 to 8.

By Dingell, repealing Federal excise taxes on oleomargarine. Ruled out on a point of order. Dingell appealed. He lost on the appeal, 15 to 7.

By Bertrand W. Gearhart (R., Calif.), making retroactive to 1942 proposed split estate privileges in community property States. Rejected, 17 to 6, with one vote of "present."

Amendment Being Drafted

The estate-splitting device, companion measure to halved income privileges for married couples, will be added to the bill in non-retroactive form before the Knutson bill goes to a vote. Staff experts are having trouble drawing the committee amendment.

After favorably reporting the Knutson bill, Ways and Means Republicans and Democrats met separately late yesterday drafting party-line reports respectively for and against the GOP measure.

As approved yesterday, the bill carries the solid backing of the House Republican leadership. Senate GOP leaders, however, have never gone on record for the Knutson cuts. Similarly, a full conference of Republican Senators Monday declared for reductions in taxes without any commitment to the Knutson figure.

This strengthened reports that after next week's House vote the Senate Finance Committee will do an over-haul jab on the Knutson cuts, lowering the total to allow adequate margin for a minimum 2.6 billion payment on the debt.

Restaurant Men Elect

August H. Dressel, of Old Williamsburg Restaurant, was elected president last night of the Washington Restaurant Association at a meeting at the Washington Gas Light Co. Building.

Others elected included: Lofton S. Wesley, Wesley Hall, first vice president; Edward M. Warner, Tastee Diners, second vice president; Raymond Lurba, Lurba Brothers, treasurer; Robert J. Wilson, executive secretary; John S. Cockrell, assistant executive secretary, and Ringgold Hart, general counsel.

Auditor Favors Legal Action on Relief Fraud

Auditor A. R. Pilkerton said last night he would recommend that the Commissioners turn over to the United States District Attorney any cases where relief clients have "fraudulently" obtained money from the District.

He said he expected a report Friday from Special Assistant Auditor Jack Hughes, who is making a detailed check of recent public assistance accounts to determine where illegal payments have been made.

Pilkerton emphasized his action Monday in withholding a $3644 check for the estate of the late Ray L. Huff, director of public welfare, pending the investigation, was no reflection on Huff's integrity. "It's an administrative matter," he explained.

The Board of Public Welfare also released a statement saying that "most of the alleged overpayments of assistance referred to in these accounts occurred during the years before Mr. Huff became director. The Board of Public Welfare has nothing but the highest esteem for Mr. Huff and his unblemished record."

Pilkerton said previous reports of illegal payments, dating back to 1933, have amounted to approximately $200,000. Under present law, case workers, supervisors, welfare director and auditor all may be held personally responsible for unjustified spending.

As a member of a committee appointed last year by the Commissioners to investigate possible changes in the law, Pilkerton said he forwerded a recommendation to Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West last April. West said he hadn't had time t oprepare the necessary legislation.

German Experts Reported Sent To Argentina

Copenhagen, Jan. 27 (AP).—Danish police said tonight a former Hamburg merchant and an ex-Luftwaffe colonel helped smuggle German technicians and scientists to Argentina after the war.

Headquarters announced the two men were the leaders of a secret organization which arranged for prominent Germans to get to the South American country by way of Denmark.

It was said police had captured 11 airplane experts. The prominent scientist, Professor Tank, escaped to Argentina, the report added, reportedly on a false passport provided by the leader of the organization, Lieut. Col. Guenther Toepke.

To All Users of Natural Gas

Up to this time we in the Washington area have been fortunate in escaping the serious effects of the natural gas shortage prevalent in most of the cities in the Eastern part of the country.

In common with other companies in the area, we have not at all times received our full requirements of natural gas during this period of cold weather. However, we have supplemented our supply by making oil gas in our stand-by plant, thereby delivering an uninterrupted supply to our customers.

Our present supply of oil is limited and additional supplies are uncertain.

A critical situation could develop at any time under present weather conditions. Therefore, we ask our customers to save gas and join the general fuel conservation effort by observing the following:

1. Keep thermostat at 68° during daytime and not more than 60° during sleeping hours at night. Use the fireplace and any other means of auxiliary heat whenever possible.
2. Do not heat unused rooms. Draw shades at night if you do not have storm windows. Close bedroom doors at night.
3. Use hot water sparingly from gas water heater. Curtail the use of other gas appliances whenever possible.

It's Lived, Not 'Acted'

'Shoe Shine' Has Power of Truth

By Richard L. Coe

THE PATHETIC HUMAN COMEDY is rarely pictured so heartbreakingly, so ruthlessly, as it is in the Little's "Shoe Shine." Here is a great and unforgettable film.

This Italian picture is not beautiful to the eye, but it has the beauty of human compassion which touches the heart. It is not a hopeful picture, for it reveals unremittingly the complex jungle of a civilization which staggers the mind. It is a work of art, for it moves the soul.

It is so simple a film, deceptively simple. "Shoe Shine" tells of two boys in the Rome of early liberation days. Scrounging for bare necessities occupies everyone's time, and these two youngsters, like thousands of others, shine shoes for the Yanks.

You first see them at a happy time, watching a horse they long to own. Their friendship is fine, natural and about the only thing they possess. When the brother of the boy who is lucky enough to have a family gives them the chance to buy the horse through profits of the black market, they don't hesitate. Before they know it, they're in the clutches of the law, a merciless mockery of justice which punishes them for they know not what and destroys their friendship they know not how. When "Shoe Shine" is over, one has killed the other and lies sobbing by his dead buddy's side.

"SHOE SHINE," A Lopert film release, produced in Italy by Paolo W. Tamburella. Directed by Vittorio De Sica. Screen play by Sergio Amidei, Adolfo Franci, C. G. Viola and Cesare Zavattini. English titles by Herman G. Weinberg. At the Little.

THE CAST

Giuseppe	Rinaldo Smordoni
Pasquale	Franco Interlenghi
Raffaele	Aniello Mele
Arcangeli	Bruno Ortensi
Vittorio	Pacifico Astrologo
Ciriola	Francesco De Nicola
L'Abruzzese	Antonio Carlino
Giuseppe's mother	Irene Smordoni

The whole, tangled skein of humanity is caught in this simple tragedy: the inequities of a great city, the ghastly results of war, the bumbling of bureaucracy, the inept prison authorities and the ineffectual clergy.

Splendidly Acted

None of these characters is shown as a villain. All are well-meaning, tired, afraid and infinitely pathetic. And the two boys are tragic figures in the true classical sense. Sorrow for the death of his brother brings out unreasoning hatred—and its twin weakness—in one; pity at the thought of his pal's supposed sufferings ultimately bears vengeance—and murder—in the other.

When such a story as this is told with remorseless realism, the result is shattering. The picture was made in Italy on a virtual shoestring. The two pivotal roles are played by shoe shine boys, Rinaldo Smordoni and Franco Interlenghi, and watching them amounts to being invisibly present at their tragedy. Their companions, too, are startlingly well acted, though acted is scarcely the word. "Lived" one would better say. The English subtitles are more than adequate to the essentially pictorial style of Director Vittorio De Sica.

There are endless facets for discussion about "Shoe Shine." One of them might be the notion that such a story is not "pleasant," yet in Europe, where one might expect a revulsion from such "unpleasantness," the film has had enormous success. Can this be because the roots of a continent's despair are laid bare in this story of how the sin of laissez-faire has ruined two young lives? Can it be that truth, an honest reflection of life, actually does have a power which makes the "unpleasant" powerful, engrossing and curiously satisfying?

For this is a strangely satisfying film. It is satisfying because of its tenderness and its grave regard for the innocence of childhood, the childhood that will give us the world of tomorrow. It is an angry, passionate reminder that any ideology, any panacea, must seem preferable to the present hopes of millions like these two lads. And as the Rome of "Shoe Shine" slips away from you when you leave the Little, you're bound to ask yourself: "How are we at home?"

Yes, "Shoe Shine" is a deeply moving study of modern life.

VETERAN AND NEWCOMER: Douglas Fairbanks, jr., introduces a new screen discovery—his first, he says—this morning at Keith's in "The Exile," Paule Crozet, pronounced "Paul Crozay." In the swashbuckling film, Doug plays England's Charles II during his exile in Holland and Paule is his leading lady. Maria Montez also is in the cast

Truman Picks Rail Fact-Finding Unit; Strike Postponed

President Truman today forced a 60-day postponement of a threatened Nationwide strike by 248,000 railroad workers by creating a fact-finding board to investigate the dispute.

His executive order said the strike, scheduled for February 1, would interfere with interstate commerce.

Three powerful unions—the independent Brotherhoods of Locomotive Engineers and Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and the Switchmen's Union (AFL)—report that 97 per cent of their members have voted to strike for wage increases and other concessions.

Under the Railway Labor Act, creation of an emergency fact-finding board automatically postpones a threatened walkout by at least 60 days. The board has 30 days in which to hold hearings and report back to the President, and another 30 days are required before a strike can be called.

County Buys Hospital From Government

The title to Prince Georges County General Hospital passed yesterday to the county.

A check for $150,000 for the hospital property was given to the Federal Works Agency by the Prince Georges Board of County Commissioners.

The FWA returned to the commissioners a quit-claim deed and bill of sale.

The hospital was built by the Federal Government in 1942 and 1943 at a cost of $750,000. Purchase by the county entails no change in operating policy, but gives the county more control over future plans.

The commissioners said they now will proceed with plans for a 110-bed Negro patients' wing and a public health center, for which funds were provided in the bond issue for money to buy the hospital.

The commissioners received a letter from Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways for the District of Columbia inviting them to a conference at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow at the District Building on a proposed survey of the entire highway system entering the District.

Dr. Eckles, Maryland U., Kills Himself

Dr. William Gilbert Eckles, 48, professor of educational administration at the University of Maryland, was found dead yesterday, shot through the mouth by his own pistol.

Dr. James I. Boyd, Prince Georges County medical examiner, who investigated, termed the death self-inflicted. Investigators said Dr. Eckles left a note complaining of ill health.

He was found in the basement den of his home, on Rosemary Lane, University Park, Md., by his wife, Jane. Beside him was his .32-caliber Smith & Wesson revolver.

Prince Georges County police ordered the body moved to Gasch's funeral home, Hyattsville, where it was to be examined last night by Dr. Boyd.

Dr. Eckles began his duties at the University of Maryland last fall, coming there from the staff of the Mississippi State Department of Education. He was a specialist in school construction.

Dr. Eckles, a native of Sardis, Miss., was a graduate of the University of Mississippi and Peabody Teachers College, Nashville, Tenn. He was superintendent of public schools at Gunnison, Miss., and later at Boyle, Miss.

He served on the staff of the Mississippi State Department of Education as school buildings administrator, and, upon appointment to his post at the University of Maryland, became a consultant in school building planning for the Maryland State Department of Education.

He was a member of the Rotary Club of Jackson, Miss., and a steward of Galloway Methodist Church, at Jackson.

Surviving are his wife, Jane Figg Eckles; two daughters, Betty Brooks Eckles, 16, high school student, and Mary Jane Eckles, 19, sophomore at the University of Maryland; his mother, Mrs. John Brooks Eckles of Sardis, and a sister, Mrs. Henry W. Drath of New York City.

Thousands Flee To Open as Panay 'Quakes Continue

Manila, Jan. 27 (U.P.)—Two more strong earthquak mfwyp an anup strong earth-shocks, making at least 22 since early Sunday, shook Panay Island today and the residents of its coastal cities and towns were panic-stricken by reports of tidal waves and fear of new earthquakes.

The Red Cross reported that 15 houses and five persons were swept away by waves at Ivisan, in Antique Province. The previously announced official death toll of 20 was raised to 21 today when a victim died in a hospital.

Thousands of persons were camped out in the fields, where there were no building to fall on them.

41 Miles of School Bus Routes Reconditioned

Manassas, Va., Jan. 27.—Virginia State Highway Department forces reconditioned a total of 41 miles of school bus and rural routes in Prince William County in 1947, according to its year-end report. The program also provided for construction of 2.6 miles of new hard surface roads and "retreatment" of 14 miles of bituminous roads.

Total expenditure for secondary roads during the year was $126,000, with $106,000 in upkeep and repair and $16,000 for new construction.

Training in Morals Held Leaders' Need

Principles of Christianity Required To Guide World, Archbishop Declares

Training of Christian citizens to morally guide America in world affairs was urged yesterday by Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle.

The spiritual leader of the Washington Catholic Archdiocese addressed 1000 students, faculty members and others at a reception tendered him in Catholic University's gymnasium. By reason of his new office, the Archbishop is also the university chancellor.

Responding to greetings from various student representatives, Archbishop O'Boyle said:

"All of us here will, I am sure, agree that America, probably more than any other country, will determine the course of human events. But if the incomparable resources at her disposal are to be rightly used, and if the proper moral decisions are to be made, she must have at her service citizens who have been rightly trained.

"It requires no special knowledge of history to realize that there will be many contenders for the control of her resources, and the application of her strength. Well may we ask ourselves how can we better serve church and state, and the whole civilized world, than by devoting all our talents and resources to preparing and supplying well-trained scholars and Christian leaders without whom, in the last analysis, no amount of economic or political power can be properly used or even long preserved."

The Right Rev. Monsignor Patrick J. McCormick, rector, spoke on behalf of the administrators of the institution. Other greetings came from Miss Caroline Lee Graham, of Houston, Tex., president of the Association of Women Students; the Rev. Henry J. Browne, of the New York Archdiocese, on behalf of graduate students, and James B. Sullivan, of this city for undergraduates. The Right Rev. Monsignor Edward B. Jordon, university vice-rector, presided. The Catholic University Band and the Glee Club were on the program.

Personnel Raised To 93 in Police Records Bureau

The total personnel of the new police communications and records bureau has been increased to 93, it was disclosed yesterday.

Hartman

New appointees to the bureau include 25 civilians, who are on a temporary basis, and 21 policemen.

At the same time it was announced that Lieut. Earl P. Hartman of the Seventh Precinct has been detailed to the statistical bureau which is incorporated in the new communications and records bureau.

Hartman's job will be to revise procedures in the statistical bureau to conform with the new setup. Supervisor of the new communications and records bureau is Inspector Floyd Truscott.

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett denied one published report that it will cost $140,000 annually to operate the new bureau. He said the cost would be "far less" than that figure.

Luthern Calls Aid Last Hope

Richmond, Va., Jan. 27 (AP).—Constructive cooperation on the part of the United States is the only alternative to "collapse, chaos and communism for Europe, and perhaps for the whole world," Dr. Rees Edgar Tulloss, retiring president of the National Lutheran Council, declared today.

Addressing the opening session of the council's thirtieth annual meeting, Dr. Tulloss saw the Marshall Plan "or some modification of it, wisely and constructively administered" as the "only thing that can possibly prevent a collapsed and communistic Europe."

"Even the Marshall Plan is a gamble," he said. "It may not be a very good gamble . . . but I say to you it's a gamble we cannot afford not to take."

The council, at a business session, elected Dr. William G. Sodt, superintendent of the Milwaukee (Wis.) Hospital, president.

Dr. Martin Anderson of Chicago, president of the eastern district of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, was named vice president, and Dr. Armin George Weng of Chicago, president of the Illinois synod of the United Lutheran Church, secretary. S. Frederick Telleen of New York, a retired vice president of Chase National Bank, was re-elected treasurer.

Shoe Workers Drop Officers To Use NLRB

The CIO Shoe Workers Union said today its membership voted 31,000 to 1080 to eliminate the offices of three vice presidents to become eligible to use National Labor Relations Board machinery.

One of the shoe workers' vice presidents, Julius Crane, Chicago, had refused to sign. All other officers of the union, including President Raymond Swanson and Secretary-treasurer James J. Mitchell, were willing.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 27 (AP).—Officers of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union (AFL) who refuse to sign non-Communist affidavits will be unseated, Union President David Dubinsky said.

Dubinsky's statement yesterday said only five members of the Los Angeles joint boards would be affected. He declined to name them.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys
If backaches and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Memo No. 2 From The C&O To The New York Central

A plea for the long-neglected commuter. Why not give him now the improvements that can be made immediately? Why not start by mailing his commutation ticket?

A word to the public:

It is an unusual circumstance when the largest owners of a business must present their ideas to the management in the public press instead of in a Directors' meeting.

But though the C&O is now the largest owner of the New York Central, we may not, under the law, vote our stock, our officers may not sit on the Board of Directors, nor may the C&O have any voice in the Central's affairs, until the Interstate Commerce Commission approves.

This may take several months. Meanwhile we are making our recommendations in this way. What you will find here is merely a sample of the kind of thinking the C&O would like to contribute to the Central—in the interest of the railroad and of you the traveler.

This is the second of a series of "Memos to the Central." The first one urged through trains without layovers for coast-to-coast travelers.

To the New York Central:

We are happy to learn from recent newspaper reports that the Central has promised its forgotten customers, the commuters, better lights and improved station platforms as well as extra trains at the rush hours.

There is even talk about the future possibility of ultra-comfortable, air-conditioned coaches to replace what the suburbanite calls "cattle cars" that now try to seat five people abreast.

As old campaigners for railway progress, we welcome these signs of the Central's intentions.

But many of these things are in the future. Aren't there other improvements that could be made more quickly? The plight of commuters—hundreds of thousands of them in our major cities—is a long-standing and not very funny joke. They must run a whole gauntlet of outright inconveniences and discomforts.

Why Not Mail The Commuter His Ticket?

Why, for example, should the suburbanite have to stand in line at a ticket window every month just to buy his commutation ticket? Why not simply mail the accredited commuter his ticket and send him a bill as a matter of routine, every month? He could pay for it by check, just as he pays for electricity and telephone service. He could save his time and the ticket agent's, too.

Clean Up, Paint Up, Fix Up!

While the commuter is waiting for the new dream trains of tomorrow, why not make the ones now in service more respectable?

The wash-rooms on most suburban coaches (in many of which you can't even wash) are beneath the lowest standards of decency. While the Central is improving the lights, so the commuter can read his paper, why not order some modern plumbing fixtures?

The heating controls on many of the cars are so fickle that passengers either bake or freeze. And a good cleaning and a coat of paint would make many of the old and grimy coaches that now carry our suburbanites seem (to the long-suffering commuter, at least) positively mode

Why Not Do These Things Now?

The cost of these improvements would be relatively small. But they would have a tremendous effect on thousands of substantial citizens. They would convince these people, as few other acts of the railroad could, that the New York Central is truly committed to progress.

LISTEN TO "INFORMATION PLEASE" EVERY FRIDAY AT 9:30 P.M. OVER WOL, WASHINGTON

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

LESS THAN A year ago, Jackie Cranford was heaving about like a beached fish on the floor of a Buffalo prize ring, knocked senseless in one round by another heavyweight named Phil Muscato of dubious fame. Cranford was written off as a heavyweight title contender and his best friends shook their heads sadly.

POVICH

But here he is, fighting the main bout in Madison Square Garden Friday night, and acclaimed by New York's prize fight cognoscenti as the hottest article to appear on the heavyweight scene since the war. Cranford has won 12 of his last 13 fights, eight of them by knockouts, and two of them in the Garden.

Thus far they're bringing him along slowly. On Friday night, he won't be fighting much. Gino Buonovino, claimant to the heavyweight championship of Italy, who has won seven fights and fought a draw in eight bouts in this country, has been handpicked for Cranford in the careful build-up of the blond Washington lad who used to go to Eastern High School, fought in the amateurs, and came out of the Navy as a pro fighter.

Cranford, at 182 pounds, will be giving away 13 pounds to Buonovino, who is husky, game, aggressive, doesn't punch too hard and doesn't stack up as too dangerous.

TO THIS POINT, Cranford has been without honor in his home town. Washington fight fans dismissed him quickly as a heavyweight hope when they saw him knocked out in one round by Ross Strickland, of no great fame. Cranford came back a few months later to stop Strickland in nine rounds, but he had to get up off the floor three times to do it.

But, as I was saying, New York thinks he's wonderful, and the fact is he has been sort of impressive up there. He battled a rising young heavyweight named Bernie Reynolds to a close, losing decision a few months back, and then a few weeks ago he went back into the Garden and knocked out Reynolds in two rounds.

Cranford isn't hard to cotton to, as a box office draw. He's a handsome young lad of 25, with a crew haircut that is remindful somewhat of Gene Tunney. He's a refreshing picture of a fellow in a business populated mostly by plug-uglies, and easy to envision as the lithe American boy whose destiny might well be fame. The Garden people think they might have something powerful as a drawing card if Cranford gets by Buonovino.

THE FACT IS that Cranford, the victim of two first-round knockouts since he got out of the service, may be shockingly close to a heavyweight title bout. Except for Joe Walcott, there isn't much around in the heavyweight division. Olle Tandberg, the Swede who beat Joe Baksi, was a flop in his United States debut, and Baksi hasn't fought since July. Never was the path to a title fight as wide open for an aspiring heavyweight.

Bo Bregman and Chris Dundee, Cranford's managers, are overlooking no tricks in equipping their fighter with the best handling. Some weeks back they engaged Ray Arcel as his trainer. Arcel's job is two-fold—to get Cranford into fighting shape and maintain the new confidence that Cranford has acquired from his recent Garden shots. Not always was Cranford a confident kid.

"He used to get panicked pretty easily," says Arcel. "Even in the amateurs he'd fade when the heat was turned on him. I'd say the best thing that ever happened to him was when he was knocked out by Muscato. That's when Cranford learned that it wasn't so bad to be knocked out; that it didn't hurt as much as a 10-round beating. He's been standing up nicely ever since."

AT THIS POINT, Arcel doesn't quite know what to make of his young protege. "He's something of a puzzle to me, and I think I've seen most of the fighters of the last 25 years. Nobody exactly like Cranford ever came along. He looks like a champion some times, and a crude kid at other times. Here's what I mean:

"He doesn't look smart in there all the time. He doesn't slip a punch so well. And his feet get mixed up sometimes. But then he shows you other things that are so clever it's hard to believe he isn't a smart fighter. He's got a pretty little combination of punches that come only from natural ability or long experience. His jabbing is good. When he stopped Reynolds in the Garden he did it with a perfect one-two, a left hook and a right cross thrown like a great fighter."

Arcel has a personal interest in Cranford's push toward a heavyweight title fight, he says. "I've been in the corner of 10 men who fought Joe Louis, and I had to drag them all back to their stools. None of them went the limit. That's why they call me the meat wagon. Maybe Cranford will get me out of that rut."

St. John's Wins, 48-40, Over Central

Despite a last-minute desperation rally which saw Central almost overcome a 20-point deficit, the St. John's Cadets registered their sixth straight victory, 48-40, at Central gym yesterday.

Jack George's 18 points helped the Cadets to a commanding lead, although Central rallied gamely in the last three minutes to outscore the second stringers, 14-2.

Guard Jim Pantos led the Viking attack with 14 points and Teammate Ross Keith tossed in 11.

Colorado Expects Driskill Today For Coaching Talk

Boulder, Colo., Jan. 28 (AP).—Walter Driskill, athletic director and line coach at the University of Maryland, was scheduled to arrive here tomorrow for an interview about the vacant head football coaching job at the University of Colorado.

According to Dean Harry G. Carlson, director of athletics, the field has been narrowed down to four and an announcement probably will be made by February 14.

The four are Dallas Ward, University of Minnesota backfield coach; Dudley DeGroot, former Washington Redskins' coach; James Glassford, University of New Hampshire coach, and Driskill.

Coast Loop Moves To Thwart Majors

Los Angeles, Jan. 27 (AP).—Directors of the Pacific Coast Baseball League adopted a drastic resolution today designed to forestall purchase of any of its clubs by a major league organization.

They decreed that any stockholder who sells a controlling slice of stock of a club to any individual or organization without the unanimous consent of the entire league would be liable for a $20,000 fine and disenfranchisement.

While the terms are general, League President Clarence Rowland admitted it was aimed at thwarting any attempt by a big league club to buy into the Coast loop.

Shaughnessy Invites 5000 to Grid Clinic

Atlantic City, N. J., Jan. 27 (AP).—Clark Shaughnessy, consultant coach for the National Professional Football League Los Angelus Rams, announced today he invited 5000 high school and college football coaches in 17 Eastern States to attend his second annual football clinic here March 22-25.

Hockey Fight, Too Much Snow, Soft Ice Keep Swiss Jumping

By Ted Smits

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Jan. 27 (AP).—Both sides stood their ground tonight in the bitter, involved American ice hockey dispute that has chilled the fifth winter Olympic games, which open Friday, colder than an Alpine glacier.

Dr. Fritz Kraatz, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, arrived in town and proclaimed that "we have the definite promise of the Swiss Olympic Organizing Committee that we will participate."

"We" means the Amateur Hockey Association' team from the United States, along with the other teams in the federation.

Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic Committee reiterated that if the Amateur Hockey Association's team plays it means the authority of his committee is flouted, and that his committee will withdraw from the games, contestants and all.

The Swiss were wringing their hands in anguish. What would the winter games be without the Americans with their brave blue uniforms with the big U. S. A. on the chests?

And what would the winter games be without hockey, so rewarding at the boxoffice to the anxious innkeeping sponsors?

The possibility there will be no hockey grows more definite by the hour as Brundage applies pressure on the International Olympic Committee to throw out the A. H. A. team. If that happens, undoubtedly the federation will order all its teams out in retaliation.

Hockey isn't the only thing worrying the Swiss. St. Moritz is unseasonably warm. The snow doesn't melt even in the bright sun, but the ice softens up to the distress of the figure and speed skaters and hockey players.

And there is too much snow. It keeps falling every night and the Swiss patiently shovel it away by daylight. But hand shoveling is not fast enough to cope with the snow on the two big ice rinks, so a mechanical remover is being brought over from Davos, a nearby resort.

G. W. Meets VPI Tonight

George Washington seeks its ninth victory in 11 Southern Conference basketball starts tonight against VPI at Blacksburg, Va.

The Colonials scored an impressive 54-43 victory over Navy last time out and will be favored to beat VPI, which lost to North Carolina, 68-35, Monday night.

GW lost its conference games to North Carolina State and South Carolina. The latter was a surprise. The Gamecocks had been beaten at Columbia, S. C., by the Colonials then came here to score the upset two weeks ago.

Redskins Sign Rookie Tackle

William Katrishen, a rookie tackle, was signed by the Washington Redskins yesterday. He played for Mississippi Southern last season, win Little All-America honors in 1946 and 1947, stands 6 feet 1 inch and weighs 220 pounds.

The Redskins office said that Katrishen's friends call him Mike but he is such a terror in the line that opponents refer to him as "The Mad Russian."

Puggy King Fights Murray Monday

Washington bantamweight Puggy King will face Baltimore's Young Lee Q. Murray in one of the three eight-round bouts at Turner's Arena next Monday night.

A portion of the proceeds of the show will be contributed to the Mile-O'-Dimes fund, according to Matchmaker Gabe Menendez.

King's last Washington appearance was in December when Jimmy Cooper ended his string of six consecutive one-round knockouts.

New Haven Wins, 5-3, Over Lions

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

The New Haven Ramblers beat back a last-period Washington surge to down the Lions, 5-3, in an American Hockey League contest before a crowd of less than 1000 last night at Uline Arena.

Ken Schultz, Lion center, scored two last-period goals, but the New Haven defense stiffened to stop the one-man rally.

The Ramblers moved into a 3-0 lead in the first period on goals of Ott Heller, Dunc Fisher and Harry Bell.

Washington Goalie Gordon Bell was taken ill after the opener and replaced in the nets by Dick Bittner. New Haven scored almost immediately on Bittner, when Chick Webster poked in a rebound 27 seconds after period opened.

But the Lions got one goal back on Frank Porteous' smash past Rambler Net-tender Chuck Raynor, who had stopped 19 shots before Washington finally scored.

Mt. Vernon Wins, 40-28

Mt. Vernon pulled away in the second half to hand Falls Church a 40-28 setback in a Virginia Class B league game last night at Fairfax. Ahead only 24-20 at halftime, the winners then poured it on with Larry Hofferditz and Tom MacCreary leading the way. Carl Schorr, of Falls Church, took scoring honors, though, with 13 points.

Court Clinic Attracts 2500

More than 2500 boys turned out last night at 10 District school gyms for the third weekly session of The Washington Post-Washington Caps basketball clinic. And there were plenty of surprises for the youngsters.

For example, the 150 pupils at the Calvin Coolidge High gymnasium had their class divided into four parts.

During the first section, Capt. Bob Feerick of the Caps discussed how to handle the ball on set shots, and then demonstrater.

Then he divided his classes into six groups, one for each basket and let the kids try their hand at shooting. In charge at each basket was a member of the Wilson Teachers College team which was to play Gallaudet College at Coolidge after the class.

Then the youngsters were called together in the center of the floor and the movie, "Better Basketball," by Nat Holman, old Celtics star, was shown.

And finally, the kids were admitted free to watch Wilson Teachers and Gallaudet play their game.

One more class, next Tuesday at the same 10 locales, is in store for the basketball school pupils. Those who have attended all the classes will be presented with diplomas.

As is customary, 50 pupils were chosen last night to represent the school at one of the Caps games. This week, the lucky 50 will see the Caps and Chicago Stags play at Uline Saturday.

And if the Caps follow the precedent they set after the first class two weeks ago, they'll win Saturday. Since the Caps made their debut at the school, they've won four straight games.

Line Forms On Right at Zoeterman's

Chicago, Jan. 27 (AP).—The line of major league scouts will form to the right next Saturday when George Zoeterman, 17-year-old pitcher, who was the center of a ruckus last year between Commissioner A. B. Chandler and the Chicago White Sox, graduates from Chicago Christian High School.

Southpaw Zoeterman today said:

"It looks like I'm going to be pretty busy Saturday. Five clubs have contacted me and made appointments. At 1 o'clock I'll meet with the first scout. He represents the St. Louis Cardinals. Then the Red Sox representative will be here, and, following him, the Phils, Yankees and Tigers. I also expect to hear from the Indians."

Need a Quartermiler?

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 27 (AP).—Does any U. S. college need a good quarter-miler?

Herb McKenley, Jamaican athlete and former University of Illinois star, said today he was trying to arrange for Morris Curotta to attend a U. S. college. Curotta holds the Australian record for the distance, 48 seconds. The athlete is 18.

Golf Gets New Bounce

New York, Jan. 27 (AP).—The United States Rubber Co. came up today with a new golf ball it said has more bounce, and the added bounce is achieved not with rubber but a substance made from sand.

Huskies Sign Franklin

Seattle, Jan. 27 (AP).—Marvin Franklin, onetime Vanderbilt University football captain and end coach under Howie Odell at Yale last year, has been picked by Odell as Washington freshman football coach, Athletic Director Harvey Cassell announced today.

Kramer Stretches Lead

Chicago, Jan. 27 (AP).—Jack Kramer, challenger for Bobby Riggs' pro tennis crown won from Don Budge, had fashioned a lead of 12 matches to 9 as the touring players today prepared to leave for Florida to resume the series.

They are scheduled for St. Petersburg Thursday, Miami Beach on Sunday and Palm Beach next Tuesday.

Kramer defeated Riggs, 6—4, 10—8, last night in Chicago Stadium before 11,552 spectators, the largest crowd ever to see a tennis match in Chicago.

Cafego Moves to Furman

Greenville, S. C., Jan. 27 (AP).—George Cafego, former Tennessee and Washington Redskin football star from Oak Hill, W. Va., was today appointed backfield coach at Furman University here by Athletic Director H. R. (Red) Dobson.

Louise Suggs Wins at Miami

Miami, Fla., Jan. 27 (AP).—Medalist Louise Suggs, of Atlanta, Ga., set the pace in the opening round of match play of the 16th annual Helen Lee Doherty Women's Golf Tournament today with a decisive 7 and 6 victory over Lee Bongart of Orlando, Fla.

Mrs. Maurice Glick of Baltimore also passed her first round test as she defeated Buttons Cosgrove of South Pines, N. C., 4-3.

The upset of the day was Miamian Mrs. Evelyn Odom's victory over Curtis Cup team member Polly Riley of Fort Worth, Texas, in 22 holes. The second upset came when Mrs. Eddie Bush of Wilmington, Del., defeated Peggy Kirk, another Curtis Cup member, from Findlay, Ohio, on the 19th hole.

Kansan Says He's Seeking Information

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

George Sauer, currently coach at Kansas and one of two men still in the picture for the football post at Navy, arrived at 5:15 p. m. yesterday at the National Airport and was greeted by a battery of news photographers.

That's all he was greeted by.

Capt. Tom Hamilton, football coach who becomes athletic director at the academy in June, and Jerry Flynn, director of publicity, arrived about an hour later. The apologetic Hamilton explained that they were misinformed and hadn't expected the TWA plane until after 6.

Sauer's path nearly crossed that of Charles (Bud) Wilkinson, close friend and Oklahoma coach, who was interviewed by Navy authorities yesterday. Captain Hamilton had just dropped Wilkinson off at College Park where he paid a friendly call to Walter Driskill, Maryland's director of athletics.

Talks to Chewning

Sauer spent an hour's walt talking with Lieut. Comdr. Walter Chewning, former shipmate on the Enterprise, and this reporter. The conversation included everything except specific talk about the Navy football job.

Sauer said he didn't know too much about it. "Mainly, I'm here to get some information," explained the 37-year-old former All-America at Nebraska.

"I'll admit that being at Navy probably would offer a greater coaching opportunity—that's why I'm here. But I'll have to hear more about the proposition," Sauer said.

In his two years at Kansas, Sauer has had two Big Six co-championship teams. Before he took last season's team to its Orange Bowl tie with Georgia Tech, he signed a four-year contract with Kansas.

He said yesterday he hadn't discussed being released from it with Kansas officials.

Asked if Navy still was considering anyone beside Wilkinson and Sauer, Captain Hamilton said, "they're the only two who have been invited to talk things over. That should answer the question."

Wilkinson "Gets Acquainted"

Yesterday, in Annapolis, Wilkinson got acquainted with the Navy football scene.

The 32-year-old former Minnesota grid star huddled with the Naval Academy's Athletic Executive Committee for nearly three hours yesterday morning, then looked over the big "yard" at Annapolis with an eye particularly on the football plant.

Wilkinson talked behind closed doors with outgoing Navy Athletic Director Capt. E. B. Taylor, Hamilton, Frank T. Ward, commandant of midshipmen, and Capt. Robert N. Pirie.

All but Hamilton are members of the executive committee, and he was asked to collaborate in selecting his own successor. The group's recommendations will go to Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., academy superintendent, who has the lsat word.

Wilkinson remarked only that he had had "an interesting talk" this morning. Otherwise there was no suggestion as to how much ground had been covered.

It was apparent, however, that they explored more than the mere financial angle. Navy football teams have been the province of officers on active duty since 1933. Any prospect in mufti would want to learn something of the set-up here, which is unlike most civilian institutions.

Wilkinson knows more than a little about the Navy. He's a veteran of the fleet from World War II. After a stint as assistant coach at Iowa Pre-Flight, he went aboard the Carrier Enterprise and served as athletic and hangar deck officer under Hamilton.

Miami Finds No Clues in 'Doping' Of Lee Q. Murray

Miami, Fla., Jan. 27 (AP).—Chairman William Y. Stembler of the Miami Boxing Commission said today "no evidence" had been found of the reported doping of boxer Lee Q. Murray before his third-round technical knockout by Sid Peake here last Thursday night.

Stembler said a second was reported to have given Murray "two little sips" of brandy before the fight, and immediately after the knockout, Commission Secretary Billy Regan said "evidence points toward doping."

Stembler said an official analysis on the contents of a three-quarters full water bottle which Murray said he imbibed just before the fight showed "no evidence of any dope." He said an examination of the contents of Murray's stomach also proved negative.

Murray, fifth ranking heavyweight, was sent sprawling to the canvas 12 times. He told physicians after the fight he "felt sleepy and groggy and my vision began blurring."

Gil Coan Signs Nat Contract

Rookie Gil Coan, an important figure in the Nats 1948 outfield plans, agreed to salary terms yesterday and will make his third trip to the Washington training camp at Orlando, Fla.

Coan, who was released to Chattanooga for more seasoning in 1946-47, rejoined the Nats late last season and in 11 games batted .500. He was a .340 hitter last year in the Southern Association, and banged 22 home runs. He is the twenty-first Washington player to sign an 1948 contract on a roster that includes 35.

Georgetown, G. W., Play Twin Bill

Georgetown and George Washington will appear in a basketball double-header February 11, at the National Guard Armory, the two schools announced yesterday.

The Hoyas will face Penn State while GW will play Maryland in what Georgetown athletic officials term an "experimental" twin-bill.

Admission to the games will be the same as for single games. If attendance at the doubleheader is satisfactory, the two schools will probably make the arrangement a regular practice next season.

'Feeling Fine'

Babe Ruth, Feeble and Drawn, Leaves New York Hospital

New York, Jan. 27 (U.P.).—Babe Ruth, still suffering from an undisclosed ailment that has left him feeble and drawn, left the Neurological Institute of Presbyterian Hospital today after 17 days of confinement for what he said was a "relapse."

Hospital attendants said the all-time home-run king was "feeling fine," but Babe's general appearance belied those words.

He had to be assisted through the lobby by Charles W. Schwefel, a friend, and William Delaney, a male nurse, and when the door was opened leading to a limousine, which was to take him to his Riverside drive apartment, the rush of cold air hit him full force and the once mighty Ruth drew back as if smitten.

It appeared momentarily as if he did not wish to go out into the cold, but Schwefel assured him "it'll be warm in the limousine" and the Babe went on.

He did not stop to talk to the reporters and photographers gathered in the lobby for fear of catching cold.

Asked how he thought the major league pennant races would come out in 1948, Ruth, without breaking his step, replied:

"I haven't had time to pay any attention to the pennant races. I've had a relapse."

"No, you've just had a checkup," Schwefel broke in.

Ruth said he would talk to reporters before he leaves Thursday for a Florida vacation. He hopes to see some of the major league ball clubs in spring training there and later plans to go to Hollywood to assist in directing the movie, "The Life of Babe Ruth."

Too Much Interference

Pasquel's 'Fingers in Pie' Cause Commissioner to Quit

Mexico City, Jan. 27 (AP).—Alejandro Aguilar Reyes, Mexico's high commissioner of baseball since 1942, said today he had resigned because "Jorge Pasquel wouldn't keep his fingers off the league."

Aguilar Reyes said the millionaire sportsman, who provided the money for the league's forage into U. S. organized baseball in 1946 for top talent, had violated an agreement not to interfere with the policies of the league adopted at a meeting of club presidents.

The former high commissioner said Pasquel agreed to head the league in name only, devote his time to running various business enterprises, and to keep his hands off the league.

Pasquel, Aguilar Reyes said, began attending meetings of the league, asserting himself authoritatively and finally said he would go to Cuba to contact players there "as the representative of Mexican baseball, although the club presidents' meeting had not given him any such authority."

Aguilar Reyes, better known as Fray Nano, editor of the morning sports daily La Aficion, said "I accepted the post as high commissioner of Mexican baseball under pressure from Bernardo Pasquel, Jorge's brother, who is a very understanding person will full regard to the proper ways and means to do things, especially after the bad financial results of the last two baseball seasons."

Aguilar Reyes said he quit the job Sunday after Jorge Pasquel said in New York that "Mexican baseball did not see eye to eye with the American leagues"

The former commissioner said the recent visit by Walther Mulbry, assistant to A. B. Chandler, high commissioner of United States baseball, "was completely disregarded by Pasquel."

Mulbry came here last week for informal talks with Aguilar Reyes and other league officials on future relations between United States and Mexican baseball.

Track Avoids 11 Days of N. J. Conflict

Baltimore, Jan. 27 (AP). — The State Racing Commission today reset dates for the operation of Havre de Grace track and authorized an 11-day meeting there starting July 6.

It will be the first time one of Maryland's major tracks has operated in July. The change was made to avoid a conflict in May with New Jersey's Garden State Park.

The new dates will give Havre de Grace a meeting immediately following nearby Delaware Park at Wilmington.

The commission also directed Bowie to start its spring meeting on March 29 instead of March 31. This will be the earliest a Maryland track has ever opened.

Bowie will run from March 29 through April 10, Havre de Grace from April 12 through May 1 and Pimlico from May 3 through 15. The fall schedule remains unchanged, with Laurel operating September 30 through October 28, Pimlico October 29 through November 12, and Bowie from November 12 through November 27.

Garden State will operate from April 15 through May 31.

D.C., Maryland Elevens Play

Maryland's best scholastic football players and the choice gridders of the District of Columbia will determine which is better in an all-star game at the University of Maryland August 27, it was announced yesterday.

Walter Driskill, university athletic director, said the Maryland team wil be picked some time in March and will be made up mostly of senior members of the 1947 all-State team named last month by Maryland and Washington sports writers.

The Marylanders will report to Old Liner Coach Jim Ttatum August 17 for the start of drills. Tatum was honorary chairman of the board which picked the the all-State eleven.

Both squads will be made up of seniors.

MacPhail Says Chandler's OK, Only He Has 'Rabbit Ears'

Bel Air, Md., Jan. 27 (AP).—Larry MacPhail, living the life of a gentleman farmer on his magnificent 600-acre estate near here, swears he never will return to baseball.

"Nineteen years of working 12 to 18 hours a day is enough," declared the former boss of the Yankees as he surveyed the setting sun through the picture window of his vast living room. "I'm through, and you can bet your last dollar on that.

"In a few weeks Jean (Mrs. MacPhail) and I are going to head for Florida, and we're going to sit up in the grandstands down there and eat peanuts and enjoy ourselves for the first time—just watching baseball and not worrying about broken legs. We've invited Sam Breadon to sit with us."

MacPhail insists he has only kind thoughts of Commissioner A. B. Chandler, his sparring partner of last spring. He adds that, actually, only one big league owner is so dead set against Chandler that he wants to buy up his contract and get him out of there.

"There's nothing the matter with Happy except that he's got rabbit ears," Larry observed. "He can hear criticism a city block. Once he gets over that he'll be a good administrator.

MacPhail recalled with some glee his command appearance before Chandler out at Cincinnati last spring. The commissioner was irked at Larry's comments on the Durocher suspension.

"Happy thought he was going to get me told off quick and fill a golf date early that afternoon," he chortled. "He was still trying to tell me after seven hours and he never did get to play golf."

Everybody's Looking for Loopholes!

The whole town's buzzing about us—and we love it! Everybody's looking for flaws in our new price policy. Everybody's asking: "How can you work on such a close margin and come out?"

Well, we say—never mind how we do it. Maybe we've got a rich uncle in South America who sends us money. Maybe we had a winning ticket on the sweepstakes. How we do it is beside the point, as long as we do it.

AND WE'RE DOING IT! To case buyers, our same offer holds good—

When You Buy By-The-Bottle—

there's a slightly higher percentage of markup. The same goes for case purchases on certain rationed brands.

That's the story. There are no loopholes. No tricks. No catch to it. No mirrors.

Tech Routs B.-CC 63-34, Snaps Streak

McKinley Tech's Trainers snapped their three-game losing streak yesterday as they trounced Bethesda-Chevy Chase's Barons, 63-34, at Tech gym. Buddy Wickers paced the Trainers with 17 points.

Tech was ahead all the way, leading, 18-6, at the first quarter, 33-15, at halftime and, 49-22, going into the last period.

PALLADIAN ROOM DEBUT. The Shoreham Hotel, with understandable pride, opens its new Palladian Room tonight. Those who have had prepeeks at the Palladian speak of it in awe-struck tones, vow it's "the most beautiful room we have ever seen." Formal tags are in order for the opening party. Dance music by Sande Williams, whom you should remember from the Carlton. . . . Heading the Shoreham's Blue Room show are Gene McCarthy and Tommy Farrell, son of Hollywood's Glenda Farrell.

Estelle
At the Anchor Room

Ethel Gundersen, former concert pianist at the Waldorf Astoria, is now at the Neptune Room, alternates with the Bill Thompson Trio.

MELODY GRADUATES are Estelle and Johnny, Anchor Room's new stars. Estelle's a grad of NBC (with Irving Miller) and Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians. Johnny's a product of the Juilliard School of Music, Rutgers University and the Marine Corps. Both Estelle and Johnny do solos as well as two-part harmony.

MADNESS GOES TO TOWN twice a night at Club Cairo. For the Radio Aces, most vivid extroverts in show business, are tearing up the place. They're theater as well as nitery headliners, always stand audiences right on their ears. . . . Jay Jason impersonates film figures as they might sound in foreign pix with French and Italian voices dubbed in. Plenty divertising . . . Tung Pin Soo does Chinese magic with a Chinese smile, and the Lindsey Dancers prance daintily.

The Casino Royal's new "Broadway Revue" is headed by Fay and Andre, adagio artists, and tap-stepping Bobby Jean. Songs by Jack "Jive" Schafer and Louise Lee. Fancy production numbers by the Elaine Shaffer Girls.

Dewey Plan Brightens Pay Raise Prospects Of Federal Workers

BOOST: Federal workers can thank New York's Governor Tom Dewey for brightening their pay raise prospects.

With the approval of his legislative leaders, Dewey has recommended a cost-of-living pay raise for the 60,000 State employes. His fortright action had these repercussions here:

1. The staff of the Senate Civil Service Committee plunged into a study of the Dewey plan and an analysis of it will be turned over to the committee today, and equally important,

2. Federal officials admitted that the Dewey proposal will be studied closely. In fact, one official predicted that something similar to the Dewey plan would be eventually proposed by the Administration for Federal workers.

This is the Dewey plan: a temporary cost-of-living raise of 15 per cent on all or any part of the first $3000 of base salary; plus 10 per cent on all or any salary between $3000 and $5000, plus 5 per cent on that part of salary between $5000 and $10,000. State employes paid more than $10,000 base would be given a $900 increase.

IN 1946, about the time when the last general Federal pay act was enacted, Dewey was instrumental in getting an increase for New York's employes that ranged from 30 per cent in the low brackets to 14 per cent for top-bracket people.

In other words, New York's employes will be better able to cope with the soaring cost of living than Federal workers.

Pay raise hearings will be resumed today before the Senate Civil Service Committee. Chairman Langer is giving some thought to amending his $1000 bill to make it a $500 permanent increase and $500 temporary raise based on the cost of living for all employes.

GOBBLEDEGOOK: In the official minutes of the International Civil Aviation Organization is this enlightening sentence:

Proposal by the assistant secretary general on definition of use of the word 'ditching' was discussed at some length and the committee finally reaffirmed its original decision to avoid the use of the word 'ditching' and to use in lieu thereof 'FORCED ALIGHTING ON WATER CONSTITUTING A DISTRESS INCIDENT.'"

To my mind, that's as clear as muddy water.

GOVERNMENT GIRL: Our Mary Worth contest closes tonight. There is still time for any Government Girl here to enter it. But hurry. The winner will be used as a model in the Mary Worth comic strip. She'll get $200 in cash and be sent to Bermuda for a nine-day free vacation. Details are on the comic page. One of the many entries yesterday was Esther P. Holmes, 26, an RFC employe, of 1731 New Hampshire ave. nw.

Miss Homes

POLL: The House Appropriations Committee has asked each Federal agency to give it all data on its war service and temporary employes.

Chairman Taber wants to know the number of these employes, their salaries, how many have taken and passed and flunked competitive Civil Service tests, etc. Obviously, he has in mind a speed-up of Civil Service to a peacetime basis.

And it will have just that effect. Civil Service has been "sitting" on tests given 6, 8 and 12 months ago. The sooner the registers of these exams are set up and eligibles certified from them the better it will be for everyone.

However, the Civil Service examining staff has been devoting its energies for the past several months to finding jobs for displaced career people. That program will be wound up within a few weeks.

NOTES: The girls at Arlington Farms are protesting a new price increase for coffee and sandwiches by the service shops . . . About 6500 applicants for typist and stenographer jobs will be given competitive tests here next week . . . The Government Printing Office has adjusted the salaries of about 125 employes in its planning division. The average increase is 12 2/3 per cent, or about $625 a man. However, a few employes won't get pay boosts. The grades and titles of the 125 employes were consolidated into four grades. Formerly there were 25.

Laughlin's Abortion Case Alibi Attacked

Kin of Woman Say He Asked Their Aid In Effort to Have Charges Dropped

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

The Government yesterday lashed back at attorney James J. Laughlin's alibi defense that he had nothing to do with the abortion performed on an erstwhile sweetheart, with a rebuttal witness.

The witness, R. J. Foster, brother-in-law of Mrs. Esther Pickard Hobbs, on whom an illegal operation was performed last March, declared that Laughlin told him that he (Laughlin) was in trouble and sought Foster's aid in trying to get Mrs. Hobbs to drop charges.

Foster, testifying in District Court, said the plea was made during a meeting in the lobby of a Burlington, N. C., hotel last autumn.

Also present at the meeting, Foster said, was his wife, Marybelle, sister of Mrs. Hobbs.

Earlier Mrs. Foster had testified: "Mr. Laughlin asked us (at the hotel meeting) if we would testify on his behalf. He said he would give us a trip to Miami if we did. I said 'no'."

Mrs. Foster further asserted that Laughlin suggested she advise Mrs. Hobbs to visit a lawyer in Raleigh "and that he (the lawyers) could help her get the case 'off'."

She said Laughlin told her that it "wouldn't cost Esther anything" if she saw the lawyer and both took a trip to Washington on business relating to the case. That was all that was said at the meeting, Mrs. Foster declared.

About two weeks afterward, she testified, she phoned Laughlin that "we could not testify against Esther."

Stories at Variance

Foster's story of the meeting was at variance with his wife's.

He declared he told Laughlin that he would "try to get Esther to stop it (the prosecution of Laughlin) on account of her mother being sick."

Foster denied that Laughlin had asked him and his wife to testify on the lawyer's behalf, as Mrs. Foster had asserted.

Attorney H. Mason Welch representing Dr. Henry F. Peckham, jr., codefendant, insisted the witness tell exactly what Laughlin said at the meeting, using Laughlin's own words.

Foster, who is employed in a North Carolina hosiery mill, drawled: "He said: 'Will you-all help me get out of trouble?'"

"And what did 'you-all' say?" smiled Welch.

"I said: 'Yes, we help.'" Foster answered.

The witness testified Laughlin told him to advise Esther to see a Raleigh lawyer "Horten" who would help "get the case stopped."

Never Approached, He Says

(Attorney W. P. Horton of Raleigh, N. C., last night told The Washington Post that he had never met Laughlin although he believed he had met a law partner of Laughlin's "a couple of years ago in Washington." He said he had never been approached in any connection in the abortion trial although he said he had known Esther Pickard Hobbs since "she was a little girl.")

Foster told the court Laughlin told him that "Horten" would come to Washington "and say what Esther said was untrue."

The witness then declared Mrs. Hobbs told Mrs. Foster that she would not see "Horten." He asserted Laughlin offered him and Mrs. Foster a trip to Florida "if we got Esther to stop it (the prosecution)."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Foster denied receiving sums of money from Laughlin. On one occasion, Mrs. Foster said, Laughlin pressed $10 into her hand "in appreciation" after a stay with them at Burlington.

Unable to Fix Date

Laughlin's last witness was George H. Williams, a Romney, W. Va., attorney, who said he recalled seeing Laughlin and Laughlin's law associate, Charles Flasphaler, in Romney during a weekend. He couldn't give the specific date.

Flasphaler had previously testified he and Laughlin were in Romney on March 22, a date mentioned by Government witnesses as the time of the abortion.

After the trial of Laughlin and his co-defendant, Dr. Peckham, was recessed yesterday, the attorney told reporters "great pressure" had been put upon him by the "police department" not to call Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett as a witness. Laughlin originally said he had planned to question Barrett about a testimonial dinner given the latter when he was made detective chief several years ago.

Laughlin said that Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws had ruled out Barrett as a witness after Laughlin explained what line of questioning he had planned.

Handwriting experts are expected to testify today for both sides in connection with the signatures on two letters allegedly written by Mrs. Hobbs to Laughlin.

Nimro Jailed Without Bond On 2d Warrant

Surprise disclosure of another warrant sent tax consultant Bernard Nimro to jail without bond immediately after his conviction of embezzlement and larceny-after-trust charges.

Nimro, 45, with offices at 1614 K st. nw., was convicted by a District Court jury of embezzling $2628.26 from State Department Official Loy W. Henderson, chief of the Near East Division.

The Government protested the plea of Nimro's attorney, William A. Gallagher, that his client be released on bond on grounds that "there is a strong likelihood, because of this conviction, that he will become a fugitive."

Wife Screams, Faints

Assistant United States Attorney John W. Conliff told Justice Alexander Holtzoff that a warrant has been issued and that the "defendant has been under investigation by the tax division of the Justice Department for some months.

"There are at least 20 or more instances in which this defendant either prepared or assisted in the preparation of tax returns," Conliff declared.

Upon Justice Holtzoff's order that the bond be cancelled and Nimro taken to jail, Mrs. Loretta S. Nimro, his wife screamed, then fainted after Nimro was led away by the United States marshal.

Served Embezzlement Term

His conviction yesterday, after the jury deliberated two hours, was on a $2628.26 income tax refund sent to him for Henderson's 1945 report. Henderson said he had told Nimro to hold the money for him because he believed he was not entitled to such a large refund. The diplomat said later he learned the money had been deposited to Nimro's own account.

After Conliff protested Nimro's release on bond, Justice Holtzoff questioned his attorney on a previous conviction; was told that he was convicted of embezzlement in 1933 and served 11 months.

The conviction in the Henderson case was on two counts. Maximum penalty is 10 years' imprisonment on each count or a $1000 fine on each.

10 to 16 Years Old

6 Juveniles Seized in 2 Robberies

Police arrested eight persons on housebreaking charges early yesterday, six of them between 10 and 16-years-old.

Inability to conceal an estimated $200 worth of second-hand clothing taken from a store at 801 4th st. nw., brought arrest of three boys, police said. From 14 to 16-years old, they were picked-up a half block from the store by police attracted by the large bundle of clothing. The boys also were charged with grand larceny.

Housebreaking charges were placed against three more—10 and 12 years old—in connection with vandalism in the Presbyterian church at Nichols ave. and S. Capitol st.

"Too much noise" brought Pvt. Roy D. Marshall to investigate the furnace room of the Newton theater, 3601 12th st. nw. There he found, he said, two men attempting to pry open the door to the theater auditorium. Held on housebreaking charges, they were listed as Carl W. Behlen, 23, of 144 11th st. ne., and Woodland C. Evans, 24, of 2020 Shepherd st. ne.

'52-20' Violators Warned

Stern court action awaits veterans who violate the GI Bill's "52-20" unemployment allowances, the District Unemployment Compensation Board warned yesterday.

The board cited the case of a 27-year-old veteran who was sentenced Friday to 180 days for drawing jobless pay under the GI bill while he was employed at the Civil Service Commission.

At least 20 cases have been forwarded to the Veterans Administration's legal staff for prosecution, an official said.

Seasonal opportunists were being sought by police here yesterday in the reported thefts of three sleds.

Mrs. Gita Schimmel of 3604 Minnesota ave. se. said her brand-new Champion was missing from her basement laundry; Mrs. Mildred Juliano of 1709 28th pl. se. reported her daughter's Lightning Guider was taken from their porch, and Samuel Popel of 5026 Just st. ne. reported disappearance of his Silver Fleet from his front porch.

Fowler Faces Retirement For Disability

Fowler

Fowler, who is the police ballistics expert, is said to be suffering from a spinal ailment.

In addition to being the department ballistics ace, Fowler is founder and present director of the Washington Police Academy, the department recruiting officer in charge of training recruits at the police training school and liaison officer between police and the Civil Service Commission.

Joined Force in 1919

Fowler, who is 53, joined the police force on June 15, 1919, after his return from France where he served with the AEF. He came up through the ranks. His first assignment was as a foot patrolman in the First Precinct.

When he was appointed a detective, Fowler became interested in the science of ballistics. He took a special course on the subject at Northwestern University, then helped organize the department's ballistics bureau in 1931.

Today he has a national reputation as a ballistics expert and has helped unravel many local slayings. His work led to the arrest and conviction of John Eklund, the notorious sniper slayer.

Smith Reynolds Case

On numerous occasions he has been called in as an expert on out-of-town mysteries. One such was the Smith Reynolds case. Fowler found that the young millionaire had shot himself with his own gun, thus proving the innocence of Smith's wife, Libby Holman Reynolds.

Fowler is also a former captain of the Thirteenth Precinct, to which post he was appointed in 1941. He is married and lives with his wife, Anna, at 1631 Roxanna rd. nw.

House Group Vainly Seeks GSI Strike Union Heads

Hoffman Wants To Query Leaders On Red Affiliation At Hearing Today

A special House subcommittee looking into the GSI cafeteria dispute reported last night that it has been unable to subpena any of the union leaders connected with the 23-day-old strike.

Chairman Clare E. Hoffman (R., Mich.) said his agents had succeeded in getting hold of only one witness—a union employe—for the hearing scheduled at 10 a. m. today.

Hoffman said he would like to ask the union leaders, who have chosen not to take the Taft-Hartley non-Communist oath, whether they are or have ever been Commists.

But as of last night, United States marshals could find no trace of the officers. They were looking for at least two officials of the striking union, Local 471, United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers, and three leaders of the parent union, United Public Workers of America (CIO).

Said Hoffman: "I don't want to charge anyone with beeing a Communist. But I would like them to tell us. Apparently, these people don't want the right of free speech."

Among those the committee sought are national officers Abram Flaxer, president, Eleanor Nelson, secretary - treasurer, and Robert Weinstein, organization director, also Richard A. Bancroft, president, and Oliver T. Palmer, business agent of the local union.

On the strike front about 1200 union members continued to picket 40 Government Services cafeterias.

The walkout was precipitated by a GSI declaration that the union would have to file non-Communist affidavits before GSI would negotiate a new contract.

Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach, it was reported, has made no new move in his efforts to settle the strike.

School Board Hits Pay Plan

without job tenure could result in frequent turnover in the position and make it difficult for the board to hire a qualified man for the job. At present the superintendent is hired for three years under a contract subject to renewal by the board.

5. Election of four members of the eight-man board to represent geographical areas is undesirable since the board is charged with conducting an entire school system and its members should represent interests of the entire community.

6. A privilege granted the city manager and other District officers to participate in board meetings would interfere with the board's "exclusive jurisdiction over the administration and operation" of schools.

The board also struck at provisions in the bill which would permit it to hold executive sessions. All meetings of the board with the exception of those dealing with personnel and acquisition of property are now open to the public.

Accountants Seek Changes in Measure

Opposition to certain provisions of H. R. 2657, the administrative practitioners bill, was expressed by Spencer Gordon, counsel for the American Institute of Accountants, National organization of certified public accountants, who testified yesterday before a House Judiciary subcommittee.

The proposed act would provide that no one could practice before any Government agency without registration. Gordon urged that the law as to practice by non-lawyers be left as it now is, and that each agency be permitted to make its own rules of practice.

Two Purses Snatched

Two purse snatchings were reported here yesterday. A man grabbed a purse containing $2.50 from Myra Lester of 2532 14th st. nw., in the 1400 block of Girard st. nw.

Ethel W. Herrell of 1137 4th st. ne., said she was walking north on 16th st. ne., when a man knocked her to the ground and took her purse which contained $23.

Charles E. Baker, a Navy steward stationed at the Navy Annex, Arlington, said he was robbed of $7 at gunpoint in the 2500 block of S. Capitol st.

Correction

Ruhland Overruled

Hospital Bill Crackdown Is Ordered

The Commissioners have overruled Health Officer George C. Ruhland by ordering a crackdown February 1 on noncharity District patients who don't pay their hospital bills, it was learned last night.

They adopted a tough new Health Department hospital accounting and bill-collection system recommended by a special investigating committee.

$63,905 Uncollectable

The action was taken after Auditor A. R. Pilkerton and Tax Collector Guy Pearson informed them that 1594 District patients' bills, totaling $63,905, are uncollectable because they are more than 3 years old.

Of this amount, $61,705 was due Gallinger Hospital and Glenn Dale Sanatorium. Remainder was due Casualty, Children's and Emergency Hospitals, which handle District patients on a contract basis.

The investigation was ordered by the Commissioners last September after Pilkerton told the Commissioners that "very little effort was made (by the hospitals) to collect these accounts."

Blamed Lack of Funds

Gallinger and Health Department officials, recently under fire because of conditions in the hospital's psychiatric and tuberculosis wards, have blamed insufficient funds for part of the difficulties.

Health Officer Ruhland, fourth member of the investigating committee, said the new system was "desirable" but refused to sign the recommendation because it didn't rovide for additional accounting personnel.

But Pilkerton, chairman of the committee, said "I doubt seriously whether the claim for additional personnel for that reason alone is justified." The Commissioners approved despite Dr. Ruhlands objections.

Truman Backs Plan For Security Week

President Truman said yesterday that national preparedness means preparedness for peace and not for war.

Mr. Truman indorsed plans of the Reserve Officers Association for National Security Week, February 12-22, and expressed the hope the program can be observed in every State and community.

"In these times, the inclusion of all our people in the study of the things which must be done to guarantee our national security is very important," the President said in a letter to Brig. Gen. E. A. Evans, executive director of the association.

New Comet Heading Earthward in Arc

Berkeley, Calif., Jan. 27 (U.P.).—A new comet is sweeping toward the earth, astronomers reported tonight, and should be visible through large amateur telescopes by February 17.

The comet now is on the other side of the sun, but is moving toward the earth in a wide arc. It was discovered January 18 by Antonin Mrkos, Czechoslovakian astrophysicist.

Falls Church Water System Bonds Voted

Landowners Approve $1,000,000 Issue To Increase Supply

Falls Church resident landowners yesterday voted 301 to 45 for a one million dollar bond issue to link the town's water system with that of the District of Columbia.

Yesterday's "freeholder's" balloting will now be followed by a general election on the issue, which probably will be held about the middle of February.

Immediately after tally of yesterday's ballots, the Falls Church town council petitioned Fairfax Circuit Court for a general election "as soon as possible."

Yesterday's election was held under terms of the town charter which provide that, on any public improvement bond issue, resident landowners first vote on the question and then the question be submitted to a general vote.

The water system expansion was planned because of rapid population growth during recent years.

Plans call for a 24-inch water main linked to the District's system at Chain Bridge, then running to Chesterbrook. From there, a 20-inch main will run to a proposed million-gallon reservoir on Mt. Daniel.

A system of 12-inch mains will connect the reservoir with an existing tank on Prout Hill. Other smaller mains will pipe the water into the regular Falls Church water system.

The town estimates that water can be bought from the District's Dalecarlia water plant at an estimated cost of $65 for every 1,000,000 gallons, compared to the present $100 rate charged by Arlington County which now supplies most of the town's water needs.

Dash to Meet Boss Costs $55 in Fines

The desire to be punctual from a late start yesterday cost Attorney General Tom C. Clark's chauffeur $55 in fines.

Thomas Henry Williams, 33, of 1306 Girard st. nw., the chauffeur, was found guilty by Municipal Court Judge Aubrey Fennell of speeding, passing two traffic lights and two stop signs Sunday night.

Testimony by the arresting policeman, Pvt. J. S. Croson, said Williams complained "I'll be late to pick up the boss" after the driver was arrested at Massachusetts ave. and 32d st. nw.

Williams said he had taken Clark to the home of former Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan, 4955 Glenbrook rd. nw., and told to return at 10:30 p. m. Police records showed he was arrested after 10:22 p. m.

Conviction of speeding over 40 miles an hour calls for automatic revocation of a driver's permit. Williams paid a $25 fine on the speeding charge; $10 each on the traffic light counts and $5 each for passing the stop signs.

Rent Boosts Proposed

Rent increases averaging 3.25 per cent were recommended yesterday for 112 apartments at The Pall Mall, 1112 16th st. nw., by a District Rent Control Administration examiner.

The recommendation would raise rents for one and one-half room and bath apartments from $48.50 to $50.25 a month; for two and one-half room and bath units from $59.50 to $61.25 a month.

Parkway Bill Offered

Representative J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.) yesterday introduced a bill in the House to survey possibilities of a parkway along the route of the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal from Great Falls to Cumberland, Md.

Beall, a member of the House District and House Public Works Committees, represents the Congressional District which runs from Montgomery County to the western end of Maryland.

The bill would authorize spending $40,000 for the survey.

Brick for Bar Costs $75

One brick, if tossed through a bar door, costs $75 or 30 days in Washington.

That was the sentence levied on Catherine Horton, 23, of 1008 K st. nw., yesterday by Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson.

Passed as Accountants

Two Arlington men were listed yesterday by the Virginia Board of Accountancy among a group of 34 Virginians who passed examinations for certified public accountants held in Richmond last November.

They are William McPeters Jones, 3031 S. Columbus st., Fairlington, tax consultant and teacher of accounting at George Washington University, and Roderick L. Murray, 801 N. Wayne st., tax accountant for an Arlington real estate concern.

License Tax Deadline

Saturday is deadline for payment of Fairfax County business license taxes, Commissioner of Revenue John W. Ferguson warned yesterday. He said all taxes for the calendar year 1947 must be paid before his office closes at 1 p. m.

Citation for Senator

Senator Edward Martin (R., Pa.) yesterday received a formal citation from the District Department, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The citation, praising Martin for patriotic service and outstanding achievements, was presented to the Senator at the Capitol. It was signed by Albert M. Armstrong, department commander; Martha J. Reynolds, department president of the ladies auxiliary, and Clyde M. Keirn, department adjutant.

Balconies Require Permits

District residents who decide to follow President Truman's lead and build balconies or porches on their homes were warned yesterday to first obtain building permits.

Deputy Building Inspector J. J. Ilgenfritz also cautioned home owners to make certain contractors who perform such jobs have proper permits from the department of inspections, because, he said, the owner is responsible.

Primary Plan Pushed

A speaker's bureau to inform Arlington civic groups on need for a State-wide nonpartisan primary bill has been set up by the Joint Legislative Committee, Chairman T. Oscar Smith said yesterday. The committee represents a number of county organizations.

Man Jailed in Knifing

George Crosby, 27, of Falls Church, was fined $200 and sentenced to six months in jail yesterday in Fairfax Circuit Court on a charge of knifing two men November 29.

Wilson O. Myers, 1012 Fowler st., Falls Church, and Garland R. Henderson, Herndon, Va., testified Crosby slashed them for "no apparent reason." Crosby pleaded not guilty, claiming self-defense. Judge Paul E. Brown reduced the charge from felonious wounding to assault and battery.

The grand jury, which indicted Crosby last week, also indicted Myers on a charge of feloniously wounding Crosby. Myers will be tried March 11.

Freed by Mistake

The door of freedom, slightly ajar from a tap of opportunity, can look wide open after 40 days in the Occoquan workhouse.

Through it yesterday went 29-year-old Leroy Clark, whose name was called by mistake when the Occoquan bus unloaded those former prisoners who had paid their debts to society. Custodial Officer John Tyers is an old hand at the business (20 years), but it was only his second trip on the bus.

He checked out the men to be released; then continued on to the jail with several others. He was one prisoner short at this juncture.

Clark, formerly of 1421 3rd st. nw., had completed his term, but still has some time to be supervised by Virginia authorities on a parole violation. A lookout was flashed immediately.

Police Training Planned

A course to train recruits for six vacancies in Arlington's Police Department will be held February 16 through February 22, Chief Harry L. Woodyard announced yesterday. Applications will be received through February 6.

Welfare Parley

Reports Cite Backlog of Social Needs

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

A huge backlog in unmet social needs faces the Nation, and every effort of citizens and local, State and Federal governments must be exerted to meet it.

This was the sense of seven reports delivered yesterday before the National Conference on Social Welfare Needs, in a three-day session at the Washington and Willard Hotels.

Most outstanding of the problems are in the fields of health and housing, the reports showed.

The housing situation is more critical today than it was two years ago because the rate of construction hasn't kept pace with the number of families who doubled up during the war and now seek new housing.

Income Group Reclassified

The Commission on Housing believes that because of increased living costs, families now in the middle $3000-income group must be termed low-income families.

To provide more houses quicker, the commission recommended shots in the arm for every type of dwelling construction. They want more public, low-rent housing. They believe that building new houses to clear sums is a definite part of the housing picture. And they think private enterprise should be stimulated to bear more of the load of construction by making credit credit easier to get, lowering interest rates, and guaranteeing investment yields.

The Health Commission agrees with a United States Public Health Service estimate that medical health officers need to be increased by 90 per cent to provide "basic essentials of public health services" to all residents.

There is need for concentrated work to wipe out the social and economic effects of disease. The commission is in favor of more money for research both to prevent disease and to cure its after-effects.

Education Goals Listed

Seven specific goals for education were listed in the reports. Among these were better teachers, better pay, better buildings and equipment, more utilitarian schools, and concentration on fitting students to meet everyday problems of life.

An agency of cabinet rank within the Federal Government was recommended to administer the social security program through a single administrative unit. The commission report stated social security measures so far in force are "piecemeal" and do not constitute social security.

The reports also called for more leadership by national agencies to close the gap between what is known and what is being done to meet social welfare needs.

"We still have many communities where outmoded services are carried on for the sake of tradition, where only the people of so-called prestige are given a part in the guidance of agency programs."

Other reports presented yesterday included a report on recreation, and a report on special services to children and youth. Workshops are to be held by the conference today to determine how individual communities can foster the goals of the assembly.

Charter Suggested On 'Human Resources'

A crusade for a "Charter of Human Resources" was suggested here yesterday at the National Social Welfare Assembly.

The proposal was made by Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security Administrator. He also called for a new cabinet post to cover the fields of health, education and security.

Creation of such a cabinet position has the support of President Truman and is now before Congress for consideration.

Ewing said the elements of the charter would be the right to health, education, security, recreation.

Members of the conference and the Workshop of Citizens Groups, holding collateral meetings, also heard reports on major phases of social welfare, delivered in workshop groups.

At an assembly dinner last night, Dr. Julius Schreiber, director of the National Institute of Social Relations, declared a group approach is necessary for a clear understanding of world problems.

Warden Calls Md. Prison in Ghastly Shape

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 27 (AP).—Col. Edwin T. Swenson, warden, told the board of public works today that conditions at the Maryland penitentiary were "ghastly."

A program of repairs and changes to cost $250,000 was presented to the board to remedy a situation Swenson said was "not just very necessary but critical."

Harold E. Donnell, superintendent of prisons, and Reuben Oppenheimer, chairman of the board of correction, joined Colonel Swenson in a plea for special funds to meet emergency needs at the institution.

Would Add 4 Feet to Wall

The plan includes a new entrance to the institution for better protection of the public, new bath facilities, heightening the present prison wall four feet as a security measure and building a segregation unit for incorrigible prisoners.

Governor Lane said the board faced the problem of where to get the money for the improvements and suggested that the group in consultation with state engineer John B. Funk present a plan of priorities at the institution.

"We will ask the comptroller's office to see if we can't sweep up the money somewhere for the most necessary work," he said.

New Penitentiary "Out"

"It is a foregone conclusion that we are not going to get a new institution," he added. "Our dormitory set-up is without adequate toilet facilities . . . we don't have any place for mentally disturbed prisoners. We don't have a place to take care of a man when he gets there . . . Approximately 500 of our men are unemployed."

Donnell said that with the recent increase in prison inmates "who need much closer watching" the problem at the penitentiary had become more acute.

Oppenheimer, who opened the group's presentation, said there were many more changes desirable at the institution which were not being asked for now.

The board approved expenditure of $75,000 for repairs and alterations to State armories.

Ring, Necklace Lost

Losses of a $500 engagement ring "within the last month" and a $1000 necklace eight days ago were reported to police yesterday.

The necklace was owned by Mrs. Enid Harms, 10002 Connecticut ave., Kensington, Md., who said she left her home January 19, took a cab to Union Station and a train to New York; then discovered her loss.

The ring loss was reported by Mary P. Wong, 3513 Alton pl. nw.

Rear Windshield Solves 'Stiff' Firemen Problem

Wabash, Ind. (U.P.)—Gene Kegg and Gil Harris, firemen, complained they got "stiff as Frankenstein" from breezy rides on the rear end of the fire truck. They said their wet clothes froze on the way back to the station after fighting fires.

"I don't want any stiff firemen," declared Fire Chief Clarence Frank.

He solved the problem by placing a removable windshield on the rear end of the truck to protect his men.

Lane Backs Cheltenham Negro Rule

Governor Lane of Maryland, said yesterday he would follow a recommendation by the board of managers of Cheltenham School, Prince Georges County, calling for appointment of a new, all-Negro board.

The five white and four Negro members of the old board resigned in a body late Monday, saying they felt an all-Negro board could best serve the school for delinquent Negro boys because "it is likely to hold the staff to a more strict accountability than a mixed board."

Old Board to Serve

The Governor said he had agreed to accept the resignations of the present board members after receiving their assurance they would continue to serve as a unit until the new board can be appointed. He said he would make "a very careful study" before naming the new members.

Resignation of the board followed a meeting at which the members approved unanimously a report of Wallace Reidt, assistant director of the Baltimore Criminal Justice Commission, who had served as executive secretary to the board in order to make a survey of the training school's operations.

Recommended Changes

In recommending an all-Negro board to work with the Negro staff, Reidt told the board "it is my firm conviction that such a board, wisely chosen, will not tolerate some of the conditions that have existed in the past at this school."

The school has been a State problem for many years. The board chairman, Thomas B Sprague, brought Reidt into the picture last summer "to help bring about better conditions."

In his report, Reidt said conditions had improved in many respects since his survey started, but that much remained to be done. Among improvements he recommended a more efficient staff, selected from qualified applicants; a careful survey designed to provide for better use of existing facilities until new ones can be provided; stressing of good citizenship and cleanliness.

When Snow Comes Seattle Gets Its Share

Seattle (U.P.)—Weather bureau records which go back only 55 years reveal that January is the heaviest snow month for Seattle.

The record snowfall here came in late January and early February of 1880, when the snow in downtown Seattle measured 4½ feet.

The 55 years saw an average of 11.3 inches of snow a winter. Six winters during the period showed no appreciable amount of snow.

Kind-to-Squirrels Week

Divorce Suit Filed Against Beryl English

A suit asking an absolute divorce and custody of four adopted children was filed yesterday by Mrs. Kathleen English, 46, wife of Beryl English, former general manager of the Montgomery County Liquor Dispensary System.

The action followed by less than a month the granting of a divorce in Montgomery County Circuit Court to Thomas H. Quinlan, 38, of 10123 Pierce dr., Silver Spring, who charged his wife and English with adultery.

Mrs. English also claimed the two oldest children, aged 19 and 16, had "become ashamed of their father." She asked for both temporary and permanent alimony and estimated her husband's personal assets at more than $250,000.

Quinlan's former wife, Opal B. Quinlan, 33, was formerly secretary to the liquor official. Quinlan's divorce action was based on statements by private detectives that English and his wife registered as man and wife at a Charlottesville, Va., hotel.

In her suit filed in Montgomery County Circuit Court, Mrs. English said she had been living in separate quarters of the English home near Silver Spring since she first learned of her husband's actions. During that period, the suit stated, Mrs. English refused to speak to her husband, communicating with him by notes left on the kitchen sink.

Two Army Pals Play Mutual Cupids

Steeleton, Pa. (U.P.)—Dennis R. Ward, Chehalis, Wash., and Charles Strickler, Steeleton, became pals while in Army service at Scott Field, Ill.

Each introduced the other to his sister by mail and two steady exchanges of correspondence began.

Dennis is to be married this month to Nancy Strickler and Charles will be the best man. Dennis had never seen Nancy until he arrived here from Chehalis to make the arrangements.

In February Charles will go to Chehali sand meet for the first time Dennis' sister, Martha. Friends of the Strickler family said they wouldn't be surprised if wedding bells ring there, too.

Finds Wages in U. S. Mighty Attractive

Harrisburg, Pa. (U.P.)—Fred Read reluctantly brought his family to the United States but he's not sorry now.

Read, a bricklayer, got a job two days after he arrived here with his wife and four children to live with a daughter who had married an American soldier.

The job pays $90 a week—three times as much as Read received for the same kind of work in his home town, Bushey, Hertfordshire, England.

On 2d Thought, Wife Decides Beating's OK

Alice, Tex. (U.P.)—A housewife, with a little time to reflect, told a Texas judge she felt her husband was justified in beating her with a belt when she insisted he hang out the wash.

The husband was charged with aggravated assault and received a four-day sentence from County Judge C. Woodrow Laughlin. But he had been in jail four days awaiting trial, so all was even.

When the judge asked the woman if she thought her husband did the right thing by her, she replied:

"Yes, sir. At first I didn't think it was right," she said, "but now I do. I want my husband back. He's a good man."

Adm. Stirling Dies After 48 Years in Navy

Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, jr., 75, who retired in 1936 after a stormy career of 48 years of Navy service and action in two wars, died of a heart ailment yesterday at his home in Baltimore.

Admiral Stirling, who often was called the story petrel of the service because of the controversies stirred up by his forthright views, tried unsuccessfully in 1944 to emerge from retirement at 72, to fight his third official conflict.

Intervention Advocate

Following his retirement, he lectured and wrote several books. When Great Britain went to war with Germany in 1939, he became an all-out advocate of United States intervention.

He started another controversy in 1936, when he wrote an article suggesting a coalition against Russian Communism, causing such a storm that Secretary of the Navy Claude Swanson "admonished" him.

The son of a rear admiral of the same name, Admiral Stirling was born in Vallejo, Calif., on April 30, 1872. Brought up in Baltimore, he was graduated from Annapolis at 20, and began his long service, which was to send him over 400,000 miles of salt water, according to his estimate.

In 1910 and 1911 he was on the staff of the Naval War College, Newport, R. I. He was successively commander of the submarine flotilla in the Atlantic Fleet, senior aide to the commander of submarines in the Atlantic Fleet, commandant of the New London submarine base and school, captain of the USS Chicago, and chief of staff for the submarine commander of the Atlantic Fleet.

Criticized Subs

It was when he was flotilla commander that he started one of his controversies by reporting there were many defects in the submarines and by stating only one of the 14 under his command was ready to submerge with safety in scheduled maneuvers.

When the United States entered World War I, Admiral Stirling commanded the Navy transport President Lincoln, later taking command of the USS Von Steuben.

Postwar Assignments

After the war he received battleship and Navy yard commands, serving in Washington from April, 1924, to December, 1926, as captain of the Navy Yard and assistant superintendent of the Naval Gun Factory.

He then served as chief of staff to the commander in chief of the United States Fleet, commander of the Yangtze River Patrol, president of the Naval Examining Board, commandant of the 14th Naval District at Pearl Harbor, and later of the 3d District in New York.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow at Arlington National Cemetery.

The admiral's two surviving sons also are Navy career men. Capt. Yates Stirling, 3d, is in retirement at Norfolk, Va., and Lieut. Comdr. Harry E. Stirling is stationed at Charleston, S. C. A brother, Comdr. Archibald Stirling, retired, lives at Newport, R. I.

Other survivors are his wife and three daughters, Adelaide Y. and Ellen E. Stirling of Baltimore and Mrs. William R. Ilk of Los Angeles.

Edward J. Dowd

Cleveland, Jan. 27 (AP).—Edward J. Dowd, 56, FBI agent who helped set up the trap that led to the killing of John Dillinger, bank robber and outlaw, died last night at his suburbar. Lakewood home.

Dowd worked on many famous cases in his 24 years with the FBI. He arrested "Boston Blackie," a jewel thief and confidence man, near Pittsburgh. He helped prepare evidence that led to the conviction of Al Capone for income tax fraud in 1931. He also aided in capture of "Baby Face" Nelson, "Pretty Boy" Floyd and "Marty" Durkin.

Charles M. Hargrave

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 27.—Funeral services were held at Bethany Baptist Church today for Charles M. Hargrave, 71, well-known resident of Caroline County, who died Sunday at his home at Penola. He was secretary of the Bethany Sunday School for 20 years.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Annie L. Hargrave, and a sister, Mrs. Douglas Coleman, of Penola.

Mrs. Frances C. Shugart

Charles Town, W. VA., Jan. 27.—Funeral services will be held here tomorrow for Mrs. Frances Coleman Shugart, 4, who died at the home of her son, D. Stanley, in Philadelphia Sunday night. A native of Culpeper, Va., she had resided here of more than 50 years.

Sales Students Taught To Know Products

Harrisburg, Pa. (U.P.)—Students taking distributive education courses in local high schools are learning how to be sales clerks who can tell the customer something about the product besides the price.

The training includes three hours of classroom work each week plus practical experience in city stores. The store manager helps the teacher grade the students.

To get along in the highly competitive retailing field, the coordinators of the plan tell their students, salespeople must know the meaning of technical terms such as denier, crepon, aralac, butadiene, crocking and kapok.

Guy Babylon

Westminster, Md., Jan. 27 (AP).—Funeral services will be held Thursday for Guy Babylon, 61, a member of the Republican State Central Committee, who died yesterday after a short illness.

Survivors include his widow and three children, Graham Babylon, associated with his father's burial vault business; Lena M. Babylon of Baltimore, and Mrs. Charles Koontz of Westminster. A fourth child, George, was killed in the last war.

Burial will be in Pipe's Creek Cemetery.

William W. Troxell

Baltimore, Jan. 27 (AP).—William W. Troxell, chief of laboratories at the Glenn L. Martin Aircraft Co., died in Union Memorial Hospital today after an illness of several weeks. He was 54.

He is survived by his wife, a daughter and a son.

Funeral services will be held Thursday.

Miss Helen Snow Jones

Funeral services for Miss Helen Snow Joes, 77, who died late Monday at her home, Edgecombe, Mclean, Fairfax County, will be held today at 11 a. m. from the residence. Rites will be conducted by the Rev. Raymond Wolven, retired Episcopal minister and an old family friend.

Burial will be in Bar Harbor, Me., where Miss Jones maintained a summer home for many years.

A native of Chicago, Miss Jones had lived in the Washington area for 33 years, having come here from Lake Geneva, Wis., in 1914. She moved to Fairfax County in 1921 with her brother, the late E. Lee Jones, who made his home with her until his death in 1937.

Her only survivor is a sister, Mrs. William J. Ormonde of Greenwich Conn.

Trick Diets Whet Appetite for Square Fare

By Ida Jean Kain

EVEN though reducing has gone scientific, there are perennial crops of Nine-Day Wonder, Ten-Day Miracle, and Daffy Diets galore—all promising to whisk off 10 pounds in 10 days . . . abbracadabra! Such diets sound fascinating—so fascinating they cast a spell and you lend an avid ear to the sweet music of promise. Ten pounds off . . . mmm-m, just musing about it makes you feel almost slim. And so, with sylph-determination, a-dieting you go.

The question is, will such diets help to normalize your weight? To be honest, any slimming program that is restricted to a set number of days—be the diet good or bad—is too temporary to make much of a dent in excess pounds. And reducing fare that is too far from normal cannot be followed in most cases until normal weight is reached. A very good thing for your health it is, too, for trick diets usually fail to meet the dietary needs of the body. And since there is nothing like flimsy fare to whet your appetite for good food, at the end of the time you enthusiastically return to overeating!

Faddy diets do nothing to strengthen your will power. The will is merely a set of habits. Lack of will with respect to fattening foods means wrong food habits. The only plan that helps to change your ways of eating from fattening to slimming to normal is to establish good habits of eating. There is only one diet that will do this, and that is the scientific formula which provides all nutrition essentials in protective amounts, with the calories cut in nonessentials to one third under your energy requirements. It is not really a diet; it is merely eating to get slim. And it's so nearly your regular ways of eating, you think it won't reduce your weight. It will. Furthermore, it is the only really safe diet to follow.

There is magic in it, too. On the protective slimming pattern, you can eat three meals a day, lose up to 2 pounds a week, get rid of the bulges, get back your bounce, stay younger yourself, and keep your weight at normal.

Plan the family meal around the essentials and restrict your fats and starches to keep within 1000 to 1100 calories a day. That number is for women. Men require 1400 to 1600 a day, depending, of course, on normal weight and activity.

Here is the list of essentials for a basic reducing diet:

	Calories
FRUITS: 1 whole orange or ½ grapefruit, or two thirds glass juice, plus two other fresh or canned fruits	250
EGGS AND CHEESE: 1 egg and 1 serving of cheese, or 2 eggs	150
MILK: 2 glasses of skim milk or buttermilk, or 1 glass plus cheese	180
VEGETABLES: 2 cooked, a green leafy or yellow, plus second cooked vegetable	100
RAW VEGETABLES: A green salad, celery, carrot slivers, tomatoes or slaw, any raw greens	25
BREAD—100 per cent whole grain, 2 thin slices	100

For the Bottle Baby

One cannot always take the time to rinse out baby's bottle with borax water and sterilize it just when he is finished drinking from it, but it takes only a second to fill with cold water and let stand until convenient to wash it. This will prevent the milk from souring on the sides of the bottle.

For the Weekend Guest

If the housewife does a great deal of weekend entertaining it is nice to equip the guest room with bath salts, dusting powder, talcum powder and tooth paste—not forgetting a new toothbrush. These may all be purchased inexpensively and are very convenient if your guest has come unsupplied.

A Help When Quilting

Pricks from the needle are hard to avoid when doing a great amount of quilting, but one seamstress has found that painting the fingertips with several coats of nail polish before starting this job will do away with those unpleasant little wounds.

Basque Waist of Spring Styles Demands Snug Fitting Girdle

By Peggy Preston

While you are dreaming about that new spring outfit you had best give a long, cool thought to what kind of undergarment you will wear with it.

Girdle, pantie-girdle, old fashioned corset or the new fangled waist minimizer—take your pick. But something along these lines is essential if you want to do justice to the newer styles.

Fact is, it won't do you any good to purchase a frock with a tiny, basque bodice that emphasizes the waistline and then let a "spare tire" destroy the whole silhouette. Better that you stick to your straight, skimpy L-85 models.

Not that you need to dash out and buy a heavily boned garment. Fashions have not changed in corset bracket. The kind of foundation you wear depends entirely upon your figure and not the dress you wear. If you needed "bones" before the new hour-glass fad came in you'll still need them. But a snug, well cut elasticized girdle is still all you need if you are average size and shape.

During the war, however, when good girdles were hard to find, many of us lost the habit of wearing them and our taste for them as well. Now, with plenty of familiar brand name garments back on the market we have no good excuse for going ungirdled.

You'll find the new girdles all tend to reach up above the waistline and hug the diaphragm. They have been designed to give a smooth line over the entire midriff. Not that they'll take off any inches, mind you, or give you a tiny waistline, but they will halt the "battle of the bulge" to all outward appearance.

One of the nicest garments we saw in the medium price range was the "Night and Day" girdle by Corsetry, Inc. This is a style that was popular in prewar days and is now back on the shelves once more.

A complete foundation garment, it combines bra, girdle and pantie all in one and is zippered on either side. Lastex panels in front and back have lots of "give." In the back the lace bra is separated from the girdle and it is this feature that makes it excellent for sportswear, allowing for easy bending and free movement of the back muscles. Merchandise such as this is available at both The Hecht Co. and Lansburgh's.

Local stores report a moderate amount of buying in the waist-minimizer department. These are the little corselets that span the waistline, are boned and sometimes lace in front like the ones grandma use to wear. However, corset experts recommend them only for young girls whose waists are already slim, but who want them a little slimmer. They are popular with the young set for wear with ballerina dresses or for evening. They might not prove healthy or comfortable for the girl who sits stooped over a typewriter all day.

ACCENT on the Waistline: In order to do justice to the approved silhouette for 1948 you should choose a well-made, snug fitting foundation garment. Best are the all-in-one styles that mold the diaphragm and eliminate the "spare-tire effect

Drapery Fabrics Made to Match

Have you ever tried to buy draperies to match an upholstered chair? If so, you know what a gulf there had been between upholsterer's fabrics and those you find by the yard. But now, thanks to a recent banding together of manufacturers, it will be easier to get attractive home decorating schemes according to Ethel Brostrom, assistant home furnishings editor of Better Homes & Gardens magazine.

Manufacturers have developed 27 different fabrics which go together in harmonious color schemes. All the fabrics are available by the yard, so that you can make your choice for upholstery, slipcovers or draperies. Or when you select new furniture upholstered in one of them, you'll be shown fabrics that go with it for your draperies or for slipcovering your old pieces. The fabrics include stripes, plaids, florals and the new matallic weaves. The furniture itself has good modern lines, comes in three finishes: Oak mist, silver mist or jet black.

Senator Barkley to Speak at Press Party

Senator Alben W. Barkley will introduce "Senator Claghorn" when the famous radio comedian appears before President and Mrs. Truman at the reception to be given in their honor tomorrow evening by the American Newspaper Women's Club.

The Minority Leader of the Senate, one of the famous orators on Capitol Hill, will present "Claghorn," or Kenny Delmar as he is known in private life, to the club members and distinguished guests present in the Mayflower Hotel ballroom. "Senator Claghorn" is expected to make a campaign speech for President Truman that will really be one for the books.

Senator Barkley, in turn, will be introduced by his good friend, former Price Administrator Paul Porter, who will act as master of ceremonies for the program of entertainment. Preceding Kenny Delmar will be the Potomac Clippers, one of the city's famous barbershop quartets, who will come out in costume and perform a little close harmony. The quartet is composed of Louis Metcalf, Norman MacLean, Busey Howard and Gene Watson.

New associate members of the American Newspaper Women's Club, most of whom will take guests to the reception, include Mrs. J. William Fulbright, Mrs. Averell Harriman, Mrs. Homer Ferguson, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, Mrs. Kenneth Royall, Mrs. Norman Armour, Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward, Mrs. J. Howard McGrath, Mrs. Thad Brown, Mrs. Clifford Davis, Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, Mrs. John Davis Lodge, Mrs. Duncan Phillips and Mrs. Curt Schiffeler.

MRS. SEYMOUR BERRY
. . . married Sunday evening

Berry—Sheeskin

The marriage of Miss Zelda Sheeskin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isador Sheeskin of Washington, to Seymour Berry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Berry, of New York, took place Sunday evening in the B'Nai Israel Synagogue, Rabbi Henry Segal officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin gown trimmed with seed pearls. A juliet cap of seed pearls held her veil and she carried two white orchids with her Bible.

Miss Adelle Sosnick, wearing a gown of aqua faille and carrying American Beauty roses, was maid of honor. The bridesmaids, Miss Mitzi Spector, Miss Harryette Schwartz and Mrs. Don Balfour, wore fuchsia gowns and carried yellow roses. Herbert Forrest was best man and the ushers included Jack Sheeskin, Milton Dolinka and Seymour Blubstein. A reception followed.

The newlyweds will make their home in Washington. Mrs. Berry is in her senior year at George Washington University.

Miss Sara Fendall Harrison, daughter of Mrs. Charles Fauntleroy Harrison of Leesburg, Va., and the late Mr. Harrison, was married on January 24 in Leesburg to John Freed Scheetz, son of Mrs. Henry Franklin Scheetz of Pittsburgh, Pa., and the late Mr. Scheetz.

The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's mother, the Rev. J. Manly Cobb officiating.

Given in marriage by her brother, Sterling M. Harrison, the bride chose a gray crepe afternoon dress with a yellow orchid corsage. Her maid of honor, Miss Mary Metzger, wore a gray dress with a bronze orchid corsage. Miss Sally Fendall Harrison, niece of the bride and daughter of the Commonwealth Attorney and Mrs. Sterling M. Harrison, served as flower girl. She wore a yellow dress and carried an old-fashioned bouquet.

The bride attended Sweet Briar College and Mr. Scheetz attended University of Pennsylvania.

Johnson—Hobbs

Miss Audrey Carolyeen Hobbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hobbs of Colesville, Md., and Lynwood Earl Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Johnson of Moncure, N. C., were married on January 24 in the Colesville Methodist Church, the Rev. Paul Grosclose officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of candlelight satin with a bertha embroidered with seed pearls and sequins. Her fingertip veil fell from a seed pearl tiara and she carried white roses. Mrs. Eleanor Bailey, matron of honor for her sister, was gowned in aqua and carried red roses. The bridesmaids included Miss Shirley Hobbs, wearing light blue and carrying pink roses; Mrs. Daniel Lewis, in pink and carrying tea roses; Miss Jacqueline Johnson, in peacock blue and carrying yellow roses, and Miss Betty Schaeffer, in gold and carrying talisman roses. Misses Patricia and Sandra Hobbs, nieces of the bride, served as flower girls. They wore pink taffeta dresses and carried mixed flowers.

Schwab—Trent

Miss Via Donna Trent, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Simon Peter Trent, formerly of Minneapolis, Minn., and Elmer B. Schwab, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Schwab, formerly of Washington, were married on January 20.

The Rev. Hugo B. Schiff performed the ceremony at his home in Alexandria, Va. Mr. and Mrs. Schwab will make their home at 5203 Connecticut ave. nw.

Brodsky—Tyson

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Tyson of Rochester, N. Y., announce the marriage of their daughter, Madeline, to Morris Brodsky of Washington. The wedding took place on December 14 at Temple Beth Joseph in Rochester. The newlyweds have returned from a honeymoon at Miami Beach to make their home in Washington. The bride has resided in the Capital for the past three years.

Lowe—Murphy

In St. Mark's Episcopal Church on January 9, Miss Mary Louise Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Murphy, was married to James Elmer Lowe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse M. Lowe. The Rev. Robert J. Plumb officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was costumed in white slipper satin. A seed pearl tiara held her fingertip veil and she carried white roses. Mrs. Mary J. Lindsey, matron of honor, wore rose-colored satin and carried talisman roses. Also attending the bride were Miss Marguerite Murphy, Mrs. Edith Cangemi and Mrs. Helen Schermerhorn. They wore lavender and old rose gowns and carried yellow and pink roses.

Anthony Blasioli served as best man and ushers were Charles E. McMannama, Arthur R. Cloey, jr., and Thomas Economow. A reception followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Kraus. On return from their New York honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Lowe will live in Washington.

Billy Delano Prefers Small Houses

Designer of Truman's Porch Best Known for Post Office And Yale Divinity School

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S porch has created such a cozy teapot tempest, a few words about the architect will not come amiss. He is William Adams Delano, known as Billy, of course, a shy, overly modest charmer who has turned out some of the loveliest buildings in this country. He is member of an old New York family, a Beaux Arts graduate, and has been decorated by that most distinguished body, the Institute of France.

DELANO

Right here in Washington he has designed the Post Office, the charming Japanese Embassy and was in charge of additions made to the British Embassy. Perhaps his best known buildings are the American Embassy in Paris and Yale's Divinity School.

He is familiar with the White House because he supervised additions during President Roosevelt's regime. He was a member of the Capital's Park and Planning Commission some fifteen years, resigned because he couldn't spare time commuting between New York and Washington. As to the porch, Mr. Delano was simply told it was going to be built, discussed it with Presidential Secretary Charles Ross and eventually the President himself, all before drawing a line. But despite having created so many monumental piles, Billy Delano much prefers to design small, exquisite private houses. In New York he and his wife "Louie," live in a Victorian, mid-town, brownstone house, on Long Island in a rambling place famous for its informal gardens.

From Behind the Iron Curtain

COLUMNIST MARQUIS CHILDS, who slipped behind the Iron Curtain in professional capacity this past autumn, tells a nostalgic tale he picked up in Poland. Prince Christopher Radzivil, member of one of Poland's most aristocratic clans, after six years in German concentration camps, is now easing along with the new regime, eking a precarious existence editing a small party paper. His, traditionally, vast estates were confiscated by the communists, divided, in part, among his former peasants and domestics. However, there's no hard feeling, all seem to love the Polish equivalent of the "ol' massa" and so Prince Christopher gladly accepted an invitation to spend his vacation with his former coachman. During the stay the Minister of Propaganda arrived in the small village, on a tour of speechmaking. Prince Christopher, as guest of the coachman, was accorded a front row seat. As the Minister of Propaganda stepped on the platform, he spotted Radzivil, asked severely "How long have you been here?" Without moving a face muscle, completely dead-pan, Prince Christopher Radzivil replied policely, "Five centuries!"

Mrs. Hendrick—No Daisy

WHEN Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt flew to Geneva a few months ago she was accompanied by the State Department's James P. Hendrick and Mrs. Hendrick. Ellie Hendrick, who possesses a neat sense of humor, tells the following story on herself.

Weather settled in, the plane returned to its Irish base several times. The backings and fillings were exhausting to everyone except Mrs. Roosevelt, who worked on her papers serenely as in her Hyde Park library.

After incredible bumps, the plane landed in Geneva. The State Department's Jonathan Daniels headed the huge reception committee. Mrs. R. stepped out first, met the flash-bulb barrage with her usual equanimity. The others staggered out after her. When Mrs. Hendrick returned home, she read Mr. Daniels' terse account of the occasion, "Mrs. Roosevelt arrived looking fresher than the proverbial daisy. Ellie Hendrick looked as if she'd been shot from a cannon."

HOWARD GREER'S "Rope Print Dress," which is designed to make a woman look 10 pounds lighter than she really is. All printed fabrics used by Mr. Greer are designed by himself, an accomplishment he learned as an artist before he took up dressmaking

'Leap Year Collection' Comes From California

By Peggy Preston

CALIFORNIA fashions came to Washington yesterday. And, believe it or not, they were calm, cool and conservative. They were also lovely and wearable, to borrow a few Eastern adjectives.

The collection, shown at Woodward & Lothrop's, was the handiwork of Howard Greer, whose dressmaking establishment in Hollywood has long been a mecca for the well-dressed in motion picture and social circles. Mr. Greer was here in person to act as commentator on the show that included 50 of his original custom-made designs. The clothes, plus Mr. Greer, are en route to New York today for an appearance at a Fifth Avenue store.

Mr. Greer called it his "Leap Year collection—the kind that will speak for the gal who is too shy to speak for herself." But, actually, the Greer clothes could never be so bold. They require a subtle, appreciative eye, for it is their beautiful understatement that gives them their style.

A craftsman of distinction, Mr. Greer gives great attention to such dressmaking details as seams, tucks, fastenings and delicate trimmings. Each of his dresses (he makes few suits or coats) has excellent lines and frequently the spotlight is thrown on the neckline which he accentuates with lace, embroidery or some kind of trimming.

His clothes seem to be the special property of the "Forgotten Women," the millions who will never be able to wear the exaggerated, full-skirted styles. He showed 10 or 15 basic black or navy blue frocks, some with jackets, others simple and unadorned. Each is the type that a woman can hang in her closet this year and 10 years from now can take out and wear with the knowledge that she is not out of fashion.

On the Capital Party Calendar . . .

MRS. JAMES MacPHERSON entertained at tea yesterday in honor of Miss Anita Cajigas, whose marriage to Flying Officer Clarence George Matiusch, RCAF, will take place on February 28. The party was held at the Woman's National Democratic Club.

Mrs. Morris Gives Luncheon for Mme. Lima

MRS. RICHARD Morris entertained Monday at a luncheon in the Embassy Room of the Statler Hotel, in honor of Mme. Jose Farria Lima, wife of the former Chief of the Brazilian Aeronautical Commission. The guest of honor was presented with an orchid corsage, and the other ladies were presented gardenias.

Mme. Honorio Ferraz Koeller, wife of the new chief of the commission, and Mme. Lygia Heck were among the guests.

Dinner Party Honors Miss Gladys Conquest

MISS GLADYS CONQUEST of Verdun, Canada, was guest of honor last evening at a dinner given by the Nursing School faculty of St. Elizabeths Hospital at Water Gate Inn. Miss Conquest is leaving Washington this week for Verdun, after being associated for the past three months with the psychiatric nursing program at St. Elizabeths.

Among the guests at dinner were Miss Alice Stone, Miss Hazel Young, Miss Dorothy Morris, Mrs. Leon Yochelon, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bushnell, Miss Louise Crapenthin, Mrs. Lawrence Tilley, Miss Lucille Love, Miss Martha Thomas, Miss Mary Olszaneck and Miss June Whitehead.

Mrs. Miller Honors Four Young Winners

MRS. JUSTIN MILLER entertained at a small tea yesterday in her apartment at Wardman Park in honor of Miss Janet Geister of Ohio; Miss Rose Ellen Mudd of Montana; Miss Laura Shatto of Maryland and Miss Alice Wade Tyree of Oklahoma, the four national winners of the Voice of Democracy $500 Scholarship prizes.

The contest was sponsored by the National Association of Broadcasters, the Radio Manufacturers Association and the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, and was supervised by the United States Office of Education.

Most of the ladies whom Mrs. Miller had asked to pour tea yesterday came from the four States of the prize winners.

Mrs. Fred Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice, was among those at the tea table and others were Mrs. Harold H. Burton, Mrs. E. Barrett Prettyman, Mrs. James E. Murray, Mrs. Robert A. Taft, Mrs. Zales N. Ecton, Mrs. A. S. M. Monroney and Mrs. Mike Mansfield.

Mrs. Robert E. Lee 3d Gives Dinner Party

MRS. ROBERT E. LEE, 3d, entertained at a small dinner party last evening and later took her guests to the Philadelphia Orchestra concert at Constitution Hall. Guests in her box were Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Montgomery and Mr. and Mrs. McDonald Gordon.

Mr. Bliss to Entertain Red Cross Leaders

Robert Woods Bliss, chairman of the Special Gifts Division of the 1948 Red Cross Metropolitan Area Fund Campaign, will entertain the leaders of Special Gifts teams on Friday at luncheon at 12:30 at the Sulgrave Club.

Team leaders are Mrs. Peter Dewey, Mrs. David Varner, Mrs. James L. Houghteling, Mrs. A. S. J. Atkinson, Mrs. Charles Dewey, Mrs. W. Jasper DuBose, L. Howell LaMotte, Blair Childs, Samuel Barrow, Alexander Middletor., Robert Lacey, and Paul E. Shorb. Joseph C. Grew, general campaign chairman, and Randolph G. Bishop, campaign director, will also be present.

Mme. Ali Gives Tea Before Return to India

MME. ASAF ALI, wife of the Indian Ambassador, had a few of her friends in for tea yesterday afternoon to say goodby before leaving for India. The Ambassadress is returning to her country for a visit of several months. A political leader in her own right, she is returning on the advice of Ghandi, who feels her place is in India at this time.

Mme. Ali will leave for New York City today, and from there she will fly to India on the 29th.

Polish Ambassador Is Dinner Host

THE Ambassador of Poland and Mme. Winiewicz entertained at dinner last evening in honor of Matt L. Szymczak, a member of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, and Mrs. Szymczak. A director of the International Bank, J. V. Mladak of Czechoslovakia, was also an honor guest.

Adm., Mrs. Martins Will Entertain At Palladian Room

Admiral and Senora J. Dodsworth Martins are among the many notables who have reserved a table for the supper-dance opening of the new Palladian Room at the Shoreham Hotel this evening. They will have at their table Capt. and Senora H. B. Coelho and their two daughters; Col. and Senora Orlando Rangel, Senora Sylvio Heck and Lieut. and Senora A. B. Vasconcelos.

Capt. and Mrs. William Watson will entertain the Minister from Australia, Alfred Stirling, and his sister, Miss Dorothy Stirling, as well as Mr. and Mrs. William Sharon Farr. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kellams will be guests at Mr. and Mrs. J. Donald Halsted's table.

To Entertain

The Ambassador of Norway and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne have issued invitations for two dinners, the first on February 4, the second on February 10.

British Designers Go Back to 1870 For Inspiration

By Geraldine Hill

London, Jan. 27 (U.P.).—Capt. Richard Molyneux and Norman Hartnell slipped back to the 1870 silhouette today in their spring and summer fashion shows.

Molyneux, who numbers royal duchesses and wealthy peeresses among his clientele, sat on the fence while his rivals squabbled over hemlines. His sport suits hung about 14 inches off the ground; his more dressy gowns neared 12 inches.

Molyneux's 18-model collection had nipped-in waists, slight hip pads for that rounded look and some of them even had stomach pads. He used pleats—pressed and unpressed—lavishly.

His 1870 silhouette consisted of a tight fitting bodice buttoned down the front (sometimes bodices with short padded basques), a rounded neckline with frills and full skirts worn over swishing, stiffened taffeta petticoats.

With pleats Molyneux used gold and silver buttons. Six silver buttons fastened a long topcoat made up in a fine green tweed. It also had rounded small lapels and huge letter box pockets.

A rainbow-colored tartan was used for a lunchtime dress with a swirling skirt, a fringed hemline and double sleeves—tartan and net undersleeves with plaid fringed oversleeves. Tiered sleeves appeared on three models—one an orange mandarin tunic dress with silk embroidered neckline and cuffs.

Norman Hartnell, the favorite designer of the royal family, showed a small, quiet and practical collection. Outstanding in his show was a multi-color tweed suit. With it was a light blouse fastened at the neck by tiny lace bows. Its skirt was knife-pleated.

Open Monday and Friday evenings until nine.

College Student, Former Veteran Now Married, Gets Letter From War-Time English Sweetheart Who Speaks of His Child; Home Is Undermined

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a young married veteran going to college. While in the service I was stationed in England and there fell in love with an English girl.

We were engaged, but shortly afterwards I was sent to France. I never saw the girl again after that. Recently I received a letter from her and she claims I am the father of her child. I have explained everything to my wife, but things aren't the same in our home since that letter came.

How can I make this girl stop writing to me? She has already said she is trying to come to America to visit me. How can I keep my present wife? T. D.

Science Probes
Human Behavior

DEAR T. D.: Dr. Alfred Kinsey's report on "Sexual Behavior in the Human Male," based on long-time scientific research into an aspect of life heretofore swathed in defensive hush-hush ignorance, is just off the presses and already a best-seller in urban centers, in the wake of much previous, soberly favorable attention given it by news and magazine writers.

Those with the intellectual objectivity to approach the study without fear of facts or embattled prudery, who have had opportunity to acquaint themselves with the Kinsey report (as it is generally called) concur in the belief—or at any rate the sturdy hope—that the new wellsprings of information it has tapped, concerning human nature, will add immeasurably to human understanding of human beings, and thus enable men and women to develop more secure, sympathetic interpersonal relationships.

Hence the Kinsey report, but especially this boon-to-humankind aspect of it, comes to mind as one ponders your question, namely: how to "keep" your wife, now that she tends involuntarily to disavow you and reject your love, after learning of your war-time intimacy with the English girl and the latter's bold skirmishing for your present-day consideration.

Broader Knowledge
Antidote to Shock

THE ANSWER to that question is, I think, that you can't keep your wife in a relationship worth having or perpetuating, unless her attitude towards you is as greatly loyal, as deeply married, as yours is towards her in the current predicament—when a former light-o'-love is figuratively tugging at your elbow and naming you father of her child.

If your wife's set disposition is to be hurt, shocked, unforgiving and holier-than-thou, if she frozenly disdains your detailed explanations or distrait supplication of good partner advocacy and counsel, there is nothing you can do to ease her tension or revive the pulse-beat of mutual loving amity in marriage.

However, a study of the Kinsey report might clear her head in this crisis, give her a better perspective on the situation and endow her with more sensible and generous feeling for the imperfect and blundering, though well meaning man who is her husband.

As for how to "make" the girl stop writing, she probably won't unless and until it dawns on her that she has no place in your present and future calculations. If equilibrium is restored to the marriage, the chances are that this chapter of past history will bury itself. In brief, if your wife stands by you—as I think she should—in assessing the problem posed by the girl's hardihood, doubtless the girl will fade out of the picture in pursuit of other prey or scapegoat.

Embassy Tea Will Honor Radio Women

Ladies in native costume will pour tea at the Philippine Embassy tomorrow, when the Ambassador, Joaquin M. Elizalde, entertains the delegates to the Association of Women Broadcasters' fifth annual convention. Mrs. Narciso Ramos, wife of the Minister, will act as hostess.

Those who will preside at the tea table are Mme. Wellington Koo, wife of the Chinese Ambassador; Mme. Shao-Hwa Tau, wife of the Chinese Minister; Mme. So Nyun, wife of the Ambassador from Burma; Mme. Asaf Ali, wife of the Ambassador from India; Mme. Sanga Nilkamhaeng, wife of the Counselor from Siam, and Mme. Amwau Farookhi, wife of the Commercial Secretary from Pakistan.

A group of Philippine Embassy ladies also assisting will include Mrs. Carlos P. Romulo, wife of the permanent delegate from the Philippines to the United Nations; Mrs. Juan Barretto, wife of the Financial Attache; Mrs. Jaime Velasquez, wife of the Military Attache; Mrs. Leopoldo Ruiz, wife of a second secretary; Mrs. Octavio Maloles, wife of a second secretary, and Mrs. Jose Teodoro, jr., wife of the assistant commercial attache. All will be dressed in native costume.

A native string orchestra will play Philippine songs during the afternoon, and the feature of the entertainment will be two young Philippine singers, studying for opera in New York, who are coming down especially for the tea. The two young singers are Miss Conchita Gaston and Miss Catalina Zandueta.

2 Questions and answers for the woman who is contemplating the purchase of a fur coat

Question No. 1

Why Should I Buy a Fur Coat in January?

January is a traditional sale month. In normal times, when prices are stable, most furriers reduce prices to permit the thrifty-minded woman the opportunity to buy a finer fur coat at a considerably lower price than is possible in the Fall. Now with rising wholesale prices January reductions bear double significance, for in most instances the furs advertised cannot be duplicated at the same prices in the wholesale market.

Question No. 2

Where Should I Buy My Fur Coat?

We sincerely believe that for many reasons which we can back up, your best source is Jandel. We are not only Washington's leading furriers but we are also associated in two other cities, and our huge purchasing power gives us many advantages in the wholesale markets. In addition we are fur manufacturers, maintaining fur workrooms the year round. Because we are designers and manufacturers, you naturally pay less for your garments at Jandel, but more than that, you get finer quality pelts, custom workmanship, and ingenious design.

As stated in our previous advertisements, we are now offering our entire stock of furs at January reductions. We will continue this policy as long as our present inventory lasts. We nevertheless urge you to take immediate action.

Try Cereal for 'Breaded' Meat

Crunchy cereal makes an excellent coating for "breaded" meats. You may choose any of the variety of crisp cereals for this coating. Roll the cereal to a fine crumb. Dredge the meat with the cereal crumbs, then dip in slightly beaten egg and again in crumbs. Even with moist heat cookery, you will find that this three-way coating of egg and crumbs clings to the meat very well.

Most Frequent Cause of Fire

Fires in the home are frequently caused by poor wiring and incorrect heating systems. Electric switches and cords should be examined and defective one repaired or renewed, and exposed or poorly insulated wires replaced with new ones.

Does Away With Danger

If you cannot afford to put money into an expensive fire screen for your fireplace, use an ordinary metal screen and open it across the front of the fireplace. It can be supported by a couple of bricks and will be a protection until you can afford the sort you want.

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

The color of my dark brown kid gloves comes onto my hands when I wear them. Can you suggest any way to prevent this?

Perhaps a thorough dry-cleaning would remove the residue of dye from these gloves so that they would not stain your hands. Not all cleaners take gloves. However, in the yellow section of your telephone book you will find the names of some dry cleaners who advertise that they clean gloves.

N. H. Y.

Do you know of anything for stained sinks and bath tubs? They are badly stained, I think with rust. I have tried all sorts of household cleansing powders. Also, what is good to shine the faucets? T. W.

Mixing kerosene with the cleansing powder, applying it like a poultice to the stains, and leaving it overnight may clean them off. So may leaving a cloth saturated with chlorine bleach on the spots for several hours. If, as you suspect, the stains are rust, you may be able to remove them by rubbing with cut lemon or with paper toweling dipped in a 5 per cent solution of oxalic acid (poison.) Be sure to rinse immediately after using the latter.

You do not mention the metal of which faucets are made. If they are nickel, they may be cleaned with fine scouring powder or metal polish. Let dry and polish with soft cloth. Corrosion may be removed with vinegar or lemon juice. If faucets are chromium, they should be cleaned only by washing with warm soapy water and drying and polishing with soft cloth.

I have had "unremovable ink" spilled on an unbleached domestic window curtain. Do you know of anything that will remove it? M. W. B.

Oxalic acid may remove the stain. Sponge spot well with cold water, then stretch over bowl of hot water and apply crystals of oxalic acid directly to the stain. Leave a few seconds, then rinse by dipping in hot water and finally in water to which a few drops of ammonia have been added.

There's also a possibility that one of the commercial "ink eradicators" sold at stationery stores may remove the spot. However, since inks differ so widely in composition, it' s impossible to guarantee any treatment that will take out this "unremovable" ink.

We have a table model radio and record player 18 by 25 inches and 11 inches high which we have been using on the bare floor. I should like to have made a stand to raise its top level to comfortable chairside height (coffee table height). Friends have told us it would give much better tone-quality if set on a rug to absorb conflicting vibrations. Would it be best to have a rug-covered (or somehow upholstered) stand for it? Or would a low wooden table standing on a rug give just as good tone? M. H. P.

A radio engineer says that, while tone quality is improved by having a large rug on the floor and draperies at the windows, a small piece of carpeting under the radio would have little effect. The presence of large expanses of fabric in the room deadens vibrations and makes tones clearer. However, the only thing that might be gained by placing a small rug under the radio table would be to make your neighbors happier if you live in an apartment. The vibrations apparent to those in the apartment below may be lessened.

We recently moved into a house which has problem doors. They are of dark stained wood, covered with some sort of varnish, and they are very badly scratched up and marred, with the scratches showing up white. Do these doors need to be completely refinished, or is there some relatively simple way in which we can improve their appearance? D. C. G.

Refinishing would undoubtedly be the most satisfactory way of restoring the appearance of the doors. However, you could improve them by touching up the white scratches with a matching wood stain. I'd suggest washing the doors first, letting them dry, then applying the stain to the white places. Waxing afterward would also make the doors look better.

Could you tell me how to remove nail polish from a pair of black and white checked slacks? I believe they are a wool and rayon mixture. I have already tried nail polish remover, which has only smeared the area. S. C.

Nail polish remover will dissolve acetate rayon, so it's rather risky to use on any fabric containing rayon. However, if the remover didn't dissolve or roughen the fibers in your slacks, the material probably doesn't contain acetate rayon. Repeating the treatment with the nail polish remover several times, using liberal amounts of the fluid and holding an absorbent pad underneath the spot, should take out the stain. Another and more involved removal method is to wet the stain with carbon tetrachloride or gasoline, then apply several drops of banana oil. Brush lightly with a soft cloth, using an upward motion to pick up the dissolved polish.

I think I read that powdered pepsin is good to remove perspiration odors and stains from dresses. Will you tell me how to use it? G. B. F.

Pepsin will rid dresses of perspiration odors but not stains. Here is the way to use it: First, sponge stained part with warm water to which a few drops of vinegar have been added. Sprinkle the pepsin over the stain, work it well into the cloth, and let it stand 1 or 2 hours, keeping the spot moist. Then brush off the powder and rinse well.

Martin Urges Continuance of U. S. Roads Aid

House Speaker Martin (R., Mass.) last night praised the Nation-wide Federal Aid highway program as a "necessary and very useful instrument of Government" in coordinating development of highways with public needs.

He declared the program prevented "haphazard scattered improvements" and called for its continuance beyond the 1948 expiration date.

Speaker Martin addressed more than 700 members of the American Road Builders Association at a banquet at the Statler Hotel. The ARBA is convened here in a three-day conference, ending today, on technical and general highway and maintenance problems.

Toastmaster at last night's meeting was Representative Paul Cunningham (R., Iowa), chairman of the House subcommittee on roads. J. T. Callaway, president of the ARBA, introduced officers of the organization.

Earlier, A. C. Clark, construction head of the Public Roads Administration, outlined the following steps taken by PWA to prevent an "undue upsurge" in highway construction costs:

1. Adopting short-term contracts, to eliminate gambling on increased costs.
2. Stipulating that proposed projects must be "urgent" and require adequate competition in bidding.
3. Elimination of unnecessary handwork and use of improved types of equipment.

Clark spoke before a meeting of the ARBA's contracting division.

Machine Can Calculate and Remember

New York, Jan. 27 (AP).—A new electric brain that can remember nearly half a million figures while whizzing through complex mathematics that a human mind would need years to do was demonstrated today.

The brain is the latest calculator machine developed by International Business Machines Corp. Officials said it was 250 times more efficient than the IBM machine presented to Harvard in 1944.

The machine in one second can do 3500 additions or subtractions of 19-figure numbers, or 50 multiplications or 20 divisions of 14-figure numbers.

One of its advantages is ability to store vast quantities of figures. It has four ways of remembering. Figures that must be recalled most quickly are held in electronic tubes. Others, which can be recovered as quickly as needed, are stored in relays, and as holes in continuous tapes. The fourth kind of memory is the use of punched cards. With them the memory capacity becomes almost limitless.

All the fundamental arithmetic is done by electronic circuits, without using moving parts.

Known as the IBM Selective Sequence Electronic Calculator, the machine in some respects follows the pattern of the human mind. It reads numbers involved in the problem, and instructions prepared for the solution. It consults its own reference tables of results of previous calculations. The memory keeps tabs of results at each stage until they are needed again.

Results can be obtained on printed records at the rate of 24,000 figures a minute.

Tram Planned For Ascension

Seattle (U.P.).—Plush railway service to Mount Rainier's 14,408-foot summit is in the making.

O. S. Willumsen, an engineer, has spent some 40 years on the project. He has produced intricate plans for a cogwheel tramway that would travel 4.8 miles up the glacier-packed slopes of the peak within a concrete tunnel.

Perhaps the real feature of Willumsen's project is the added plan to construct a modern 50-room hotel, with complete facilities, atop the snow-covered peak. The structure would be the highest hostelry in the Nation, and perhaps in this hemisphere.

At present, the only way to reach the summit of Mount Rainier and enjoy the spectacular vista of the entire Puget Sound country is by foot. Few are hardy enough to make it.

Willumsen ruffles when he thinks of the thousands of view-hungry persons who crave a look from this ideal spot.

"With a ticket on my tram car, which would sell for about $15 round trip, not only will people be able to make a leisurely trip up the mountain, but they also will be transported to one of the most modern hotels in the West," Willumsen said.

The projected route favored by Willumsen would extend from Paradise Valley to McClure Rock, thence to Gibraltar Rock and the summit.

Cars would be 41-foot aluminum coaches, capable of carrying 40 passengers. Seats would be suspended so the occupant always would be sitting in an upright position.

Cost of the project, which would take three years to build, is estimated at six million dollars, but Willumsen is not discouraged. He says the tramway and hotel ought to outdraw Coulee Dam as a tourist attraction.

There have been objections to the scheme. Sportsmen and mountaineers maintain the tramway to Rainier's peak would result in the commercialism that has destroyed other nature beauties. Others point out that inclement weather at the mountain top would rule out the possibility of attracting riders.

"I estimate the service could operate 300 days out of the year," Willumsen said.

Fenwick Proposes Va. Cigarette Tax

Bill Designed to Raise $2,000,000 a Year To Help Localities Get U. S. Hospital Funds

Richmond, Va., Jan. 27 (AP).—With the House Appropriations Committee sitting tight on the budget bill until the fate of Governor Tuck's tax program is determined, another bill to put an excise tax on cigarettes cropped up in the General Assembly today.

Senator Charles R. Fenwick of Arlington introduced a measure to put a one-cent stamp tax on each package of cigarettes as a means of raising about two million dollars annually to finance State help to localities in obtaining Federal hospital construction funds under the Hill-Burton Act.

Fenwick said he was in full accord with the Governor's tax program and was introducing his bill with reluctance solely because he felt that unless some plan to aid the localities were adopted "the entire health program of the State will collapse."

During the sessions of both branches some 20 new bills were introduced and the assemblymen:

Resolution to Pool Oil Passes

1. Voted 95 to 0 in the House of Delegates for ratification of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States limiting the President's time in office to two terms.

2. Took up out of order and passed in both branches a joint resolution by Senator Andrew W. Clarke of Alexandria calling upon major oil companies to pool their resources and make fuel oil available through the small independent dealers so that no one may suffer.

3. Heard from Dr. Witten a prediction that the General Assembly of 1950 would pass a sales tax such as he has before the current session, which would be superimposed on the Governor's present tax program.

Tax matters still held the interest of the assemblymen and House Appropriations Committee Chairman C. C. Louderback of Page reported his committee, while studying the budget bill in detail, would hold it until the progress of Tuck's $14,000,000 additional annual tax program becomes apparent.

The committee also will bear in mind the fate of other tax bills now before the assembly, he said, referring ot Tazewell Delegate J. W. Witten's three per cent general sales tax bill and Delegate Robert C. Whitehead's bill to put a three-cent a pack tax on cigarettes and proportionate excise levies on cigars to increase appropriations for schools and other State programs.

The bill introduced by Senator Fenwick would set up a State Health center and hospital construction loan fund to aid the participation of localities in the matching funds Federal-local hospital building program. The plan would be financed by a tax of a half cent on each 10 cigarettes or fraction thereof or one cent on the standard package of 20.

The fund would be used solely for State aid to localities and money collected from the cigarette levy but unexpended would revert to the fund and could not be diverted to other uses.

31 States Have Similar Tax

Anticipating opposition from assemblymen from the cigarette tobacco counties, who already have made it plain they would go after the Whitehead tobacco tax bill, Fenwick declared that 31 States already have a similar tax and among these are virtually all tobacco growing States.

The House saw a brief flurry of fireworks over the subject of—fireworks. A bill by Delegate Frank Moncure of Stafford to repeal the wartime ban on the sale of fireworks advanced to its third reading after surviving 43-40 a motion by Delegate E. O. McCue of Charlottesville to dismiss it from the calendar.

Among bills introduced was a measure by Senator Robert O. Norris of Lancaster to increase from $25 to $35 the monthly benefits of some 6000 teachers over 70 years of age who retired under terms of a 42-year-old law. These teachers were promised retirement pay which didn't materialize. Co-patrons of the bill were Senators A. E. S. Stephens of Smithfield, W. M. Minter of Mathews and Robert S. Battle of Charlottesville.

Senator Robert F. Baldwin put in a bill that would permit motor vehicles to travel 55 miles an hour on four-lane highways—an increase of 5 miles from the present speed limit of 50—but cut them down to 45 on secondary roads.

State Bar Group Hit for Differing On New Judge

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 27 (AP).—Senator Wilbur R. Dulin, of Anne Arundel County, today scored the State Bar Association for its failure to agree with the county's bar group on a list of recommendations for appointment to the Fifth Judicial Circuit bench.

The Anne Arundel group proposed the names of State's Attorney Marvin I. Anderson, Benjamin Michaelson, counsel to the county commissioners, and Noah A. Hillman as candidates for the vacancy to be created March 1 with the resignation of Judge William J. McWilliams. The State association, however, deleted Hillman's name and added those of O. Bowie Duckett and Eugene P. Childs.

In criticizing the action, Senator Dulin declared: "The people of Anne Arundel County resent the interference of the State Bar Association's committee in so important a home-rule proposition as the naming of the county judge." He advocated reorganization of the State group to give individual county groups the privilege of recommending candidates for appointments within their own boundaries.

50,000 Pay Virginia Income Tax, 12,000 Fail

Richmond, Va., Jan. 27 (AP).—Fifty thousand persons in Richmond filed State income tax returns for 1946—but 12,000 others who earned enough to pay these taxes failed to send in returns, E. Glenn Jordan, commissioner of the revenue, said today.

Jordan, who resigned as State Senator when he took over as commissioner of the revenue two years ago, said slips showing earnings of the 12,000 delinquents will be turned over to the State tax department. This department gained jurisdiction over such delinquents January 1.

Owners of Plane Left In Snow Are Located

Bel Air, Md., Jan. 27 (AP).—A small plane found abandoned on a Susquehana Valley hillside in northeast Maryland has been identified as belonging to Daniel and George Whitley of York, Pa.

State police said they hadn't been able to learn exactly how the plane got there, but the pilot apparently made a forced landing in last Saturday's snow storm. The pilot apparently was unhurt.

2 USO Buildings Sold To Annapolis for $5000

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 27 (AP).—The city of Annapolis became outright owner of two USO buildings today.

Mayor William U. McCready handed a check for $5000 to Henry A. Brooks of the Federal Works Agency, thus giving the city title to a two-story brick structure on St. Mary's st. and a wooden building on Northwest st.

The former has been the target of considerable controversy in the last few months.

Condemned Slayer Goes To Death House Today

Moundsville, W. Va., Jan. 27 (AP).—Still imbued with hope of executive clemency, Mark McCauley, condemned slayer of a State police sergeant, awaited transfer tomorrow to the death house at the West Virginia penitentiary here.

The 36-year-old one-time strip coal miner of Davis retains his normal demeanor, prison authorities reported today, which is in contrast to his speechless and unusual behavior that prompted Gov. Clarence W. Meadows to postpone his execution last month.

Unless there is executive intervention, McCauley will go to the gallows at 9 p. m. Friday night for the murder of Sergt. Joseph Jorne, who with Tucker County Sheriff O. Gay Hovatter was slain while trying to arrest the miner on a charge of stealing a truck.

Hagerstown Man Guilty Of Rape; Mercy Asked

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 27 (AP).—Charles L. Long, jr., 28, of Hagerstwon, Md., awaited sentence today after an Allegany County Circuit Court jury convicted him of a statutory rape charge but recommended mercy.

The jury deliberated two and a quarter hours before convicting long on the third count of an indictment returned against him in Washington County in connection with an attack upon a 13-year-old girl in Hagerstown last July 15.

The case was moved here on a change of venue. Long's wife appeared with him in court here. They have two small children.

Davison Will Run For Council Seat

Charles M. Davison, jr., Alexandria attorney, announced yesterday he will enter the April 6 Democratic primary as a candidate for Alexandria City Council from the Second Ward. The seat is now held by Charles L. Nash, who has said he will not seek reelection. The ward includes Parkfairfax and the Beverly Hills section.

Lt. W. A. Lee Kills Himself In Alexandria

Giving up even in his attempts to explain, a 27-year-old Marine officer shot and killed himself yesterday afternoon in his home at 1109 N Pitt st., Alexandria, Va.

First Lieut. Warren A. Lee, stationed at Quantico, Va., was found by his wife, Lucille, a Government worker, at 5:15 p. m. In a nearby garbage can lay a crumpled up, unfinished note.

Dr. John A. Sims, Alexandria, coroner, issued a temporary certificate of death by suicide, ascribing reasons as "a personal family matter."

The note said, in part: "After what haappened last night, there is no use going on. T . ." There followed a noticeable break in the writing, an dthen the final scrawl: "Oh, the Hell with it."

Mrs. Lee told police her husband had telephoned her, apparently from their home, at noon yesterday. The nature of the call was not disclosed.

Lieutenant Lee, police said, was found lying on the floor, his right hand across his chest, his left extended and palming a .32-caliber automatic pistol. One cartridge had been fired. He was clothed in a pajama robe and slippers.

Police said Lee was shot through the mouth and head. The bullet was found on the floor.

The officer's mother, of Minneapolis, was expecting to leave that city last night to come to Alexandria to visit her son and daughter-in-law. Police were attempting to contact her.

World Dominance By Some Colored Race Discussed

New York, Jan. 27 (AP).—Whether evolution will give world dominance to some colored race to replace the Caucasins who may exterminate themselves is discussed by R. Ruggles Gates, emeritus professor of botany in the University of London, in a new book, "Human Ancestry."

The volume is the first complete history of man's evolution, listing the discoveries made since Darwin set up the doctrine of evolution. Gates is a research fellow in biology at Harvard.

The book offers evidence for a new idea about human origins. Man has been considered a single species. Instead, Gates' evidence shows several different species of men from different origins.

NLRB Asks Reversal Of Court's Ruling

By The Associated Press

The National Labor Relations Board yesterday asked a North Carolina Federal Court to reverse a decision that the courts as well as the NLRB can decide unfair labor practice charges under the Taft-Hartley Act.

The NLRB argued that it has an erclusive right to decide such charges and apply for injunctions.

Judge Johnson J. Hayes ruled on December 29 that his court had jurisdiction to decide an unfair labor practice charge brought by the CIO-Textile Workers of America against the Amazon Cotton Mill Co., Thomasville, N. C.

Democrats Urged To Shun Race Issue

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 27 (U.P.).—The State Democratic Executive Committee today urged that the racial segregation issue be kept out of the party's national platform this year, hinting that otherwise the South might bolt the party.

The committee adopted a resolution stating that any action by the national party leadership to disturb the South's racial laws would force Southern Democrats to determine which is their greater loyalty, that to the South or that to the party."

Marshall Plan Talk

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 27 (Spl.).—Andre Philip, former French Minister of National Economy and now chief of the French delegation at the International Trade Organization conference in Havana, will discuss the Marshall Plan from the European viewpoint at the University of Virginia on February 16, 17 and 18 under sponsorship of the Woodrow Wilson School of Foreign Affairs.

Academy Head Lauds Middies as Much Improved

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 27 (AP).—Midshipmen and Marines had a good word today from Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., superintendent of the Naval Academy.

Of his Middies, the admiral said he believed "the quality is higher than in my day, and it is just about the optimum."

His day was during the first world war. Holloway was commissioned in 1918 and returned to Annapolis a year ago to become one of the Academy's youngest superintendents.

Improvement in the caliber of Midshipmen, he said, is probably due to higher entrance standards.

Marine Corps officers have been assigned as company and battalion officers in Bancroft Hall for the first time, he pointed out.

That's because the "Marine Corps . . . has much to give in leadership training to the naval service as a whole."

Tuck Reappoints Two To Education Board

Richmond, Va., Jan. 27 (AP).—Governor Tuck today announced the reappointment of Dr. Huston St. Clair of Tazewell and Mrs. Rose McDonald Skoggs of Clark county as members of the State Board of Education for four year terms ending January 29, 1952.

The appointments are subject to confirmation by the genery assembly.

The governor also announced the appointment of J. Clifford Miller jr., of Richmond to the board of visitors of V. M. I., subject to confirmation by the senate, for the unexpired term of W. Marshall King of Fredericksburg, ending June 30, 1948. King, recently appointed to the State Corporation Commission, resigned from the V. M. I. board.

Love Balm Needed As Well as Hair Salve

This was reported to the Maryland hairdressers and cosmetologists convention by Dr. Herman Stein, who works in the American research laboratory at New York.

Stein said hair is governed by emotional reactions as well as its owner's physical state.

Frederick Man Seized In Alleged $1600 Theft

Frederick, Md., Jan. 27.—A 24-year-old Frederick man was arrested by local police today on the complaint of Charlotte, N. C., authorities, in connection with alleged theft of $1600 from a woman companion in Charlotte.

He was identified by police as Carl Tobery, a taxicab driver, accused by Charlotte police of taking the money from Mrs. Grace Roberts, also of Frederick, when they stopped in Charlotte last Friday night. The woman told police the money was stolen after Tobery forced her to drink a glassful of whisky.

Navy to Lend 27,000 Bbls. Of Oil to Va.

By The Associated Press

The Navy has agreed to lend 27,000 barrels of Diesel fuel oil to the State of Virginia, it was announced tonight.

Orders have been issued to the commandantt of the Fifth Naval District to release the oil after contracts have been signed, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Mark E. Andrews revealed. The fuel is stored at Craney Island.

Andrews listed three essential requirements:

1. The State must select individual companies to get oil from the Navy.

2. The companies must agree and sign contracts to return the oil to the Navy by June 30.

3. The State must determine the need of those who get the oil.

Andrews explaining the oil is intended for institutions, hospitals, schools, power plants and similiar places where public health and welfare is affected.

He said the Navy has no kerosene for home use but in extreme emergency Diesel oil can be used.

The Navy, he added, has set up a yardstick for individual allocation by the State for extreme emergency cases.

These cases must be: (1) where a dwelling is completely out of fuel; (2) another type of fuel such as coal or wood cannot be used; (3) and, occupants of the house must include children of very young age, persons suffering a critical illness or very old persons.

The Navy is lending the oil to the State of Virginia, he emphasized, and the State will arrange contracts with individual companies.

$40,000 Allotted For Md. Battle On Beetle, Borer

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 27 (AP).—The Board of Public Works today approved an allotment of $40,000 from the emergency fund to carry on the fight against the Japanese beetle and the European corn borer in Maryland.

Of the sum 18,000 would be devoted to the fight against the beetle. From the remainder $8000 would be used for research and the rest for supervising application of insecticides and giving other advice to farmers.

The board allotted the sum after hearing experts from the University of Maryland, the canning, livestock and farming industries plead for money to meet the increasing pest problem.

The sum will be added to the $42,678 for beetle control and $4000 for corn borer each year in the present budget.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

So the Baby Looks Just Like His Father, Does He?

Post Reporter Sam Zagoria went around to the hospital yesterday to see his wife and brand new son.

As you might expect, Pop found a busy group of friends and relatives discussing the baby's mouth, eyes, nose, chin and other physical attributes.

After a lengthy debate, Mrs. Zagoria rendered an opinion. "Paul Kenneth has Sam's features. He's a dead ringer for his father."

That settled the issue for everybody except Paul Kenneth and Sam. The baby was just being brought in for his dinner, and hadn't been consulted. Sam contented himself with the meek observation:

"I don't think newborn babies look like anybody except other newborn babies."

Sam took refuge in the unintelligible mumbling which husbands employ to indicate that they're defeated, but unconvinced.

But, subsequently, our reporter was vindicated. While the baby was having his dinner, Mrs. Zagoria remarked that his hair seemed to be getting darker.

Dead ringer, eh?

ADD NAMES

Mrs. B. F. McGuire of Herndon, Va., says that the town of Floris, Va., used to be known as Frying Pan.

The city fathers changed the community's name, but the Baptist meeting house still uses the name Frying Pan.

Alta M. Billings of 4320 N. Pershing dr., Arlington, Va. also tells of a changed name. Near Youngstown, Ohio, there used to be a place called Hell's Hollow.

The community later decided to change its name to Pleasant Valley—but District Liner Billings says it never seemed quite the same afterward.

Mrs. Wallace E. Perry of 2030 Lawrence st. ne., contributes another unusual name for our collection: John Day, Oregon.

And Edith J. LaPorte of 1632 Hobart st. nw., says "Don't forget Correctionville, Iowa.

By a strange coincidence the same mail brings me two letters discussing Onego, W. Va. Mrs. Robert F. Gates of Vienna, Va., wonders whether it should be pronounced Oh-NEE-go or ONE-go; Helen Bowers of 1531 Que st. nw. says it's ONE-go and explains why.

A native told her that the town is located at the forks of a stream and, as he put it, "one go this way, and one go that way."

MISCELLANY

Those Coronet radio commercials for an Eisenhower article sounded a bit hollow in the days immediately following General Ike's disclaimer of candidacy. One portion went, "Read why the author thinks that if the issue is put to General Eisenhower, he'll accept"... More than 150 cats will be exhibited this weekend at the District's first cat show since 1941. The Cat Fanciers of Washington will hold forth in the Odd Fellows Temple, 419 7th st. nw., Saturday and Sunday, from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.... Three District Liners have sent their accumulated Christmas cards to the kids at Children's Hospital. They are Floyd Montgomery of 1801 New York ave. ne., Marie Fowle of 1611 Park rd.

DOUBLE TROUBLE

B. L. Tesh of 752 Silver Spring ave., Silver Spring, Md., hopes that you didn't miss the double feature at the Cameo recently when that theater offered:

"The Time, The Place, and the Girl," also "The Trespasser."

SOME JOKE

As one who devotes his working hours to an attempt at levity, permit me to pay my professional respects to a real humorist.

He's the representative of a landlords' association who recently testified:

Mary Worth's Government Girl Contest Rules

Details of the Mary Worth Government Girl Contest follow:

1. The Mary Worth Government Girl Contest is designed to select a model Government girl upon whom the artist of the Mary Worth strip will base the drawing of the heroine of his Government girl episode.
2. All girls employed by the United States Government in the metropolitan Washington area are eligible.
3. Entries shall consist of photographs only, one photograph from each entrant, the photograph to be not more than one year old at the time of entry.
4. Any kind of black and white picture (no color shots or tints) may be entered, including snapshots, but be sure to get one that does you justice and is big enough for the judges to see what you look like.
5. Pictures must be entered unmounted. No frames, no glass.
6. The Washington Post will make reasonable efforts to return photographs but accepts no responsibility for their return.
7. Each photograph must be accompanied by a slip of paper pasted to the bottom of the photograph, carrying the following information, typed or printed: Name, local address, age, home address, type of work, Government office in which employed, plus signature. (For convenience, The Washington Post will print a form every day which can be used as an entry blank.)
8. Winner will be used as a model for the comic strip and will receive $200 in cash, plus Bermuda trip (given by World-Wide Travel Service Corp. and Hotel Bermudiana). Runner-up gets $50 in cash. Next 10 get $5 each.
9. Decision of the judges will be final. There will be no correspondence of any kind in regard to individual entries.
10. Entries postmarked later than January 28 will not be considered.
11. By entering the contest, the entrant binds herself to accept these rules and conditions as here stated.
12. Entries should be mailed to Contest Editor, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Herman Talmadge Splits Klan

By Drew Pearson

When Gen. Douglas MacArthur failed of reappointment to a second term as Chief of Staff and sailed to organize the Philippine constabulary, he took with him to Manila one of the bright, up-and-coming men of the Army — Lieut. Col. Dwight Eisenhower.

MacARTHUR

But after some time in the Philippines, things didn't go well and MacArthur fired Ike. Eisenhower went back to the United States of America to climb to fame and the top command of the American Army.

The fact that MacArthur fired Eisenhower has been denied by MacArthur, but it is true. Since then the two men have not been on particularly good terms. In fact, they have not seen each other since.

When Eisenhower finally decided to bow out of the presidential race, therefore, friends close to him say that he got a little extra kick out of inserting the admonition that a military man should not nurture the ambition to be President of the United States. For those lines were aimed directly at his old friend and commander, the only military man who aspires to be President—Douglas MacArthur.

Battle Inside KKK

The split inside the Ku Klux Klan over the Klan campaign to elect Herman Talmadge as Governor of Georgia is one of the most significant developments in Klan history. Grand Dragon Green is not at all happy about it—especially since it happened while he was absent from the last two Klan meetings. Here is the inside story.

At the first January meeting of Klavern No. 1, Atlanta, Dr. Richard Eubank, acting cyclops in Dr. Green's place, made a speech urging unanimous Klan support for Herman Talmadge. Eubank said it was the duty of every Klansman to get behind Talmadge and make certain he is elected.

This brought a vigorous, unexpected protest from Klansman Wingate, employed by the Bell U-Drive It Company, who said:

"I'll be damned if I'll support Talmadge."

He reminded fellow Klansmen that the late Gov. Eugene Talmadge, father of Herman, had broken up labor unions and set up labor concentration camps. He also recalled that the late Governor had proclaimed that $1 a day is good enough pay for any man in overalls.

"You yourself told us," Klansman Wingate reminded the exalted cyclops, "that Herman will do everything his old man did. I'm not going to vote for him."

Wingate's statement brought considerable support from rank-and-file Klansmen. However, the split went over until the next meeting, when Grand Titan Ransom tried to straighten things out. He made a speech pointing out that Klansmen should think of their wives and children and the color problem, and therefore all vote for Talmadge. This, however, failed to heal the breach.

"What do you think Brother Wingate was thinking about but his wife and children when he opposed Talmadge?" shouted one Klansman from the floor.

Judging from the murmurs of approval, the anti-Talmadge Klansmen were just as strong as the Talmadge supporters.

Grand Dragon Green has now returned to Atlanta and held a meeting early last week to try to heal the breach.

GOP Fires at Generals

With the political exit of General Eisenhower, GOP strategists have decided to use Harry Truman's yen for the military as one of their most effective campaign weapons.

To this end they've prepared an impressive list of generals and admirals now serving in civilian jobs, and this will be thrown at Truman when the campaigning gets hot.

This strategy was partly behind the Republican decision to block the appointment of Maj. Gen. Laurence Kuter as head of the Civil Aeronautics Board. Ordinarily, South Dakota's Senator Chan Gurney, a strong friend of the military and chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, would have dashed in to boost this appointment. But in the private session held between the President and the Senate Armed Services Committee, it was Gurney who, taking his cue from the GOP leadership, refused to budge.

"I agree," concurred Truman, "and I want you to know that it is not my intention to appoint military men to civilian jobs if I can get civilians to fill them. I don't think, on the other hand, that we should lose the outstanding abilities of a man just because he is in the Army."

"But the discrimination in salary," suggested Oregon's Wayne Morse, referring to the fact that Kuter would get $15,000 against a civilian salary of $10,000, "is discouraging to civilians."

Maryland's suave Senator Millard Tydings suggested a compromise, but the Republicans were in no mood.

"You were a Senator once," Gurney told the President. "You know what we are up against on the Hill."

"I understand that, Chan," replied the President, "but I've got to get someone."

Truman said he had searched high and low, but couldn't find a civilian who would take the job.

"Not even in Missouri?" blurted out Alabama's Lister Hill.

Note—At a closed committee afterward, Democrats Burnet Maybank of South Carolina and Harry Byrd of Virginia voted consistently with the Republicans. Other Democrats on the final roll call simply voted "present"—which meant that they didn't want to vote against Truman; but also didn't want to vote for a general in a civilian job. They also knew, incidentally, that Truman had kicked out one civilian, James Landis, as chairman of CAB, despite the fact that Landis had done a thoroughly competent job.

Senator Goes into Reverse

Vermont's sandy-haired Senator Ralph Flanders has a sense of humor, even about himself. He is telling the story of how by mistake he opposed his own bill on coinage.

When the bill came up for debate on the Senate floor, Flanders leaped to his feet.

"There is no need for the bill!" he argued.

Bob Taft, the Senate shepherd, jumped up and tried to catch Flanders' eye. But Senator Milt Young of North Dakota, already was whispering hoarsely: "Ralph, that's your own bill."

According to Flanders' own story, "I jammed on the brakes, skidded to a stop and found myself headed in the opposite direction."

The bill passed. It was a coinage bill in effect to make future coinage bills unnecessary.
